RUSSIA MASSES VAST FORCE OF MEN IN SIBERIA

Sends War Materials to Far East.

CHITA, Siberia, Oct. 28.—[By courier and mail.]—While Japan marches westward into Asia through Manchukuo, soviet Russia today is staging a mass movement of men and materials into Siberia. Collision between these two great forces appears inevitable.

The soviet migration heretofore has received little attention, because it has been carried out over a longer period and because of strict censorship. The pace was quickened by the Japanese conquest of Manchuria in 1931, but the movement represents more than an attempt to check Tokio. It represents a recurrence of the Russian penetration of Asia which began back in 1581 when the adventurer Yermak Timofeyeff and his band swept across the Urals into Siberia—an advance which was halted abruptly by Japan in 1905.

Driven Back by Japan.

The Russians had pressed on toward the Pacific by two routes, across Manchuria and directly eastward along the Amur river and its tributary, the Usseri. They founded the port of Vladivostok in 1860 and still possess it. But their drive through Manchuria to the warm port of Dairen entangled them with the Japanese and they were driven back.

The czars made only a half hearted effort to develop Siberia. Only one single track railway—the Trans-Siberian—was built. While many towns sprang up, most of them today resemble American frontier towns of 75 years ago. Incidentally, most of the work was done by political prisoners, among whom were practically every outstanding leader in the present bolshevik régime from the late Lenin down.

In a territory probably double the size of the United States there is nothing that remotely resembles a modern concrete highway. For 4,000 miles from the Ural mountains to the Pacific the dense forests of birch, pine and spruce have been pushed back scarcely more than a mile on each side of the Trans-Siberian railway.

Many Valleys Settled.

Many of the river valleys, of course, have been settled. In many sections, too, forest fires have cleared large areas, but in general the region is as primitive as the early American settlers found the valleys of the Mississippi and its tributaries.

Now the Russian caldron again has boiled over into Asia. The soviet government is pouring into the vast Siberian territory new slogans, new techniques, new population, and what is probably most significant, new machinery.

Nowhere in the soviet far east is this development more evident than at Chita, where the Chinese Eastern railway branches off from the Trans-Siberian main line and forms a short cut eastward to the sea at Vladivostok directly across Manchukuo. Chita boasts a population of only 65,000 and possesses little commercial importance, but it was the scene of many battles between the Reds and White Russians in the bolshevik revolution. It later became the capital of the far eastern republic which was merged into the soviet union in 1922.

Genghis Khan's Conquest.

The famous Mongolian conqueror, Genghis Khan, was born a short distance northeast of Chita, according to tradition, and it was the gold from this district that enabled him to subdue Asia and part of Europe in the 12th and 13th centuries. Today rich veins of gold are also providing the sinews of potential war for the Russians.

Long lines of freight cars jam the railway sidings. The cars are filled with trucks, tractors, military equipments and people. The latter are of two types—emigrants with their families and household paraphernalia and men locked in freight cars, peering out through small barred windows.

Guards carrying rifles with fixed bayonets march back and forth between the tracks while the trains pause at the stations.

These "settlers" in locked cars are generally designated as "criminals," but they are such only in the soviet sense, as many of them have sinned only by owning property or by employing labor for profit. Roundups in the larger cities of all those who do not possess work cards swell the

"DIGGING IN" IN EUROPE

FLOATING BREWERY BEGINS TO SUPPLY ALL ALASKAN PORTS

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The beer ship Alumna, believed by Alaskans to be the only floating brewery in the world, was moored here today and prepared to pour a flood of beer and another flood of tax revenues into the territory.

Towed here from Seattle by the tug Akutan, the old sailing vessel arrived here late last night. Formerly engaged in the lumber trade between the Pacific coast and South America, the 215 foot four masted vessel was remodeled and equipped as a brewery.

She will be towed along the coast of southeastern Alaska, making beer as she goes, and selling it at each port, a procedure expected to reduce the price, as freight charges add materially to the cost of any supplies purchased in Alaska. Territorial officials said Alumna was expected to furnish between $20,000 and $35,000 in beer tax revenues.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—While Mrs. Clara Nido and a son were attending a theater last night, thieves broke into Mrs. Nido's home and stole $1,000 in $5, $10, and $20 gold pieces which had been hidden in the house. The theft was discovered shortly after midnight when the woman and her son returned home.

Navy Weeds Filipino Gobs from Service

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—With stealthy caution the navy is weeding out Filipinos in its service. This was learned today when a high navy official revealed unofficially this policy has been enforced quietly since the first of the year.

There are approximately 1,500 citizens of the Philippines enlisted in the navy, practically all as mess attendants with the fleets. They are being replaced by Negroes.

Navy Blames Depression.

The navy department, in grudging admission of the exclusion policy, stated its adoption is another manifestation of the depression. It was explained the Filipinos are classed as "foreign born enlisted men." Since native born Americans are jobless, it was said, the department decided to avoid possible criticism by an attempt to relieve employment at home.

To this end applications for reenlistment by Filipinos are being refused.

Cite Independence Act.

Another reason for the policy, as seen by those well informed on naval affairs, is the Philippine independence guarantee in the Hare-Hawes-Cutting act passed early in 1933. With complete freedom guaranteed in ten years, the Filipinos in the naval service are within a step of literal classification as "foreign born enlisted men."

The presence of such a large representation of a virtually free people might become embarrassing, is the opinion of many naval men. The fact that the act already has produced a sentiment toward a Japanese alliance among the islanders upon the granting of full freedom already has presented some ground for apprehension.

That such sympathizers are among the enlisted Filipinos has been strongly suspected by members of the Asiatic fleet. The navy department denied that this suspicion of disloyalty has had any influence on the exclusion policy.

Transfer Many to Annapolis.

Recently the department announced the transfer of Filipinos from the fleet to the naval academy at Annapolis to replace Negroes now engaged in such duty. The transfers are being made at the rate of ten mess attendants a month until 150 will have been assigned to the academy.

Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson said that the assignments are not being made to take Filipinos from fleet duty. The sole purpose, he said, is to lighten the financial burden of midshipmen.

In the past midshipmen have contributed to a fund for the payment of the Negro mess attendants, the secretary explained.

Attendants on Pay Roll.

A recent request that they be relieved of this burden was referred to the judge advocate general, who ruled that the academy dining hall might be manned with regularly enlisted mess attendants paid by the taxpayers.

This plan has brought a storm of protest from Annapolis officials and civic organizations on the ground that the assignment of the Filipinos will bring about the loss of a local pay roll. Senator Millard E. Tydings has announced he will seek revocation of the order.

SHEPHERD STANDS BY AIREDALE PLAYMATE EVEN TO THE DEATH

Karl is a German Shepherd dog. He is young and frivolous and his favorite sport was playing with Angus, an Airedale, also young and frivolous. The two dogs lived in the 3800 block on Kimball avenue. Despite their difference in nationality they were pals.

Last night Karl was racing with Angus and he darted across Grace street. An automobile, speeding east, just missed him and ran over Angus, crushing his rear legs beneath a wheel. The motorist did not stop.

Angus howled with pain, and Karl, turning back, seized his neck with his teeth and dragged him to a pile of leaves on the corner. Then he ran along Grace street to Christiana street and brought Policeman Charles Janner, who walks a beat, back by barking and tugging on his trousers.

But Policeman Janner, seeing Angus could never recover, mercifully shot him. He held Karl while neighbors carried the body away. At last reports Karl was waiting on the corner for his pal to return.

$1,300,000 AWAITS NANCY LEITER, 18 NEXT WEDNESDAY

Nancy Leiter, granddaughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter, pioneer Chicago merchant, will become 18 years of age Wednesday and eligible to receive a $1,300,000 portion of the $15,000,000 Leiter estate. Miss Leiter is attending the Westover school at Middlebury, Conn., and will not come to Chicago for her birthday, according to Attorney A. M. Rogers, who is handling the case in Probate court.

Rogers said that the proceedings necessary before the fortune will actually pass under Miss Leiter's active control will not be completed for three or four weeks. For the last eight months the girl has been receiving $5,000 per month. When the matter is finished in court she will receive $500,000 from her grandfather's estate and $500,000 which has been held for her by her mother, Mrs. Joseph Leiter.

THOUSANDS JOIN CELEBRATION OF ARMISTICE DAY

The sixteenth anniversary of Armistice day—the day in 1918 which ended the greatest conflict in history—was observed in various celebrations in which thousands participated throughout the city and suburbs yesterday.

Scores of American Legion posts joined in a number of ceremonies in the city while the clergy in Sunday sermons urged their congregations to work for the furtherance of a continued peace throughout the world.

Because Armistice day fell on Sunday, today also will be recognized as an Armistice day holiday. Banks and schools will be closed and city, county and state business suspended. Mail deliveries will end at 1 o'clock and all carrier stations will be closed at that hour. The regular Sunday schedule will be in effect in both the old and new postoffices after that hour.

Chief Observance in Loop.

The chief Chicago observance was held yesterday in La Salle street in front of the city hall. Public officials joined with Legionnaires in a tribute to the war's dead and wounded, who through their sacrifices helped end history's greatest carnage.

The colorful city hall ceremonies were preceded by a parade in which several thousand Legionnaires participated. One half of the line of march formed at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue while the other division formed at Wacker drive and Michigan avenue and, marching through loop streets with a memorable display of formations and martial music, they met in front of the city hall. Charles V. Falkenberg was chairman of the ceremony.

Officials Address Assemblage.

Speeches were made by Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, representing Mayor Kelly; Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, and Howard P. Savage, former national commander of the Legion. Gov. Horner, who was unable to attend, sent a message to be read to the gathering. The invocation was given by Father Arthur L. Girard, who served overseas with the 33d division, and the benediction by Dr. Jacob Singer of the Temple Mizpah, who was stationed at Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kas., during the war.

Miss Olga Menn opened the services by singing "The Star Spangled Banner" and martial music was furnished by the band of the Police post, the Board of Trade post, and the Woodlawn post of the Legion. At 10:58 a. m. a salute to the dead was fired by a squad from the J. C. Russell Blackhawk post of the Legion. At 11 a. m. the throng faced east for two minutes while a bugler sounded "Taps."

Other Observances in Loop.

In other parts of the city services in various forms were held. At State and Madison streets a squad under Maj. James U. Sammis Jr., commanding officer of the special troops of the 33d division of the Illinois National Guard, fired a salute. At the same time the railroad posts of the Legion held commemorative services in the Union station. Elevated and North Shore trains were halted for 1 minute at 11 o'clock.

Special memorial-day services were held at the Chicago Historical society yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. An address was given by Dr. Frederick F. Shannon of the Central church. At 4 o'clock ceremonies were held in connection with the conferring of FIDAC medals upon sixteen prominent world war veterans. FIDAC is an abbreviation for the Federation Internationale des Anciens Combattants, an international association of world war veterans.

Suburban Ceremonies.

In Lake Forest two choirs of the Church of the Holy Spirit assembled with members of the Alexander McKinlock Jr. post of the Legion in the Market square for a brief period of silence at 11 o'clock. They then marched to the church, where services were held. Dr. Herbert W. Prince, rector, delivered the Armistice address.

One-fifth of all the city's fire fighting apparatus was called into use yesterday morning by a fire and explosion that destroyed a four story brick warehouse at 1234-36 Chicago avenue and spread to a two story frame flat building next door at 1238. For a time the entire neighborhood was endangered.

Three firemen incurred severe burns and four families lost their homes. The fire was of mysterious origin, and because of the attendant explosion Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan ordered an investigation. Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan estimated the damage at $75,000 to $100,000.

The two lower floors of the large building were vacant. John Evinczki, watchman and janitor for the warehouse, told Attorney Sheehan he inspected the premises at 9 o'clock, then went to church.

Woman Gives the Alarm.

Shortly before 10 o'clock Mrs. Mary Wozniewski, 67 years old, who lived on the second floor front of 1238 with her son Stanley and his wife, smelled smoke and saw a sheet of flame come from the warehouse.

She hurried her family out of the building, giving the alarm. Mrs. Stella Curtis, owner of the residence, and her two children fled from their first floor rear apartment while Mrs. Mary Rylowicz was getting her children from the second floor rear and John Spizenski was getting his family out of the premises back of his barber shop. All had to leave their belongings behind.

The Rylowicz children were scantily clothed, Robert, 4 years old, being barefoot. The family is on relief and in dire circumstances. The mother did not know where to take them, so they were given temporary shelter at the Racine avenue police station.

Firemen Get Tetanus Shots.

Lieut. Thomas Bradbury and Firemen John Cella and Frank Kulcikouski of tower truck No. 2 were about to enter the burning warehouse when an explosion caused them to be enveloped in flames.

Their burns were of a nature that made it advisable to send them to the Henrotin hospital for anti-tetanus treatment, after which they were sent home. Their truck was damaged by the flames that swept across the street and caused the breaking of a dozen store windows on the south side of Chicago avenue.

The fourth floor of the brick building was occupied by the Feder Trunk company, owned by Benjamin Feder of 4230 Augusta boulevard, who said his loss was about $15,000.

A BIG ADVENTURE SLIPS UP ON HIM WHO ASKS FOR IT

Arthur Bieswenger, 5149 School street, loves adventure, and as a city dweller he has to satisfy his adventurous urge by weekly hunting expeditions. Yesterday there was an adventurous prelude to his weekly trip.

It started when Mr. Bieswenger came out of his home with his gun and found that his automobile had been stolen. He called to a neighbor, Stephen Riskin, and as the two started to the police station a car came careening wildly down the street. It was Mr. Bieswenger's car, and in it were three youths. Running into the middle of the street, Mr. Bieswenger forced the car to slow down sufficiently for him to grab the spare tire carrier. He mounted the carrier and was rapidly carried away.

Mr. Riskin called the police, who arrived promptly. As they considered a course of action Mr. Bieswenger's car approached. He was driving it.

"I made so much noise," said Bieswenger, "that the thieves got scared and jumped out of the car. I retrieved it and here I am. Now I am going hunting."

POLITICAL HATES STIR ARMISTICE DAY DISORDERS

Paris Crowds Cheer Doumergue.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 11.—For the first time since the world war ended Armistice day in France was turned into a political demonstration today. Serious clashes between hostile groups in Paris were only prevented by the fact that right partisans gathered in millionaire's row and the left partisans met miles away in the Paris equivalent of the Bowery. Rioting between Nationalists and radicals occurred in several cities of France.

The most serious trouble occurred in the industrial city of Lille, where Socialists and communists united to stage a street demonstration. They clashed with Nationalists and police. Five men were injured in the rioting. Café windows were smashed by the combatants.

Cheers for Doumergue.

The semi-Fascist National Front of Paris—young patriots, royalist French action, and French solidarity—and the almost Simon-Pure Fascist Fiery Cross [Croix de Feu] transformed the usual solemn and mournful day into a demonstration for former Premier Gaston Doumergue, marking their regret over his resignation. They meant to show that however much they felt the loss of the man, they regretted the departure of this symbol of personal power even more.

Even President Albert Lebrun, driving down the Champs Elysées after a parade of French military might past the Unknown Soldier's tomb and under the enormous Arc de Triomphe, heard himself cheered by men crowds not by the cry of "Vive Lebrun!" or "Vive Republique!" but "Vive Doumergue!" He was so embarrassed that he ordered his chauffeur to drive faster.

The Nationalist forces, allowing the parade past the Unknown Soldier's tomb, marched down Avenue Foch—millionaire's row—and jammed the sidewalks and lawns in front of the temporary residence of Doumergue, where he was packing trunks for his return to the village of Tournefeuil.

Appears in Balcony.

Cries of "Vive Doumergue!" and much waving of flags by men with breasts brilliant with medals forced the former premier to appear in the balcony in much the same way that Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy acknowledge the plaudits of their subjects.

Hostile demonstrations against former Premier Edouard Herriot, blamed by many for the Doumergue government's downfall, were broken up by police.

Four men were arrested on the Grande boulevard in front of the hotel where the Radical Socialist leader stays when in Paris, for staging a noisy demonstration against him. Herriot had gone to Lyons, where he is mayor. Throughout the city there were shouts of "Down with Herriot!"

Cabinet Is Embarrassed.

Foreign military attachés especially were invited to view the impressive display of France's military forces, and the government was embarrassed by the cries of "Vive Doumergue!" It is possible that Premier Pierre Etienne Flandin will take some sort of action against Nationalist leagues, because only a few days ago, just before becoming premier, he made a pointed remark about certain leagues arrogating to themselves the right to speak for all the nation.

The leftists' demonstration took place in historic Faubourg St. Antoine, whence sprang the mob that stormed and tore down the Bastille in the French revolution. There were demonstrations against war and Fascism. Paul Marchand, director of the city police, was injured in a brush with Socialist and communist marchers when truckloads of policemen tried to break up the parade. A communist orator jumped on top of the police truck, called lustily for order and got it.

Two Shot in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The rioting which marked celebration of Armistice day in France resulted in at least one bit of shooting in Paris.

Two persons were injured seriously in a gunfight between rival political groups. Police said the shots were fired at a group chanting "Vive Doumergue." Partisans of the former premier returned the fire and shots were exchanged for five minutes before police arrived.

Communists also clashed with Na-

Former Premier Edouard Herriot got a hostile reception when he addressed a delegation of war veterans at the city hall in Lyons. He was hooted at the conclusion of his speech by part of the delegation.

Ban French Flag in Parade.

TOURS, France, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Rather than permit the red flag to be carried in an Armistice parade here, war veterans today banished even the French national tricolor from the ceremony.

King George at Rites.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Sad memories hovered over the British empire today, particularly at hallowed memorial places during the brief festival of remembrance in celebration of the 16th anniversary of the armistice which ended the great war.

At the Cenotaph, national shrine in the capital of the empire, King George, the prince of Wales, and the duke of York joined thousands of others in a simple service paying homage to the memory of the war dead.

The king, bareheaded and dressed in the khaki uniform of a field marshal, placed a wreath upon the memorial guns, then bowed his head in signal for a two minute silence.

300,000 at Melbourne Rite.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 11. —(AP)—A throng estimated at 300,000 persons, the largest ever gathered in Australia, bowed at 11 a. m. today in the two minute silence of Armistice day on the sloping lawns surrounding the shrine of remembrance, monument of the state of Victoria.

As they lifted their voices in a hymnal chant, the duke of Gloucester, third son of King George, emerged with state and city officials from the shrine for dedication ceremonies consecrating Australia's newest and proudest war memorial.

At noon 30,000 war veterans at the foot of the shrine about faced while 20,000 homing pigeons fluttered forth from a pinnacle of the edifice, bearing messages of peace and good will to all corners of the continent.

MOTHER'S PHOTO CHEERS U. S. GIRL IN GERMAN CELL

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Photographs of her mother, her aunt, and a German film actress today brightened the bleak walls of the cell in Moabit prison where 24 year old Isobel Lillian Steele of Hollywood is being held by German authorities.

Her aunt, Frau Elsa Trojan, disclosed the girl had written to her requesting the photographs. She has been held since Aug. 10 on unannounced charges characterized only as "serious."

"My niece wrote me she would feel much more cheerful if she had pictures of her mother, her sister, myself and one or two of her friends to adorn her cell," Frau Trojan said. "So I sent her these. Isobel writes us from time to time that she is well and satisfied with the treatment she is getting."

It has been said unofficially that Miss Steele, who was born in Canada, but is a naturalized American citizen, faces accusations involving "hochverrat" or "landesverrat," both meaning high treason and sometimes implying espionage.

Cold Keeps Gen. Pershing from Armistice Day Rites

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A cold, which he said was a "slight" one, kept Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American overseas forces during the world war, from participating in Armistice day ceremonies here. Avoiding a chilly rain which fell intermittently the general passed the day in a hotel room.

Seward, Alaska, Feels 4th Earth Shock in Three Days

SEWARD, Alaska, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A fairly strong earthquake, the fourth shock here in three days, was recorded at 1:35 p. m. today, preceded by a rumbling noise. The shock lasted a minute. No damage, however, was reported.

ROOSEVELTS PAY HOMAGE BEFORE ARLINGTON TOMB

Unknown Soldier Honored in Ceremony.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.] President Roosevelt led the nation in its Armistice day celebrations today. Standing bareheaded in Arlington cemetery before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier just sixteen years to the moment after the last gun ceased firing on the western front, the President quietly laid a wreath of chrysanthemums on the grave.

It was a simple ceremony, contrasting sharply with the military pomp of the rites in European capitals where at the same hour a nervous continent paid tribute to the 8,500,000 men who perished in the world war.

Small detachments of soldiers, sailors, and marines stood at attention as the President, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary and Mrs. Dern, Secretary and Mrs. Swanson, and other notables drove up in open cars. The notes of "Hail to the Chief" greeted the President as he moved slowly to a position in front of the white marble sepulcher.

"Taps" Sounds Over Arlington.

The national anthem was played, a minute's silence was observed, and the floral tribute was laid on the tomb. Mrs. Roosevelt placed a single white flower at the feet of the nation's unknown hero and the sad notes of "Taps" floated out on the still air over Arlington cemetery.

Thousands of people moved past the tomb during the day, and many veterans' and fraternal organizations placed tributes beside the Roosevelt wreath.

The danger of another war was sounded and the need for national preparedness was stressed by speakers who addressed a large crowd in the Greek amphitheater just back of the Unknown Soldier's tomb following the services.

Legion Chief Speaks.

Speakers included Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, and Frank N. Belgrano Jr., national commander of the American Legion.

Assistant Secretary Woodring said of the men who died in the war:

"In their presence we stand to do them reverend honor, and, in meditation, to contemplate whether they sacrificed themselves in vain, whether anything has been done to ward off another such blow, and whether, if the manhood of the nation were unhappily called on today, it would be better prepared to defeat its foe with less bloodshed, less anguish, and less sorrow to them all.

"Who of us would not do our utmost to bring about everlasting peace in this world? Who of us would not exert his utmost strength to banish forever the strife and turmoil among nations? We all want peace, peace to which all nations must subscribe unselfishly. But we cannot stand by and watch our great country stripped of its means of defense, ready to be sacrificed on the altar of aggression when the time comes."

Belgrano Cites War Peril.

Commander Belgrano also warned of impending danger and called for adequate national defense.

"We observe with great pleasure and satisfaction," he remarked, "the steps that are now being taken to build up our defense forces. Whenever the time arrives that other nations are ready to consider disarmament on a permanent basis, then we shall lend our hearty support to all sincere efforts to hasten the dawn of lasting world peace. May that day be soon. But so long as other nations remain armed, as long as the spirit of conquest remains alive in the world, just that long we must be prepared to defend ourselves."

Belgrano called for defense of the country from the forces of social unrest which he said are now rampant and asked for adequate care for veterans.

Mrs. A. C. Carlson, national president of the American Legion auxiliary, also spoke.

Service Honors Wilson.

In the afternoon the largest crowd on record packed the Washington cathedral to attend services in commemoration of Woodrow Wilson. Mrs. Roosevelt was among those who paid tribute to the war President and heard the Rev. Dr. James H. Taylor extol "his glorious passion for the peace of the world."

Mrs. Roosevelt, whose husband was assistant secretary of the navy in the Wilson régime, sat in a front row beside the tomb of Mr. Wilson in the south wall of the Bethlehem chapel. With her were her house guests, Miss Jane Brett and Miss Mayris Cheney. Near Mrs. Roosevelt was Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state and Mr. Wilson's son-in-law.

Mrs. Wilson, widow of the war President, was unable to be present and was represented by her brother, Julian B. Bolling.

Groups Bear Banners.

As the crowd in the chapel grew larger and the reserved seats on both sides of the tomb gradually filled, Mrs. Roosevelt sat in silence and reverent contemplation of the impressive scene until the entrance of the crucifier, followed by the choir and the clergy, brought the congregation to its feet.

Representatives of the American Legion and auxiliary posts and other patriotic groups, bearing the banners of their organizations, followed in processional, and the ceremony opened with the placing of the wreaths upon the sarcophagus, after which the grille, opened to receive them, was closed by a verger.

Assistant Secretary Sayre, speaking in the cathedral, assailed the lack of ethical standards among nations and claimed that "thievery and robbery are quite respectable today," if practiced by powerful nations.

Holding that international life is "cracking ominously," he asked for an end of "narrow materialistic ambitions," which he held led but to "suffering and disaster," and called for "accepted moral standards among nations."

Cites "Modern Tragedy."

"The tragedy of our modern civilization," said Mr. Sayre, "is that with all our multiplication of the productivity of labor and consequent material wealth, with all our scientific knowledge with which to fight disease and material ills, with all our modern resources for the upbuilding of our civilization, the spiritual foundations upon which all individual, national, and international life must inevitably depend are cracking ominously.

"It is time we awoke to the fact that civilization depends upon accepted moral standards among nations no less han among individuals. It is time that we realized that materialism and greed produce suffering as surely among nations as among men. It is time that we learn that security and happiness in the world as well as in the home depend upon the restraints that are born of spiritual concepts."

VETERANS OF POLAR BEAR REGIMENT BURIED

BELGIAN KING LIGHTS TORCH OF FRIENDSHIP WITH FRENCH VETS

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11. — (AP) — The 16th anniversary of the world war armistice was commemorated in Belgium with patriotic fervor which brought national wartime memories strongly to the fore.

Thousands of veterans paraded past Belgium's war memorial, where the royal family, diplomats and civil authorities laid floral wreaths. King Leopold ceremoniously rekindled the torch of French combatants in the world war, which was taken to Paris.

At dusk, torch-bearers from nine provinces, and from Paris and Luxembourg met at the tomb of the unknown warrior and rekindled a flame symbolizing the allied victory.

IRISH RIOT, BURN UNION JACK AT VETS' MEMORIAL

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Nov. 11. —(AP)—Political scuffling marred the celebration of Armistice day here. The Irish Republicans held a parade of their own in opposition to the British Legion, and the Union Jack was publicly burned by a crowd on the college green. The fact that the official parade broke up after the ceremony at the Cenotaph prevented serious trouble.

Republican emblems were more conspicuous than the traditional poppies. The Republicans carried banners with slogans, "Down with Imperialism and War."

STRICKEN ON STREET CAR.

David Grinberg, 78 years old, 5034 Woodlawn avenue, was stricken with a heart attack while riding a Cottage Grove avenue street car yesterday and died a few minutes later.

TRAIN U. S. YOUTH FOR PEACE, IS PLEA OF MRS. ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Boys and girls of today who will be the Americans of tomorrow must be trained away from war and into an education of peace, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt said tonight.

She deplored the manner in which the "war spirit" had been built up in "a thousand ways" from childhood on through the toy soldiers, stressing the importance of the military hero and emphasizing the glory and not the horrors of armed conflict.

"It is not until they are comparatively mature that young people discover that some of the most important people in the development of various countries never wore a soldier's uniform," she remarked.

She urged that the children of today should be taught to understand the people of other nations and to be fair and just in their dealings with them.

Capt. Malloy Now Second in Irish Group's Command

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—John J. Reilly of Philadelphia was elected president of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic today at the final meeting of the two day session. Reilly succeeds Capt. Dennis M. Malloy of Chicago, now first vice president.

DETROIT BURIES SOLDIER DEAD FROM RUSSIA

Yanks, French, Germans, Canadians Take Part.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Nine bodies were buried with full military honors by the Polar Bear association today. Five of the nine lost their lives after the signing of the armistice. They were in the expedition that landed at Archangel, Russia. The Polar Bear association is composed of veterans of the American expeditionary force in northern Russia.

The nine, whose bodies were returned here from Russia last September, were Lieut. Charles F. Chappel, Sergt. Wilbur B. Smith, Corporals Edward Kreisiinger, Edwin L. Mertens and Bernard F. Kinney, and Privates Walter J. Welstead, Harry R. Weitzel, Joseph Marchlewski and Elmer W. Hodge.

They were buried in graves near where they fell.

Bodies Are Brought Back.

In December, 1919, the bodies of 105 men were brought back to Detroit, and in 1929 a commission of members of the expedition returned to Russia and brought back the bodies of seventy-six more. Last summer the graves registration service of the war department recovered the bodies of the nine men buried here today. Beside the graves of others of their fallen comrades whose bodies had been returned before the nine were laid to rest in the shadow of the life size marble polar bear that stands guard over the graves of those who died in northern Russia. The ceremonies were opened with the parade of the Polar Bear association, the Polar Bear Cubs, the Gold Star Mothers' association, the Russian veterans, the Canadian Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, French and German war veterans, and others.

Dr. James Howell, first vice president of the Polar Bear association, had charge of the ceremonies. Following a memorial prayer by Maj. D. P. O'Donnell, chaplain of the 228th field artillery, oral tributes were presented by relatives of the nine men.

Gives Praise to Dead.

Harry H. Mead, president of the Polar Bear association, said:

"At times today we hear the voice of the cynic raised, questioning whether the benefit to mankind and future generations was worth the supreme sacrifice you made. To us, your living comrades, the answer is clear and decisive. The sacrifice was not in vain. It has taught us all the vain futility of war and the lasting benefits of peace."

As the band finished playing "Nearer, My God, to Thee" planes from the 107th aero squadron, Michigan National Guard, flew overhead.

German War Vets Guard Tomb of French Soldier

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A group of German war veterans mounted guard at the tomb of France's unknown soldier today. In the detachment were 25 former sailors of the imperial German navy. They came from their homes in Metz, which was returned to France after the war, to give a ceremonial tribute to their former enemies after the French government had approved their project. The men paid their own expenses.

HUTTON URGES U. S. BUSINESS TO UNITE AND ACT

Should Have a Voice in Congress, He Holds.

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Stressing the need of mutual confidence and coöperation between government and business, E. F. Hutton of New York, one of the founders of the American Liberty league, urged business men tonight to consolidate their forces.

"The time has come," Hutton said, "for business men to wrap hot towels around their heads, get down to serious thinking and try to learn where they stand in relation to their government."

Hutton, chairman of the board of General Foods corporation, declared business men must organize so as to be able to approach congress for a better understanding of each others' problems, "and the American Liberty league intends to function in that very definite and important work."

Should Be No Distrust.

Asserting the league seeks to help President Roosevelt in his recovery program, Hutton declared government "should not look upon business through eyes of suspicion and distrust."

"However," he said, "there is a limit, in the opinion of business interests, both large and small, as to just how far the government should go in its official experiments. Again I repeat, all business, both large and small, should know if any more rights that are guaranteed under the constitution are to be amended by a minority voice or in a constitutional manner by the voice of the people.

"We do not hesitate in saying that the league will inaugurate a very active campaign of education. We intend closely to study all legislation. The American Liberty league holds that any type of legislation that interferes with the activity of business automatically and very definitly stops the employment of labor.

Essentially a Business Nation.

"If we admit that this country is essentially a nation of business people, large and small, it then becomes basically sound that they should have something to say in the halls of congress, which enacts the laws, from which must come not alone the relief that business needs; but, more than that, the protection against continued autocratic power, burocracies and those further 'experiments' that now point very dangerously to a continued orgy of spending, to say nothing of the intrenchment of political czars, the elimination of individualism and the wiping out of those cherished ideals, one of which is that human rights and property rights are inseparable."

Hutton, who has outlined the principles of the Liberty league before business groups of several cities, will proceed to California by way of Texas. He is scheduled to be joined at a dinner in Los Angeles Tuesday night by Irenee du Pont and John J. Raskob.

RALLIES AFTER OPERATION

MRS. AUBREY NEIL MORGAN.

URGES FLEXIBLE STATE LAWS TO CONTROL LIQUOR

Individual states in regulating liquor control through statutes should not adopt ironclad rules, Arthur J. Palmer, associate secretary of the National Conference of Liquor Law Administrators and chairman of the committee on uniform labeling regulations, declared yesterday.

"Various conflicting state requirements have placed the industry in an untenable position and the only solution seems to be to place labeling requirements in line with those adopted by the Federal Alcohol Control administration," said Palmer, speaking for the members of the committee, who are guests at the Palmer house.

Other members of the committee are Col. John A. Hughes, director of the Ohio department of liquor control; B. C. Rumsey, Wyoming; David Arundel, Minnesota liquor control commissioner; Harold Cooper, chairman of the Iowa liquor commission; and Commissioner Michael F. Costello of Rhode Island. A meeting of state officials will be held in Chicago on Nov. 22 to discuss the topic.

MISSOURI ROBBER SHOT.

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Springfield police continued their campaign of "shoot to kill" early today when a burglar was caught robbing a café. When he refused the command to halt officers opened fire, seriously wounding him. Three robbers have been slain here in recent weeks.

Still in Danger

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Aubrey Neil Morgan, daughter of the late Dwight W. Morrow and sister of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, was recovering today from an emergency appendectomy. She was not considered out of danger. One of a party of eight about to leave on a liner for Mexico late Saturday, Mrs. Morgan suffered an acute attack of appendicitis. She was taken from the boat shortly before it sailed at Wilmington and rushed here.

SIXTY MILLION DOLLARS MOVED IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A $60,000,000 fortune in cash and valuables was moved across 7th street at Spring in the central downtown district today.

Thirty-three policemen under Capt. Warren L. Justin, 25, special bank officers and several private detectives guarded it.

Then two large cranes lifted a great safety deposit vault piece by piece, from the basement of the old Guaranty building and swung it across the street into the basement of the Security-First National Bank building.

MACY TO MAKE 1936 RACE; SLAPS N. Y. OLD GUARD

Charges G. O. P. Leaders Are Cause of Defeat.

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—In a scathing denunciation of the "bourbon influences" of Republican leadership in New York state, W. Kingsland Macy, former chairman of the Republican state committee, announced today his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor in 1936. He will seek the nomination, he indicated, in a continuation of his fight to liberalize New York Republicanism, from the leadership of which he was deposed last summer by the old guard faction.

W. KINGSLAND MACY.

Urges Defeat of Snell.

Asserting the present leaders had had their final field day and had brought the party to its most "ignominous defeat," Mr. Macy also announced he had written or telegraphed the Republican representatives elect from this state advocating the defeat of Representative Bertrand H. Snell as minority leader of the house as another step to eliminate reactionary influence.

He said:

"The malicious maladroitness of the men who engineered the Republican campaign of 1934 in New York state will long be remembered as the dying effort of a group of unscrupulous politicians who sacrificed every decent principle of politics in order that they might have political control. The MacHolds, the Hammonds, Thayers, the McGinnieses, and Wadsworths have had their final field day.

"I feel that our party, if it is to survive, must get rid of all of these Bourbon influences who insist on controling when the great mass of people resent not only their leadership but their political ideas."

Old Guard Facing Fights.

With Macy's move it became evident that the old guard faction would face a series of primary fights to retain control of the state organization and elect delegates to the Republican national convention in 1936.

The so-called liberal element in the party, headed by Mr. Macy, also will oppose the election of national convention delegates favorable to the nomination of either Representatives James W. Wadsworth or Ogden L. Mills in the spring primary election in 1936.

FALLS TWO FLOORS IN ROW.

AUSTRIAN POLICE FIGHT RADICALS; REVOLT FEARED

Republic Is Stirred by Strike Threat.

VIENNA, Nov. 11.—(AP)—While Austrian monarchists held memorial meetings lamenting the abdication of Emperor Charles 16 years ago Socialists and communists staged a fiery demonstration near Vienna today.

The radicals threw out a bristling challenge to the so-called Austrian republic which was set up the day after the abdication of the emperor.

Threaten General Strike.

The seditious gathering assumed a menacing aspect when Socialists, who had allied themselves with the communists, served an ultimatum on the government by means of flaming posters which read:

"If by midnight tonight you fail to proclaim tomorrow a public holiday we will declare a general strike."

Shots were exchanged at Tivoli park, near Hernals, where police broke up a communistic gathering, but no casualties were reported.

Similar clashes were reported to have occurred at Tullnerbace, where communists posted inflammatory posters on houses. At other places Socialists held subversive meetings, but managed to flee before authorities arrived.

Warning to Government.

Thousands of handbills were scattered at the outskirts of Vienna by the allied Socialists and communists warning the government that "we're demonstrating together for the release of our prisoners, and for a revolutionary union of the dictatorship of the proletariat."

In anticipation of more disorders tomorrow authorities reinforced police and gendarmerie detachments, which were patroling danger areas day and night.

CCC IS HERE TO STAY, DIRECTOR FECHNER AVERS IN ADDRESS

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Robert Fechner, national director of the Civilian Conservation corps, told corps members today he thought their organization should become "a permanent part of America's peace-time program." He spoke at Armistice day exercises near here today.

From a site on the "bloody angle" of the Spotsylvania battlefield of the Civil war, Fechner told the corps men that they were part of a great peace-time army which had taken the place of the war time armies which fought at Spotsylvania seventy years ago. They had taken the place, he repeated, of the armies which clashed in Flanders seventeen years ago.

Fechner's address was the feature of exercises in the battlefield which the CCC is transforming into a national memorial park.

STREAM TRAIN BEGINS SERVICE OUT OF LINCOLN

Makes Its First Regular Kansas City Run.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—A bright and shiny streamliner, the Zephyr slid into the Union station here this afternoon ending the first regular service trip of this type of train in American railroading. The maiden voyage, from Lincoln, Neb., via Omaha, Neb., was celebrated as the inauguration of a new era in rail transportation. It was the beginning of a daily 500 mile round trip schedule over this route.

Beside the stainless steel carrier in Lincoln this morning paraded ox carts, covered wagons, and stage coaches representing transportation over these prairies a century ago. On nearby tracks stodo a steam locomotive waiting to switch the heavy coaches of conventional railroad passenger equipment.

The Zephyr is displacing two steam trains. Each weighs approximately 404 tons. The streamliner of similar capacity weighs 104 tons. The lightweight is an important factor in the economy of operating this new type of carrier.

Speeches Mark Departure.

Speeches by civic leaders and public officials at Lincoln were ended and at 7:30 a. m. the motorman in the glass enclosed cabin of the parabolic nose received a highball from the conductor. An eight cylinder 660 horse power Diesel's exhaust, a low murmur in the coaches, was heard to accelerate. The oil burner turns a dynamo that furnishes electricity for motors on the front trucks that drive the train at a top speed of 110 miles an hour. The three articulated coaches, with exterior contours that blend as a single unit, smoothly gathered momentum. A band played the national anthem and a crowd waved to the passengers lounging in the tapered tail of the train.

"It reminds me of the summer of '71 when I was on the first passenger train through here," said Mrs. John Fitzgerald, 83 years old, of Lincoln. On on that 1871 train and also on this Zephyr was Mrs. Flora Waugh, 76 years old, of Lincoln.

"When your great-grandchildren get a little older," said Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, "they'll probably see lots of these streamliners, but they'll remember today's trip as an event."

Speeds 80 Miles an Hour.

The Zephyr quietly gathered speed over prairies sparkling with sunshine on frost. At 80 miles an hour, the cruising pace on the schedule, the 72 passengers were at ease in the air conditioned coaches with windows fixed in rubber beds as insulation against dust and noise. Omaha was reached on the regular schedule time at 8:25 a. m. The 55 miles from Lincoln was covered in exactly 55 minutes. This compared with the 1 hour 15 minutes of the steam train that was displaced.

As important is the comparison with the 1 hour and 55 minute schedule of the buses that now handle 60 per cent of the common carrier passenger business between these Nebraska cities.

At Omaha there were more speeches by civic and political leaders describing the steamliner as the vehicle of a new transportation era. A band of Omaha Indians in native costume pounded a drum and sang and danced.

South went the Zephyr. Within occasional view from the west windows was the Missouri river, the route for travel that lost its business when the railroad was built. Within occasional view from the east windows was the paved highway that took approximately 80 per cent of the railroad's passenger business.

Pony Express Reënacted.

At St. Joseph, Mo., there was more pageantry. Fred Carlow, a grandson of Buffalo Bill, galloped up to the mail compartment of the Zephyr and received letters for the mayor and other officials in a reënactment of the pony express of 1860.

The Zephyr arrived in Kansas City, Mo., after covering the 195 miles from Omaha in exactly 4 hours, including eight local stops. The steam train time was 5 hours and 20 minutes, the bus time is 76 to 8 hours. For the 250 miles from Lincoln to Omaha to Kansas City the streamliner burned 96 gallons of power fuel costing 4 cents a gallon.

F. G. Gurley of the Burlington's executive staf estimated that all operating costs of the streamliner will approximate 32.9 cents per mile. This includes labor and maintenance.

"We'll gain business from the fast and pleasant ride," said H. H. Holcomb, vice president of the Burlington, "and we will save money through the reduction in weight and through aerodynamics."

DR. JOHN EVANS CALLS POST-WAR GENERATION HEAVIEST SUFFERERS

The world lost the objectives of the world war, with Germany emerging as the victorious nation, if it can be considered that any nation won, the Rev. Dr. John C. Evans, rector of St. Luke's church of Chicago, said yesterday in his Armistice day sermon.

"The war," he said, "was fought to protect democracy, but now, if ever, the world is suffering under autocracy. It was termed 'a war to end all wars' and today there are more existent threats of war than ever before.

"Germany is now preëminent in Europe. That nation really won the war, considering the scope of its post-war activities and its present position in the European situation."

Dr. Evans referred to Armistice day as the one day on the civil calendar on which attention is directed to a great shift in world philosophy. It is the focal point, he said, at which the world pauses to look at world "directions."

He asserted that soldiers were not the only ones to suffer and make sacrifices, that the greatest tragedy of the war came to those who were yet unborn when guns were blazing, that the severest sufferers are the underprivileged children, born after the first Armistice day, and punished by the poverty growing out of the war.

Dr. Evans was a lieutenant of field artillery during the war.

Father Shoots Himself at Baby's Christening Party

Carl Adamowicz, 44 years old, shot and seriously wounded himself in the head last night in his basement flat at 915 North Damen avenue after a christening party for his two weeks' old baby. His wife, Helen, and her sister, Sophie Wojas, 1460 Holt avenue, told Sergt. William Stahle of the Racine avenue police they were in the kitchen when they heard a shot from the front room. Adamowicz was found there with the revolver in his hand. He had been drinking. Police said he was divorced four months ago from his wife's sister. He was taken to the county hospital.

also were held in Cicero, Berwyn, Riverside, and other western suburbs.

British and Colonial veterans and Canadian Legion post No. 61, together with members of the American Legion, participated in Armistice day festivities at St. James' Episcopal church, Wabash avenue and Huron street yesterday morning. Dr. Duncan H. Browne, rector and chaplain, who was cited for bravery overseas during the war, talked on the "Ideal of Liberty."

Mr. Savage in his speech in front of the city hall called upon the assembled throng to fight individually for the preservation of the constitution and the liberties guaranteed by it. His speech follows in part:

"I cannot help but think this morning just what sort of a report we could make to our comrades who forever must lie in foreign soil, or to our comrades who came back to America broken in body and broken in mind, and who are at this moment still fighting to regain their health, their strength, and their courage that they might take their places along with us in society.

"We can report to these of our comrades that we have kept the faith. We have tried to hold the torch high. We have tried to cling to those principles of justice, freedom, and democracy. We have kept the faith with our disabled. We are making the fight today for justice for them and their dependants.

"Fighting for Constitution."

"We are making the fight against those who would attempt to destroy the very principles of our republic—those who would take advantage of the dark days of unemployment to incite or teach a form of government entirely foreign to America.

"We are making the fight against malcontents and disloyalists who are preaching and teaching other forms of government, whether it be the communism of Russia, the Fascism of Italy, the Naziism of Germany, or any other ism. We are fighting to preserve the constitution."

Takes Her Dog for Airing; Robbed of $1,000 Coat

Held up while she was airing her Scottish terrier in Jackson park near Stony Island avenue last night, Mrs. Jean Weis, 6724 East End avenue, was robbed of a fur coat valued at $1,000 and her purse by an armed man.

BRIDE OF FEW HOURS INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Bessie Masias, 24 years old, 5605 West 22d street, a bride of a few hours, was injured last night when the automobile containing the bridal party collided with another car at Stony Island avenue and the Midway.

Mrs. Masias and John Mitchell, 28 years old, 7744 Jeffrey avenue, driver of the other car, the only persons injured, were taken to the Woodlawn hospital by Dr. S. D. Vatch, one of the two best men in the bridal party. Mrs. Masias and her husband, Thomas, were married last night at 6 o'clock at St. Constantine's Greek Catholic church, 61st street and Michigan avenue. With the two best men they were on the way to a party when the accident happened.

The deaths of two women yesterday brought the toll of automobile fatalities in Cook county for the year to 1,074. The victims:

Miss Louise Williams, 35 years old, 2325 West 21st street. Died at the county hospital from injuries incurred Saturday when the automobile driven by her nephew, Edward C. Nagelin, 24 years old, of the same address, collided with a truck at 21st and Lincoln streets . Joseph Adams of Gary, Ind., was the truck driver.

Miss Anna Clausen, 72 years old, 34 West 110th place, a retired nurse. Died at the county hospital from injuries received when she was struck by an automobile driven by Jacob Vanderberg, 10559 Lafayette avenue.

Four men and a boy were injured, one of the men probably fatally, last night in a crash involving three cars at 50th street and Western avenue.

The most seriously injured is Harry Nafal, 18 years old, 5700 South Laflin street. He and the driver of the car in which he was riding, Walter Jasinski, 5623 South Hamilton avenue, were taken to the South Town hospital. The boy, whose name was not learned, was taken unconscious to Anthony's hospital.

JERSEY WILL STAND ON 'ONE MAN THEORY' IN THE LINDBERGH CASE

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 11.—(AP)—State prosecutors today made it clear that it is up to Bruno Richard Hauptmann's attorneys to disprove the state's theory that the kidnap-murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was a one-man crime.

New Jersey authorities proceeded with the work of building their case against Hauptmann and indicated that many witnesses will be called to establish that the Lindbergh child was stolen from his crib and slain—among them Betty Gow, former nursemaid in the Lindbergh Hopewell home. Miss Gow is in Scotland but Attorney General David T. Wilentz said he "expects" she will be in America in time to testify.

SOCIAL REFORMS PARLEY TO START THIS WEDNESDAY

New Dealers to Begin Widening Control.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The federal government's control over the nation, fashioned these last 20 months as to enfold industry, agriculture and finance, move now into the scarcely explored realms of social management.

During the coming week conferences will be held in Washington to bring partly into the light for the first time the New Dealers' aims for achieving for Americans of lesser opportunities what President Roosevelt has called "the abundant life."

In the heat of the recent campaign, as well as in the bitter and exciting struggles over the existing policies of the New Deal, little heed has been paid to a large group of professors, sociologists, reformists and welfare workers which, under the tutorship of an executive committee of the government headed by Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, has been designing the administration's plans for setting government controls over human destinies and human needs.

Deal With Welfare Schemes.

These schemes to be presented to congress in January, will include permanent legislation dealing with problems of unemployment, old age, child welfare and public health.

In view of the overwhelming majorities the President will enjoy in both houses of congress, it seems established that the laws as drafted by the New Dealers will receive almost automatic stamps of approval by the legislators, a condition never before approached in the history of the United States.

Another program also being worked out in secret, and which also will be sent through the mill of congress, deals with natural resources of the nation, and in this case the bills will be drafted by the President's national resources board. This program is also weighed of vast significance, since in its ultimate design it may lead to government control, and possibly government ownership, of all timber lands, oil reservoirs and coal fields, and government dominion over all existing and future water power developments on the nation's lakes and rivers.

Effect a Grave Question.

How these unprecedented changes in the motives and the structure of the federal government may affect the economic life of the nation, and the personal liberties of its people, is a grave question which is concerning many leaders of American commerce.

In the case of unemployment insurance, the setting up of great reserves by the government with which to pay doles when depressions are visited upon the country, it is argued by the New Dealers that such reserves will prevent the levying of current taxes to meet unemployment relief needs. The same argument is made with respect to gathering of funds for retiring the aged.

Opponents to this argument declare that vesting responsibility for first the collection, then the preserving, and finally the distribution of such immense sums of cash, with a politically constructed government, no matter what party may be in power, would be fatal.

Stress Burocratic Inefficiency.

The inefficiency of a huge burocracy necessary for managing such a project would alone defeat the purposes of the plan, it is argued, and make way for grafting, diversion of funds with political motives, and similar crimes of politics.

Those opposed to a government-in-business policy make the same argument with respect to federal controls over natural resources. Private management of utilities has ever been more efficient and satisfactory than political management, it is declared, even though occasionally it may be oppressive.

On Wednesday of the coming week the first public conference on economic security will be held here. Attending the conference will be the new advisory council of 19 members appointed yesterday by President Roosevelt; special advisory committees of physicians, dentists, public health and hospitalization experts, and several hundred specially invited interested citizens.

Divided in Five Sections.

The Wednesday discussions, to be conducted on a round-table style, will be divided in five sections, and will be directed and addressed by the following:

Prof. Joseph H. Willits, University of Pennsylvania, will preside at the round-table conference on unemployment insurance. Discussion leaders on this problem will be Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer United Mine Workers of America; H. W. Story, vice president, Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company, Milwaukee; Prof. Paul H. Douglas, University of Chicago; John B. Andrews, secretary, American Association for Labor Legislation.

The round-table on old age security will be presided over by Miss Mary Dewson of the National Consumers' league.

The round-table on child welfare will be presided over by Miss Grace Abbott of the University of Chicago and former chief of the United States children's bureau.

Several authorities in the government service will speak at the round-table on provision of employment. William Haber, director of the emergency welfare relief commission of Michigan will preside.

Congressman De Priest's Office Damaged by Fire

Fire starting in the basement of 4316 South Park way yesterday afternoon damaged the interior of the first floor used by Congressman Oscar De Priest as a real estate office. He had just moved his campaign files from political headquarters to the office. They were slightly damaged by fire and water. Firemen from engine company 45 extinguished the blaze.

RUNAWAY FROM CHICAGO PUZZLES 2 CITIES' POLICE

A Chicago runaway boy, 13 years old, was identified last night in Bayonne, N. J., after he had puzzled the police departments of Bayonne and Rochester, N. J., where he was taken into custody three days ago. When picked up the boy gave the name of Chester Perry of Bayonne and the Rochester police sent him there because there was a boy of that name missing in Bayonne. The parents of the Perry boy said the wanderer was not their son and he finally admitted that he was Patrick Culligan, 5520 Emerald avenue. His parents told Chicago police the boy was a habitual runaway, and they didn't have the money for his fare home. The police at Rochester, where he was returned last night, said they would send him home.

MRS. VANDERBILT RESTS BETWEEN COURT SESSIONS

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt is expected tomorrow to complete her testimony in her court battle to regain custody of her daughter, 10 year old Gloria Vanderbilt, from Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's paternal aunt.

Mrs. Vanderbilt spent the week-end at her home with her sisters and brother, Nathan Burkan, her attorney, said:

"The family has been assailed from every angle. Mrs. Vanderbilt's character has been besmirched and efforts made to ruin her morally and socially. She is ashamed to be seen in public after the terrible things that were said about her."

Mixture Intended for Rats; 8 in Hospital.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Poison sprinkled on candy to kill rats and mice claimed the life today of one of nine children who ate the candy while they were hunting for a pet rabbit.

The children wandered into a junk yard in search of their pet. From the inside of a barrel found there, authorities said, the nine scraped marshmallow syrup and ate it. Shortly afterward they were seized with convulsions.

Seventeen month old Nellie May Lucero, youngest of the group, died today. Her 7 year old sister, Adelino, still was seriously ill. Five of the others also are members of the Lucero family.

Burglars Take 420 Pound Store Safe Holding $176

Burglars who carted away a 420 pound safe and its contents of $176 from the Father and Son Shoe store, 3114 West 63d street early yesterday, were being sought last night by the Chicago Lawn police. The robbers entered by breaking through an iron door at the rear. They operated between 3 a. m., when George Baxter, 6207 South Richmond street, manager, went home, and 8 a. m., when neighbors discovered the burglary.

SOPHIE TUCKER TO BE GUEST AT COOKING SCHOOL

Stage Star Once Worked in Restaurant.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Sophie Tucker, who worked in her father's restaurant in Hartford, Conn., before she got to be a stage celebrity, is going to look in on THE TRIBUNE'S cooking school at Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 128 North Pulaski road, Wednesday afternoon.

"My goodness, the cooking was so bad I had to run away from it," she said yesterday, recalling her restaurant days, when she consented to make an appearance this week and again on Wednesday next week when the school moves to the Aragon ballroom. Miss Tucker, who has sung popular ballads in the "red hot mamma" style for years, said she would have a song or two for the cooking school pupils. She recently returned from Europe to fill an engagement at the Chez Paree here.

Radio Stars on Program.

Entertainment galore is scheduled for the cooking school's second week, opening tomorrow at 12:30. There will be community singing each day, personal appearances of radio, stage, and screen stars, talks by members of THE TRIBUNE staf, and the daily lecture by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, home economics expert, who is in charge of the school.

Tomorrow Phil Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE, as master of ceremonies, will welcome the west side women. A community sing will follow, led by Carl Craven, with Leon Benditzky at the piano. Rube Appleberry, Russ Russel, staf announcer, and the Doring sisters, all of W-G-N, will make appearances.

Others on the program will be Roy Cropper, tenor, of the Empire room of the Palmer house, who was the original "Student Prince"; the pupils of the Ideal Dance studios, Rhea Seeger, TRIBUNE fashion editor, and Anna Nangle, who is Sally Joy Brown.

Dr. Tarbell to Appear.

The second day of the four day session will be opened by community singing led by Frank Bennett, with Cathryne Bennett at the piano. Those who will entertain will be Dr. Harlan Tarbell, mystery scientist; Kenneth Stevens, tenor; Lum and Abner of W-G-N, Art Millet, W-G-N announcer; the Cathryne Bennett Songbirds quartet, and Eleanor Nangle and Lettie Leitner of THE TRIBUNE. Miss Tucker will appear shortly after 12:30 p. m.

Thursday Harry Walsh will lead the singing, followed by an appearance by Francis X. Bushman and Elizabeth Hines, screen and radio stars who are heard over W-G-N; members of the Dixiana Showboat players; Virginia Clark, who sings for W-G-N; Signa Serene, psychomentalist; Robert Paddock Stapp, tenor, and Ruth De Young and Herma Clark, TRIBUNE writers.

Prizes Will be Awarded.

Friday, the final day for west side women, is also the day on which the grand prizes will be awarded. The entertainment that day will include community singing led by George L. Tenney, with Allan Grant at the piano; Wendell Hall, the "Red-Headed Music Maker" of radio fame; Ireene Wicker, the "Singing Lady"; Bob Elson, announcer, and Lawrence Salerno, baritone, all of W-G-N, and Sara Corinne Mason, chosen as the best woman singer in the 1934 Chicagoland Music Festival. Kathleen McLaughlin, TRIBUNE woman's editor, and Eleanor Page of the society department will speak briefly, and the Esther M. Bossert dancing school pupils will appear.

Miss Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, will introduce Mrs. Chitwood each day and on one day will demonstrate some of her own recipes.

On Nov. 20 the cooking school will open in the Aragon ballroom.

ON WEST SIDE COOKING SCHOOL PROGRAM

TWO N. Y. FIRMS FOUND GUILTY OF NRA VIOLATION

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Two firms, operating under collective code agreements with their employés, which moved their plants to other cities to escape obligations under the agreements, have been found guilty of violation of section 7A of the national industrial act, the regional labor board announced today.

Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, director of the regional labor board for New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut, said the Globe-Gabbe corporation and the Shuster-Gaio corporation, both of Brooklyn, have been ordered to take employés with them who wish to go to the new locations and to negotiate with them collectively. Both concerns operate under the fur dressers and dyeing code under which 30 firms are parties.

The Globe-Gabbe corporation moved to South Norwalk, Conn., and the Shuster-Gaio corporation to Farmingdale, N. Y.

RETURNS TO JAIL AFTER DAY.

Released from the Belmont county jail one day, Rudy Hora, Wheeling Creek, returned the next day to tell Sheriff Duff how to run the place. The sherif didn't appreciate Hora's suggestions, had him locked up, charging him with intoxication.

TANKER SURVIVES PACIFIC TYPHOON WAVE 70 FEET HIGH

Larry Doheny Limps to Port at Manila.

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A wave "possibly 65 to 70 feet high" almost overwhelmed the tanker Larry Doheny, which wirelessed an SOS Oct. 23 in the midst of a Pacific typhoon, Capt. J. Wilder related here today.

"I can't say accurately, but I believe the wave was as high as our masts, which are 65 to 70 feet," said Wilder, who brought his ship in yesterday.

"I was on the bridge, which is 35 feet, and had to look up to see the top of the wave, which fortunately missed the bridge and struck the main deck just aft, crippling the steering gear and wireless."

Capt. Wilder said the ship, bringing fuel oil from San Pedro to Manila for use of the Asiatic fleet, survived due largely to the heroism of First Mate Charles A. Carton.

The skipper related Carton volunteered to make an emergency steering gear and succeeded after eight minutes.

Wilder, a native of Maine, said the storm was the worst in his long experience.

"For six hours the minimum of the wind was 90 miles an hour and sometimes above a hundred," he said. "For 10 hours the minimum was 75 miles."

He expressed resentment at what he said was the failure of certain ships and shore stations to observe the three minute wireless silent period twice hourly wherein distress signals might be sent.

The Larry Doheny was stricken 400 miles northwest of Guam, near where the shipping board vessel Elkton foundered in 1926 with a loss of more than 40 lives.

THREE YOUTHS KILLED AS AIRPLANE DIVES OUT OF CONTROL

Butte, Mont., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Three youths were killed today by a nose dive as they sought to land an airplane apparently out of control on the outskirts of Butte.

They were Henry King, son of County Commissioner Don B. King; Kohn Madden, a grocery clerk, and an unidentified boy whose last name authorities believed to be either Bouquet or Boulier.

The crash came at the end of an apparent struggle by the pilot to regain control of his ship after it had slipped into a dive.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 11.—Nineteen persons, including Luis Freg, famous Mexican bull fighter, were drowned yesterday when two launchea collided and overturned in a strong tide between the Island of Carmen, state of Campeche, and the mainland.

News of the disaster did not reach the mainland until today. The sole survivors were Ernesto Padilla and his small son, Padilla having swam for three hours through a heavy surf back to the island. He was exhausted and delirious when he reached the beach.

KILLED BY TWO STORY FALL.

The Maxwell street police last night were investigating the death of Jacob Delpputo, 35 years old, 1808 South Racine avenue, who either fell or was pushed from a third flood balcony at 2001 Allport avenue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—A flying boat can be built to withstand the most violent storm over the Atlantic ocean.

Such is the belief of Igor Sikorsky, designer of seaplanes, who predicts that the next two years will see the establishment of a regular trans-Atlantic air service.

Designs for a practical type of flying boat intended for service between New York and European ports have been drafted, Mr. Sikorsky made known. The basic safety protection for flying in ocean storms is very heavy wing loading, he revealed.

Lessons learned from the close study of water going birds have led to this conclusion of the airplane engineers in the Sikorsky factory, he said.

"We have found," he remarked, "that the big sea birds who fly over long distances in stormy weather have a very heavy wing loading. Heavy, that is, in comparison with the land birds of like size.

"For instance, the albatross, which sometimes soars for days at a time without a wing flap, according to the testimony of reliable observers, has a wing loading of 2.8 pounds per square foot. The condor of the Andes, on the other hand, a land bird of about equal size which alights relatively frequently, carries only one half the load on his wings. His wing loading is 1.4 pounds per square foot."

Heavy Wing Loading.

Asked concerning the advantages of heavy wing loading to either bird or plane the designer said:

"They feel bumps or rough air much less. When a gust comes along and hits them from below they only bounce up, as it were, a little way, whereas the lightly wing loaded bird or plane is deflected upward by such a gust a long way and has a long way, naturally, to drop back again when the gust has passed. Obviously this is not pleasant for passengers. But there is a more important objection to it than interference with passenger comfort.

"The stresses set up in a large airplane by hard gusts are very severe; the strain on the structure is very great. The less the planes react to these air movements, which are precisely like the movements of high seas on the ocean and have the same effect on air borne craft that high seas have on water borne craft, the greater the safety factors, given a like degree of strength to begin with."

The flight of the future is going to avoid a lot of these gusts and bumps, Mr. Sikorsky said.

"It will be done by going high," he declared. "Good supercharging and adjustable pitch propellers serve to give the pilot wide ranges to choose from as to altitude. He may go 10,000, 15,000, 20,000 feet up. The air is almost always smoother there, so that both passengers and ship will be relieved of a great deal of strain.

"High flight, combined with relatively high wing loading, will make long journeys a great deal safer and more comfortable."

The trans-Atlantic plate must have at least four engines and the standard will probably be six engines, he continued. Each engine will have from 1,000 to 1,500 horsepower.

"There must be certain protection against the loss of an engine in ocean flight," he asserted. "It must be possible to fly at least 1,000 miles with one dead engine. Six engines will offer the utmost safety against mechanical trouble."

The aeronautical engineer, in designing a flying boat for long ocean flights, struggle with a three cornered problem, he said. He must get speed, load capacity and flying range. And to accent any one, he must sacrifice the others. Seaplanes must be sturdy and sturdiness implies additional weight. Therefore, the planes must be of great size so that this weight is not out of proportion to the other factors.

Great Liners of Future.

While the 100,000 pound ship is the logical step in ocean flying, Mr. Sikorsky foresees the construction of even greater air liners, he said.

"I can see within the next decade or so flying boats of several hundred tons weight," he declared, "with luxurious accommodations for passengers. There is no doubt in my mind that these liners of the air will connect all the important cities of the earth and place them within a couple of days' easy passage of another."

State of Washington 45 Yrs. Old; 1,563,396 People

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Washington state celebrated its 45th birthday today. When Washington became a territory it had only 1,632 voters. When its citizens balloted on the state constitution, there were 52,031. There were 658,000 voters registered for the last election. The population has grown in proportion. The territorial census showed 3,965 persons; at statehood there were about 349,000, and today there are more than 1,563,396.

G. O. P. FRIENDS HERE ACT TO NIP JOHNSON OUSTER

Committee Will Decide on Chief Tomorrow.

BY PERCY WOOD.

The Republican state central committee will decide at a meeting here tomorrow whether Justus L. Johnson of Aurora is to be retained as state chairman. An element in the Chicago group wants Johnson deposed because, it alleges, he "exceeded his authority" during the recent campaign and ran the show himself, neither asking nor accepting advice.

The anti-Johnson faction procured the signatures of all the ten Cook county committeemen in order to call the meeting which is to be held tomorrow at the Hamilton club. Three downstate committeemen have joined the Chicagoans to make up a majority voting bloc in the state committee. If these thirteen voted as a unit they could vote Johnson out.

Two new factors, however, threatened yesterday to change the picture. It was reported that many Republican ward committeemen were petitioning their state committeemen to support Johnson's tenure.

Chief's Backer Remains Mystery.

Just who intervened in the chairman's behalf and brought this pressure was not made clear, but it was said to be a man who, while never a candidate, has raised an influential voice in the county central committee's deliberations during the last few years.

The second factor, which might also work to Johnson's advantage, was his assertion that lawyers have told him the law provides for the succession of the first vice chairman to leadership of the committee in the event the chairman is "incapacitated."

Johnson's opponents plan to elect a downstater in his place and are said to be especially friendly to Committeeman John H. Searing of Carbondale, one of those who signed the meeting call. The first vice chairman is John F. Tyrrell of the Sixth [Chicago] district.

For many years it has been customary to chose a downstater as chairman because of the Cook county central committee's control in Chicago. Johnson's friends believe that if there were a possibility of a Chicagoan leading the committee, in the event of his ouster, the downstate members might not be so ready to vote him out.

Johnson to Be There.

Not all of the 25 committee members are expected to tomorrow's meeting. Committeeman James A. Henson of Decatur is ill and Chairman Johnson does not expect him to attend. Another downstater is understood to have an important business engagement which will prevent him from coming to Chicago. He is sending his proxy and power of attorney, however.

Although Johnson was uncertain Saturday whether he would attend, he said yesterday that he would be there "with nothing to cover up nor conceal."

"This move to oust me," the chairman added, "comes from disappointed committeemen who wanted to say how campaign funds should be spent. I was authorized to make expenditures and everything was done regularly. An audit of the books is being made in accordance with an agreement I made with the national committee. It will disclose how every dollar was spent.

"Our first $5,000 contribution came from the national committee. However, I will not reveal the names of other contributors, which is one of the things these fellows wish to know."

DEMOCRATS AT FRENCH LICK PUT GOLF GAME FIRST

Rumors of Courtney-Kelly Battle Squelched.

BY PARKE BROWN.

French Lick, Ind., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—It wasn't the influence of the Sabbath or of Armistice day that did it, but all the actual business before the Illinois Democratic powwow today was put off until tomorrow.

It wasn't the Sabbath because, if there were any actual understandings reached, they were established on the golf courses which were crowded after the morning church services. The Armistice day didn't have anything to do with it because Democratic peace has been a fact for a long time now and nobody would even think of starting a war.

So fixed is the belief that starting a row would be just plain hopeless that even those who have seen in recent newspaper articles what they considered somebody's effort to groom State's Attorney Courtney for the mayoralty race had their conjecturing put to an end by the arrival of the prosecutor this morning. He made a few private but emphatic replies to feelers directed at him.

He and Kelly in Foursome.

That Mayor Kelly and Courtney immediately arranged for a foursome, although they were opposed to each other in the match, also went a long way toward dissipating any rumors that the latter is a party to the grooming that seems to have been started. If the subject wasn't mentioned on any of the tees that was because it was considered unnecessary. While he is holding off on any statement until the mayor announces his own decision, it is believed certain that Courtney is 100 per cent for Kelly.

Search for the cause of delay on such matters as settling on a candidate for county recorder and picking a new chairman of the council committee on finance led to a conclusion that, with the Sabbath and Armistice day thrust aside, the postponement was due largely to the congestion of volunteer advisers who gathered around the big leaders seeking a chance for a few words in private.

It has been suggested, because of the amount of this activity among the 200 and more gathered here, that the meeting is really a convention of the buttonhole workers.

Two matters not exactly subjects for conference discussion, in spite of golf and other diversions did make considerable progress during the day. When Gov. Horner met with State Treasurer John C. Martin of Salem immediately after the latter's arrival it was settled that Mr. Martin, whose term expires this year, will be appointed chairman of the state tax commission to succeed Scott W. Lucas of Havana, elected to congress from the Twentieth district.

"If he will take it" was the governor's reply when he was asked whether he intended to appoint Martin. This was in the hotel lobby and Martin was just approaching. He was asked if he would "take it." His answer was in the affirmative.

Boom Liquor Board Head.

The other matter was the appointment of a secretary of the state liquor commission to succeed Congressman Elect James McAndrews of the Tenth district. Chicago leaders have presented the name of Joseph Delacour, secretary of the Democratic service men's organization. McAndrews is a resident of the Forty-second ward and the proposal of Delacour, also hailing from that area, came originally from the ward organization.

NEW DEAL CODES CALLED BARRIER TO U. S. RECOVERY

Economist Urges Return to Free Competition.

The advances in knowledge which have resulted in an increase in income for the great majority of persons have been the direct result of the capitalistic order, and these advances and coincident benefits can be retained only under a system which allows liberty of action, with competition as a restraining and guiding force.

This was the belief expressed by Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, noted economist and former adviser of the United States treasury at the beginning of the New Deal administration, in an address before the Chicago Forum in the Goodman theater yesterday. Prof. Sprague criticized the National Recovery administration as an ineffectual means of pulling the nation out of the depression.

Defends Capitalistic System.

"The advantages of the capitalistic régime are fairly obvious," he said. "First, it is advantageous for the variety of life it permits. Secondly, the system provides a fairly broad freedom of choice. In the last century there has been a decided increase in the number of persons enjoying these two great advantages, and it is possible to increase this number still more.

"If business were organized under a monopoly, or if regimentation under such agencies as the NRA were carried to a great extent, the chief advantages of capitalism would be lost," the speaker said. He termed the elimination of free competition and self-government of business groups as the greatest danger to the capitalistic system.

"In the eagerness of business men to form self-regulatory industries and to obtain the maximum of profit," he said, "they are further weakening the structure. We are now too prone to destroy competition under the New Deal legislation."

Attacks Code Practices.

One of the main objections to governmental regimentation schemes, he said, is the consideration of individual industries and establishment of specific practices for those industries by code authorities without relative consideration of other industries or the effect on all industry or the country as a whole. Very slight progress of a substantial nature has been made in the last year, he said, with spending by the government merely serving as a stopgap and making no permanent effect in ending the depression.

The increase of production by improved technological methods, while there was no consequent increase in demand, was blamed by Prof. Sprague as a primal cause in the depression.

"Capitalism," he said, "cannot be blamed for this situation. Business men, trying for the maximum of profit, did not pass on to consumers the decrease in cost, in the form of lower prices, and as a result increased demand did not result. The decrease in production under the New Deal is not a solution. A system of free competition, with the consequent decrease in price to consumer, will do more than anything else to eradicate this situation."

ITALY'S KING 65; GETS GREETINGS IN AFRICAN CITY

MOGDISHU, Italian Somaliland, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Cables flowed into this little African city from all parts of the world today to congratulate King Victor Emmanuel of Italy on his 65th birthday. Kings, presidents, and dictators sent felicitations to the monarch, who is on a 15 day inspection trip of Italian colonial possessions. A message from Premier Mussolini was one of the many that arrived.

The king celebrated his birthday inspecting villages in the brilliant hinterland on the return route from Baidoa, where he reviewed native troops yesterday. He was scheduled to return to Mogdishu Nov. 16 after a big game hunt in the jungles of Kisimajo.

The king's birthday was being celebrated in Italy with festivities rivaling the Armistice day celebrations in other allied countries. Italians observe Armistice day Nov. 4, the date of the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian forces, which meant the end of the war for Italy.

ARIZONA TROOPS READY TO MOVE INTO DAM ZONE

Governor Pins Hope on Roosevelt.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 11.—(AP)—More than 100 Arizona National Guardsmen were ready tonight for instant mobilization, awaiting orders from Gov. B. B. Moeur to move into the martial law zone declared by him on the Arizona side of the Parker dam site on the Colorado river.

Meanwhile, Gov. Moeur sought "some word from Washington" before following up the martial law proclamation with movement of troops.

Real Showdown Now.

"It's a showdown this time," the governor said.

Gov. Moeur indicated he expected Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes or President Roosevelt to halt construction of a temporary bridge at the dam site until some assurance is given Arizona that the proposed contract with the federal government for half of the power generated at the dam will be signed.

Secretary Ickes suggested yesterday that court action is the proper procedure.

"Court action is too slow," the Arizona governor said. "They might divert the course of the Colorado river and drain it dry before we could obtain results in the courts."

Approval of the proposed contract protecting Arizona's rights to waters of the Colorado would settle the controversy which has been waged spasmodically for more than a decade, since it provides that Arizona "will not interfere by litigation or otherwise" with construction of Parker dam.

Agrees on Power.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP)—W. P. Whitsett, chairman of the metropolitan water district board of directors, said today he "heartily agreed" with Gov. B. B. Moeur that Arizona should have one-half of the power privilege at the Parker dam.

"It is to be hoped that the federal government and the state of Arizona will be able to reach an accord enabling the construction work to proceed," he said. "The advantages which will accrue to both Arizona and California more than justify the building of Parker dam at this time."

Anti-Nazi Boycott World Meet to Be Held in London

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The international conference on the anti-German boycott being carried on by Jewish and several other organizations opposed to Hitlerism will open here Nov. 26, it was announced today. Delegates from seventeen nations were expected. Samuel Untermeyer of New York will preside over the Jewish section of the conference.

FIRE KILLS TWO MINERS.

SCHUMACHER, Ont., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Trapped in their three room shack north of here when fire destroyed it today, Thomas Teasdale, 53, and William Dawson, 34, both miners, were burned to death.

RUSSIA IS IRKED; RANKS 2D TO U. S. IN IRON OUTPUT

President Kalinin Wants Faster Production.

MOSCOW, Nov. 11.—(AP)—President Michael Kalinin is not satisfied, he disclosed today, with the prospect that the U. S. S. R. will rank second next year only to the United States in iron and steel production.

"Our country soaks up metal as a sponge soaks up water," he declared to the Moscow soviet in an address commemorating the bolshevist government's 17th birthday. "It requires metal as the steppes need water."

Although the U. S. S. R. averaged a daily production of 30,900 tons of pig iron in October, as against 19,800 last year, and expects to average 35,000 next year, Kalinin said he felt impatient when he contemplated that the United States produced 125,000 tons of pig iron and 75,000 tons of steel daily in 1929.

Urges Faster Production.

With the soviet's railways, its fleet, its machine industries and its building industries so sorely in need of iron and steel, Kalinin urged the necessity for more rapid production of metals, especially steel, which lags behind pig iron, while other industrial countries produce more steel than pig iron.

President Kalinin in commenting on the small amount of scrap iron available in Russia, said the old buildings which must be replaced contain but little metal, and that peasants of pre-revolution days seldom had more than 100 pounds of iron in their farming implements.

Russian pig iron production in 1934 is estimated at 10,000,000 tons and steel production 9,800,000 tons.

Noses Out Germany.

The estimated 10,000,000 ton pig iron production for the year noses Germany out of her place as second producer in the world.

The newspaper Izvestia, in announcing the estimated total early this month, said Germany's maximum possible production was only 8,600,000 tons, while her maximum for steel was 11,500,000 tons.

It was expected also that Russia's production for the year of steel and rolled metal would shove Great Britain out of third place and put Russia next to Germany and the United States in that category.

Approves Soviet Diplomacy.

Kalinin, in his address expressed approval of soviet diplomacy in the last year and said he considered it certain that two years of troubled negotiations with Japan over the sale of the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchukuo will soon be brought to a satisfactory close.

He said the government's grain reserves this year will surpass those of last year in spite of a dry spring in many grain districts. He said the increase was due to superior organization.

ranks of those who are shipped to join the "kulaks" in Siberia.

Work as Slaves.

These laborers, like slaves, receive only food, clothing and shelter. They are doing most of the work in double-tracking the Trans-Siberian railway and in building the other railways in the far east. If they do this work well they may be shifted to a collective or state farm, where more congenial labor is provided. In time they may be allowed to have a small piece of land for themselves and get back their citizenship rights, such as they are. The average rehabilitation period is said to be five years.

In the meantime these laborers constitute an "oppressed" class in this allegedly classless society. They are controled entirely by the G. P. U. (soviet secret police), and are shifted from one job to another as they are needed.

Recently they completed a canal connecting the White sea with the Gulf of Finland at Leningrad. Now they are being transferred to the new Siberian military-industrial projects by the thousands—some say as many as 800,000.

Outposts in Arctic.

While the drive to fortify Asia along the Trans-Siberian railway is proceeding, another dramatic campaign is being pushed beyond the Arctic circle. The Russians this year succeeded in sending the icebreaker Litke from the far east through the Arctic to Leningrad. Five other vessels are battling the ice now to carry supplies to frontier outposts established at the mouths of Siberian rivers flowing into the Arctic.

This area is forbidden to visitors, the alleged reason being that many of the camps contain political prisoners. Another probable reason is that the bolsheviks believe they have discovered another route to the far east to supplement the rather precariously situated Trans-Siberian railway.

The whole of Asiatic Russia, according to Moscow spokesmen, will receive from the capital expenditures of the second Five Year Plan, 49 per cent of the outlay for coal mining, 41 per cent of the iron and steel investment, 37 per cent of the heavy industry, 71 per cent of the nonferrous metal industry, 27 per cent of the machine building industry, and 34 per cent of the chemical industry.

Potential Military Expenditures.

Most of these expenditures, it will be noted, fall in industries which are potentially military. Russia must starve for the necessities of life until the Reds finish their task of making the far east the strongest area in either Europe or Asia from a miltary standpoint.

Even now foreign observers, who are familiar with the situation, agree that soviet Russia is today far more able to wage a war than during the last years under the czar. They agree that Japan in occupying Manchuria failed to block the state capitalistic development of the Russian far east.

Russian influence is now predominant in Chinese Sinkiang, or Turkestan, west of Mongolia. The soviet government insists it does not want any of this Chinese territory. On the other hand, many observers believe the bolsheviks would not object if sections of the frontier along the soviet border formed their own independent "republics" and asked to be taken into the communist "paradise."

H. L. STUART GOES ON STAND TODAY IN INSULL TRIAL

Harold L. Stuart, investment banker and co-defendant with Samuel Insull and fifteen others on trial for mail fraud before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, will take the witness stand this morning when the case is resumed after a two day recess.

Stuart is expected to spend the day on the stand and may face cross-examination this afternoon. It was indicated by Special Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter that Stuart will be asked to explain four points: First, the charge of concealing assets of the Corporation Securities company, defunct Insull investment trust on whose operations the mail fraud charges are based; second, charging of organization expense of the corporation to capital surplus; third, "pegging" of the corporation stock by so-called wash sales, and fourth, soliciting the public to buy the corporation stock through use of the mails.

The defense is expected to complete the presentation of its evidence by the end of the week, according to Chief Defense Attorney Floyd E. Thompson. Arguments for a directed verdict will follow the defense closing, it was said, and if such a motion is overruled closing arguments will begin.

MEXICAN POLICE GET ORDERS TO ARREST 2 CATHOLIC LEADERS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Police received orders today to arrest Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, papal delegate to Mexico, and Jose de Jesus Manrique y Zarate, bishop of Huejutla, Hidalgo, on charges that they fostered rebellion. The orders were issued by Attorney General Portes Gil after he had investigated allegedly seditious activities by the Catholic clergy.

Both Ruiz y Flores and Manrique y Zarate are in exile in the United States. The attorney general instructed police to take them into custody if they tried to reënter the country.

No charges were brought against Pascual Diaz, archbishop of Mexico, who has continued his religious duties here, or other functionaries of the church now in Mexico.

The accusations against Ruiz y Flores and Manrique y Zarate were based on letters they had written. The government held that matter in the letters violated religious laws and constituted incitment to rebellion.

HUNT POLICEMAN MISSING AFTER START FOR POLLS

Police have begun a search for Patrolman John Farrell, 35 years old, 5939 South Rockwell street, a member of the south parks force for 12 years, who disappeared last Tuesday after he left his home to vote at the polls at 60th street and Talman avenue, it was learned yesterday.

Farrell, known familiarly as "Buck," who recently has been stationed at 47th street and South Park way, left his home wearing a brown fedora hat, a tweed topcoat, and dark brown suit. He was described as 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighing about 200 pounds. He has dark brown hair. He had been troubled recently with headaches, according to relatives, and it was feared he might have suffered a loss of memory. His family includes his wife and two children, Jack, 5 years old, and Peggy, 4.

ANCIENT ALASKAN CHAPEL RESTORED TO RUSSIAN FAITH

SEWARD, Alaska, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The ritual of the Russian orthodox Catholic church is being heard again in the old monastery of Afognak Island, where the church ministered to Indian and Eskimo for hundreds of years. Faithful native followers of the church, rehabilitating the ruins of the monastery, have built a house and refurnished the ancient chapel.

The monastery at Ousinkie was a religious power in the land in the days of the czars, but the number of monks declined after the United States purchased "Seward's folly" from Russia in 1867. The last monk at the monastery became a legendary figure. He was a giant of a man, much like the friar Tuck of Robin Hood's band.

Nicolai Shusharankin, 80 year old patriarch of the natives, today told the story of the monk's last night. He passed the evening alone dining, meditating by candle light, and toward morning flames rising from the monastery told the terrified natives what had happened. In general, the old chapel is much as it was in the old days, and with Father Grassin, who fled the Russian revolution, living in the new house, the natives are expected to flock again to Monk's lagoon.

HIS COTTAGE IS READY FOR ROOSEVELTS AT WARM SPRINGS, GA.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's Georgia home is prepared to facilitate his desire for rest and recreation when he comes here for his annual Thanksgiving holiday. The President's six room cottage is all ready for its occupants, Dr. Michael Hoke, resident surgeon of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, and his family occupy the Roosevelt cottage except when the President is here for his vacation. Then they move to another cottage.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

DIXIE CHAIRMEN TO HOLD EDGE IN 74TH CONGRESS

Long Service Gives Them Posts of Power.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The overwhelming victory in last Tuesday's election gave the northern and border state Democrats a majority in the 74th congress, but the southern Democrats will still be "in the saddle" by virtue of their long service and the seniority rule in the senate and house.

Twenty-six of the 47 house committees are now headed by southerners and the number may be increased unless some chairmen of minor committees step aside in favor of their northern colleagues. Seventeen of the 33 chairmanships of senate committees are now held by southerners and the election will not make any changes. The outstanding effect of the election, from the standpoint of the senate, was the lopping off of the eastern Republicans and leaving the way open for domination by the western radicals should the Republicans come back into power.

Couzens Next in Line.

Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, for example, was the ranking Republican member of both the finance and military affairs committees of the senate, and his defeat leaves James Couzens of Michigan and Bronson Cutting of New Mexico as the respective ranking Republicans of these committees. Cutting's opponent, Dennis Chavez, has not conceded defeat, but he has fallen more than 1,000 votes behind in the New Mexico returns.

Other important committees that would be headed by western Republican senators should their party gain control are: Agriculture, George W. Norris of Nebraska; foreign relations, William E. Borah of Idaho; banking and currency, Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, and judiciary, Borah. The appropriations chairmanship would go to Frederick Hale of Maine.

It still appears that Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, majority leader in the house of the 73d congress, will be elected speaker to succeed the late Henry T. Rainey of Illinois. In this event, Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama, now chairman of the rules committee, would succeed Mr. Byrns as floor leader under the seniority rules. Representative John J. O'Connor of New York would likewise succeed to the chairmanship of the rules committee, thereby affording some recognition to the north, for this is a powerful committee.

Expect Election of Byrns.

The cry of "down with the solid south," raised by the northerners two years ago, is now being repeated by Representative Martin J. Kennedy of New York, who claims that his state is entitled to the speakership. It is regarded as unlikely, however, that even the northern Democrats will support a Tammany man for the speakership and that the seniority rule will prevail, with the elevation of Representative Byrns. The same principle is expected to prevail if the northerners object to the election of southerners to both the speakership and majority leader posts.

The following new chairmen of house committees will be elected when congress convenes if the seniority rule is followed: Claims, Robert Ramspeck of Georgia; education, Vincent L. Palmisano of Maryland; election of president and vice president, Brooks Fletcher of Ohio; Indian affairs, Wilburn Cartwright, Oklahoma; irrigation and reclamation, Allard H. Gasque, South Carolina; memorials, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, New Jersey; pensions, Will Rogers, Oklahoma; roads, William M. Whittington, Mississippi; rules, O'Connor, New York.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

November 11, 1934.

TRIPLE-A tinkering with the farmers' live stock production and feeding business and the drouth will cause a heavy loss this year in hogs at the Tribune Experimental farm according to Clarence Thurow, manager.

Mr. Thurow, who refused to sign the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's corn-hog contract last spring, has been forced to adopt the policy of marketing his hogs in an unfinished condition. During the last few weeks he has been following the practice of sorting out the long, lean bodied hogs when they get to weighing from 150 to 200 pounds and putting them on the market.

Ordinarily the hogs would be kept and fattened until they weighed about 225 to 250 pounds each before they were sold. But this year the dry weather reduced the yield of ear corn to only a few bushels to the acre, leaving the farm with insufficient corn properly to finish the hogs for the market.

"With the processing tax of $2.25 a hundred taken off the price of every hog, we must sell them at a loss," explained Mr. Thurow. "With hog prices low and corn prices relatively high it would not pay us to buy grain to finish our pigs for the market. About the first of October I culled out 63 head of hogs and sent them to market. Of these, 27 head brought only 6 cents a pound, and the remainder, or 36 head, brought only 4¾ cents a pound with the processing tax of $2.25 a hundred deducted.

"Since I refused to sign the AAA corn-hog contract," Mr. Thurow continued, "the government will not pay back to me any of the processing tax taken from my hog check. With corn at 77 cents a bushel I cannot afford to feed it to cheap hogs. I am 'hog poor' and will be compelled to continue selling at a sacrifice price."

Last week Mr. Thurow sold 43 more hogs, including six sows taken from his breeding herd. More than 200 head are left on the farm, including several small pigs. All of the hogs left, excepting the sows, will go the way of the rest—they will be kept until they weigh about 150 to 200 pounds and then sold in an unfinished condition.

HERMIT BANKER WILL HELP U.S. TO UNRAVEL BOOKS

Although the United States attorney's office is ready to bring Nicholas A. Schwall, former assistant cashier of the First National bank of Wilmette who absconded with $56,000, into court today, it was indicated last night that his arraignment would be delayed to allow the prisoner to help the federal receiver straighten out the bank's books.

Schwall was arrested Saturday in a backwoods cabin near Conover, Wis., and he has announced his intention of pleading guilty when he is brought before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on an embezzlement charge.

The receiver of the bank, which closed in June, 1932, is Melvin B. Ericson, who brought about Schwall's arrest and whom Schwall has agreed to help on the books.

It is planned to hold Schwall in the Lake county jail at Waukegan, and to take him daily to the Waukegan National bank, of which Ericson is also receiver, to work on the Wilmette bank records.

In anouncing his readiness to take Schwall into court at once, Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton disclosed that there are reports of Schwall being involved with one or more women. The cashier, in his Waukegan cell, has said he lost the money in stock speculations.

Ericson reported that the bank funds had been stolen over a period of at least three years, and that Schwall's defalcations could not be accurately determined. Schwall, an assistant cashier, drew $4,000 a year, the receiver said, and belonged to several country clubs.

Bank Records Manipulated.

In Wilmette it was said that while Schwall comported himself as a north shore suburbanite of means, he was careful, as a banker, not to direct suspicion against himself by lavish expenditures. His peculations were covered by falsification of depositors' accounts, it was explained, and he had to be careful to be present at the end of each month and falsify balances when statements were sent to the depositors, sending one set of figures to the customer and recording a different set.

Prosecutor Leaton said he was told that Schwall's wife was a semi-invalid and that Schwall, who is 40 years old, was frequently seen in Chicago's bright spots with a young woman. Mrs. Schwall, who became a mother a few months after her husband's disappearance, which was shortly after the closing of the bank, could not be interviewed in her home in Wilmette yesterday. She did not go to the jail to visit him.

Schwall's mother, Mrs. Mary Schwall, died last April in Wilmette, and his two brothers, Joseph of Milwaukee and Andrew of Wilmette, who visited him yesterday, recounted how they had tried to reach him by radio to tell him of her death. Schwall declared he would have returned if he had learned of his mother's death, but he didn't know about it until yesterday. He recalled that his radio was not in operation in April.

SADDLE HORSE SALES INCREASE AT BETTER PRICES, DEALER SAYS

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The saddle horse business is on the mend. A picture of the general situation was given today by Alfred S. Eads, a dealer who has just returned to his headquarters at Grove Park after the seasonal round of horse shows and sales.

"More people are buying horses and they're paying anywhere from 25 to 100 per cent more for them than they did a year or so ago," he said.

He told of one sale in Kansas City at which thirty-five horses sold for approximately $48,000 at one session.

ASKS FORCED SCHOOL ATTENDANCE BASED ON MATURITY OF MIND

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Dr. John Guy Fowlkes, University of Wisconsin education professor, tonight told the New Jersey Teachers' association that compulsory school attendance should be based on the pupil's real maturity of mind, not on his age.

"It is high time our compulsory attendance laws were revised," the speaker said, "so that they are based on intellectual, social and civic maturity rather than how long a person has breathed."

Teachers were urged by Dr. E. E. Oberholtzer, superintendent of schools in Houston, Tex., to concentrate on that class of American youth "trapped in the economic and social maelstrom of these times."

"We must cease talking about educating the next generation until we provide education for this generation," he said.

Frank G. Pickell of Montclair was renominated as president of the association. The slate recommended without opposition by the nominating committee includes Leon N. Neulen of Camden, first vice president.

HUTCHINS AND 2 MADE ROSENWALD FUND TRUSTEES

Three new trustees of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, including Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, were elected at the annual meeting Saturday. The others are Frank L. Sulzberger, president of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, and Dr. Charles S. Johnson, head of the department of social science at Fisk university.

Dr. Johnson, author of "The Negro in Chicago," is engaged in research work for the TVA. Regarding his appointment, Edwin R. Embree, president of the fund, said:

"While several foundations have given largely to Negro welfare, this is the first case in which a large national foundation has elected a Negro to its board of trustees."

Despondent Over Studies, Student, 17, Ends Life

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Despondent over difficulties in his studies, John N. Houck, 17, a first year pupil at Lafayette High school, was found dead in bed today from a self-administered anesthetic, the medical examiner said.

Two Families Are Routed by $2,000 Fire in Flats

Two families were driven into the street last night by a $2,000 fire in a two story frame building at 3509 Janssen avenue. The blaze was believed to have been started by a defective heater in the first floor apartment occupied by Mrs. John Wolkman and her daughter Irene. They warned Mrs. Lena Sandburg, residing in the second floor apartment, who hurried her four children to safety.

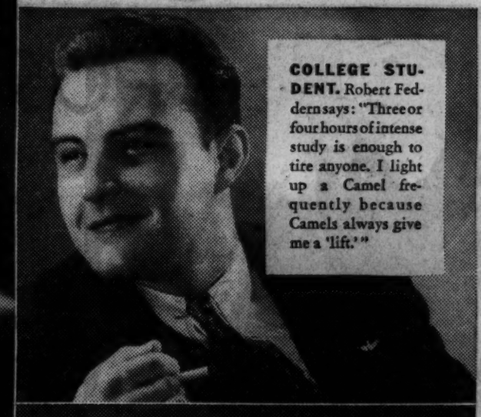
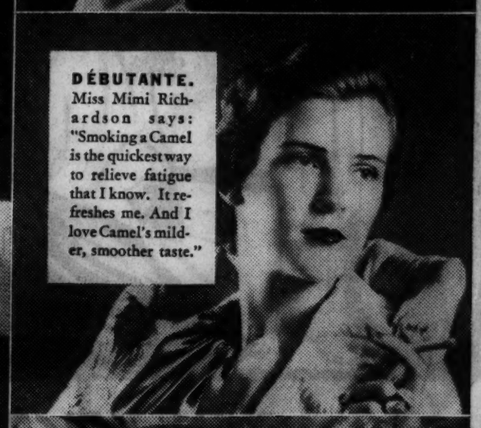
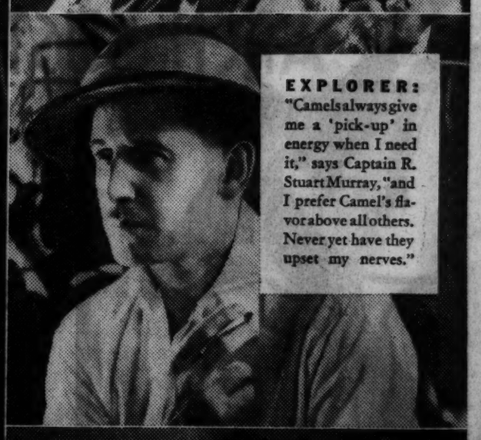
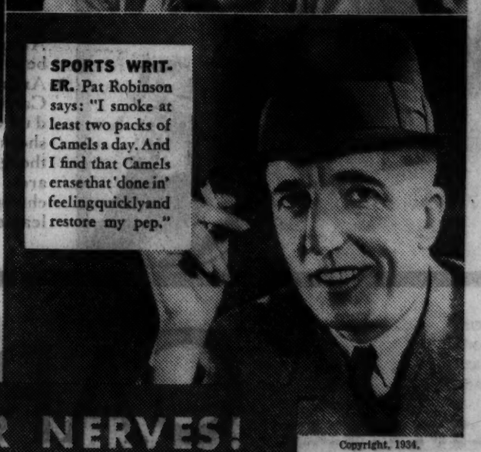
NEED MORE ENERGY?...

GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!
● "Cliff" Montgomery, football's famous hero who led the East to victory over the West last year in the sensational Rose Bowl game, is now starring with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Like all athletes, "Cliff" knows how important it is to keep his energy at its natural level. He says: "Football is tough—tense—tiring—enough to exhaust anybody's energy. After a game, or any time I feel like it, I light up a Camel—get a swell 'lift'—and in a short time I feel 100% again. I like Camel's mellow taste ...am seldom without one. And I find that Camels don't interfere with healthy nerves."


COLLEGE STUDENT. Robert Feddersays: "Three or four hours of intense study is enough to tire anyone. I light up a Camel frequently because Camels always give me a 'lift.'"


DÉBUTANTE. Miss Mimi Richardson says: "Smoking a Camel is the quickest way to relieve fatigue that I know. It refreshes me. And I love Camel's milder, smoother taste."


EXPLORER: "Camels always give me a 'pick-up' in energy when I need it," says Captain R. Stuart Murray, "and I prefer Camel's flavor above all others. Never yet have they upset my nerves."


SPORTS WRITER. Pat Robinson says: "I smoke at least two packs of Camels a day. And I find that Camels erase that 'done in' feeling quickly and restore my pep."
TOBACCO EXPERTS ALL SAY:
"Camels are made from finer, More Expensive Tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."

SLIGHTLY FEEBLE MINDED GERMANS TO BE STERILIZED

National Feeling Runs High, Nazis Learn.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Germany's "slightly feeble-minded" are to be included in the Nazi sterilization program for the elimination of future generations of physically and mentally unfit, it was disclosed today by Dr. Von Holst of the Danzig municipal offices.

Meanwhile national feelings on the subject were running high and unforeseen complications were cropping up.

A Nazi party bulletin circulated today called the sterilization and emasculation program the "mere beginnings" of a national "purge," while simultaneously at Moabit prison the sexual treatment of 111 habitual criminals since Nov. 11, 1933, was announced.

Two Catholics Dismissed.

This was taken to indicate the Nazis do not propose to abandon the sterilization law which went into effect Jan. 1, 1934, but there was much comment on news from Braunsberg yesterday that Professors Carl Eschweiler and Johannes Baron of the Roman Catholic academy there had been dismissed in orders from the Vatican after having recently rendered an expert opinion that sterilization is not incompatible with Catholicism.

In a purported exposé of "self-mutilation" the Nazi bulletin disclosed that German men and women were seeking to evade compulsory incarceration in labor camps by incapacitating themselves physically like army dodgers in war days.

Dr. Von Holst, in a talk on schools for the mentally retarded, did not define what he meant exactly by "slightly feeble-minded," but said "every case will be examined with German thoroughness and sterilization will be performed where it is required."

Comes Under Eugenics Law.

The feeble-minded are one class to which the Nazi eugenics law is applied. This law is separate from the one in the penal code which calls for emasculation of criminal offenders.

Von Holst said American and German statistics showed that 1 per cent to 1½ per cent of a country's population is feeble-minded. He explained that the "heavy" feeble-minded class is less a menace than the "lighter," because the latter more easily escapes identification.

Typical of the prevailing Nazi preoccupation with matters of birth and borth control was a bitter controversy over "family or free love." The "family" advocates were represented by the Nazi racial department of Saxony in a statement against remarks of radical Nazi opponents.

"With the overwhelming number of illegitimate children today," said the Saxony statement, "no subordinate 'sick race' can ever be purified."

LAWYER ASSAILS CODE AUTHORITY STAND ON NRA

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Leonard Weinberg, attorney for L. Greif & Brother in the company's legal battle against the NRA, charged in a statement today that "every attempt to get a decision from the courts [regarding the constitutionality of the code] is being obstructed and impeded by the code authorities."

Weinberg's statement was issued following filing in United States District court of a petition asking modification of an order signed by Federal Judge William C. Coleman dismissing a previous order restraining agents of the NRA and the Clothing Code authority from taking Greif's Blue Eagle away.

Saying that the "Greif case is finished and the NRA soon will be," Weinberg reiterated previous statements by him that the code is unconstitutional. "The attempted enforcement of many of the codes, and particularly of the men's clothing code, by the code authorities must necessarily lead to inequalities," he said.

"From the very day when the government first approached us with the request that we settle the Greif case, we have insisted that if we did settle the case it would be only with the understanding that we were not admitting the constitutionality or validity of the act or of the code," Weinberg said.

BAVARIAN BISHOP BIDS FOLLOWERS TO BACK HITLER

5,000 Hear Him Pray for Dictator.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, Nov. 11.—"Peace and order have been restored in the Protestant church of Bavaria. The faithful must serve the German state and its leaders as the truest of the true."

Bishop Hans Meisser of Bavaria delivered these words at St. Matthew's church today. It was his first sermon in Munich since his captivity at the hands of Nazi church authorities and his subsequent reinstatement.

The church was built to hold 3,000 persons, but a congregation of 5,000 was parked inside to hear the bishop.

Asks Support for Hitler.

Meisser in his sermon enjoined churchgoers to support Chancellor Adolf Hitler. He climaxed his sermon with a prayer for "our fuehrer and chancellor, may he complete the great work of rescuing the nation."

The bishop referred to "the evil days" behind him and thanked his followers for their loyalty.

"We have our constitutional church leader back in Bavaria, but in other parts of Germany peace and order still are missing," he said. "We must stand fast in our loyalty."

The six-man executive council of the world Christian churches, headed by the American, Prof. Morehead, will meet in Munich Thursday. Bishop Marahrens of Hanover is the German member of the committee. The meeting will end with "Martin Luther evening" on Nov. 22, which is scheduled to be the biggest Protestant rally ever held in Bavaria.

Renew Fight Against 'Dictatorship.'

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP)—There were indications in Stuttgart and Berlin today that the battle of independent Protestants against Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller's "dictatorship" is still being waged.

Bishop Theophil Wurm of Wuerttemberg was accorded a great ovation by thousands of his followers, including theological students of Tuebingen university, following his sermon at Stuttgart.

Pastors at Wuerttemberg sent a protest to Nazi Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick against "unworthy state affairs" in the Wuerttemberg church. They demanded the removal of "doubtful elements from church offices."

About 600 of a congregation of 800 in a west end Berlin church got up and went out the door when Bishop Eckert, acting Nazi German Christian bishop of Berlin introduced to the congregation a new German Christian pastor who was to replace the confessional synod [oppositionist] minister.

AGAIN THE CANADIAN SEAWAY.

The President, at his press conference on Friday, left no doubt that he would reintroduce the Canadian seaway treaty. It may undergo some modification, he intimated, but the restrictions on the withdrawal of water from Lake Michigan will remain unchanged.

That being his intention, it behooves commercial interests up and down the Mississippi valley to organize in defense of their rights and their economic future. They succeeded in defeating ratification at the last session and they can succeed again if the task is undertaken with enthusiasm. Democratic senators from the lower Mississippi valley played an important part in the American victory at the last session. Last week's election has not changed in any particular the economic interest of the Mississippi states in an adequate flow of water in the river.

On the contrary, the case for opposition to the treaty in its present form has been immensely strengthened of late. The government of Ontario has indicated that it will not coöperate to the extent of paying for hydro-electric works which Canada expected to build. Without Ontario's coöperation there is no reason to expect the fulfilment of Canada's obligations under the contract. It would be stupid to make a contract with Canada without any assurance that Canada can or will perform her share of the work.

The reasons which led Ontario to withdraw will operate as well to discourage New York from undertaking her corresponding share of the American obligation. The St. Lawrence hydro-electric program is essentially unsound, as competent engineers have repeatedly pointed out, because there is no market for the power to be produced. That generalization holds good on both sides of the international frontier. Ontario's government has been a little more alert than New York's in recognizing the economic folly of the enthusiasts, but New York must also be expected to have a second thought.

A pretty clear foretaste of what is in store for this country if it recklessly goes ahead with the project is provided in news from the southwest. Pasadena, Burbank, and Glendale all contracted to take power from Boulder dam and on the basis of these contracts the construction of the dam was authorized. Already Pasadena has discovered that there is no market for the 68 million kilowatt hours which the city had contracted to take annually and is asking for a three year delay in delivery of the full load until a market can be built up. Glendale is asking for five years and Burbank for seven. The Electrical World estimates that if the postponements are granted the cost to the taxpayers of the United States will be at least $2,500,000.

That puts the government in a hot spot. Politically it is not prudent to antagonize a large voting population. More than that, the collection of the bills might well bankrupt the communities concerned. In justice and no doubt in law, the Californians ought not be given any relief, but in fact they will probably get it. The repudiation will be paid for by the taxpayers of the United States and by investors in existing power services.

The quantities of power to be produced on the St. Lawrence are far greater than will be developed at Boulder dam and the marketing problem will be correspondingly more difficult to solve. Unlike Pasadena, which did not seek to repudiate until after the power plant was in process of construction, Ontario has already served its notice of noncoöperation. To ratify the treaty under such circumstances is to invite trouble and exceedingly expensive trouble at that. Ratification can hardly fail to lead to unfriendly relations with Canada, with no gains to compensate for the ill feeling.

BABE RUTH'S AMBASSADORS.

Reports from Japan by radio and cable reveal the Japanese people in an animated state of great good will toward the United States. At least it would be assumed that a party of traveling Americans could not be received with so much popular delight without their country sharing some of the general affection. These ambassadors of good will are American league barnstorming baseball players under the management of Connie Mack, with Babe Ruth as No. 1 boy in the admiration of the Japanese baseball fans, who appear to include about the entire population.

Manchukuo may be vexatious and the naval ratio a thorn in the international flesh, but international baseball seems to have wiped out the most painful recollections of former Secretary Stimson's lone campaign for the integrity of Manchuria and the nine power nonaggression treaty. The Japanese are great baseball sportsmen and would rather, apparently, have their teams lose to Ruth's home runs than to win the games with Ruth hitless. At this writing he has knocked only two over the fence, but these are his closing days in active baseball and the reverential Japanese will probably make allowance for that.

Japanese baseball is amateur baseball, not in the sense of being inferior but because it is virtually all college sport. The colleges were expert enough to take a majority of games from the touring Harvard players last summer and they are good enough to make interesting exhibition games with the American professionals. The Babe himself says that the time is coming when the Japanese players can more than hold their own in any international series, and we may soon see the world's championship mean something more than an exclusively American title.

International sports frequently make more animosities than they allay, but this sport in its present development in Japan produces nothing but cordiality, and it will be more difficult for two people who are in accord in this respect to find foolish things to disturb their good relations. Mr. Ruth is through with the active game and looking for a job as manager. If suitably tempted he might change the direction of his ambition and be willing to serve a spell as ambassador extraordinary to Japan, with the specific job of organizing baseball there and putting international friendship on a stable basis. Then everybody might forget about battleships and think only of baseball bats.

RECENT ACHIEVEMENTS IN AVIATION.

Aviators have provided us with first page news on two occasions during the past few weeks aside from the London to Melbourne race. First Lieut. Francesco Agello, nicknamed by his countrymen the "Crazy Boy" of Italian aviation, established a world's speed record of 440.29 miles per hour, slightly over 7⅓ miles per minute, the equivalent of New York to Chicago in less than two hours, Chicago to Los Angeles in four and one-half hours, across our continent between luncheon and dinner.

Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith completed his long flight from Brisbane, Australia, to San Francisco, making the last hop from Honolulu in fifteen hours, thus foreshadowing a possible schedule of a single day from Chicago to Honolulu, as compared with yesterday's rail-steamship schedule of over a week. Impossible? Not at all. The same objection would have been raised a few years ago to a prophecy of four and one-half hour flights between New York and Chicago.

Lieut. Agello's accomplishment was the greater of the two. His plane had been especially built to establish a record and was probably useless after the flight. He has, however, made a signal contribution to the science of air aviation through proving the feasibility of successful flight at higher speeds. The aircraft builder now has practical confirmation of his theories concerning wing and fuselage design for faster airplanes and additional knowledge of stresses set up in a ship moving at increased velocities. The daredevil must perform these feats at great personal danger so that the traveling public of the future will have the advantage of faster commercial schedules that may be flown with comfort and confidence.

Kingsford-Smith's record in having flown the Pacific ocean in both easterly and westerly directions is of less scientific value, but nevertheless inspirational. We already knew that the distance could be flown—a squadron of our naval air force flew from San Francisco to Honolulu as a "routine transfer." It now remains for our experts to develop an amphibian that will be seaworthy in choppy water if a forced landing in mid-ocean is unavoidable. Then passenger, mail, and express service to our island possessions will become an accomplished fact.

A WAY TO FINANCE THE OUTER BRIDGE.

The city council has approved a resolution calling upon the state to assist in the completion of the outer drive bridge. Illinois is said to have 9 million dollars of federal highway money available for the purpose. Why, asks the council, should this money not be used in completing the outer bridge?

If there is an answer to this question, we can't guess what it is. The only better use to which the money could be put in Illinois is in the construction of an elevated highway through the west side and it is not certain that even such a superhighway would carry as many automobiles each day as will cross the outer bridge once it is completed. At the moment there seems to be no agreement among officials on the merits of the west side project and in the absence of an agreement the outer bridge stands alone. In any list of highway projects in Illinois it must be No. 1 in point of usefulness as measured by traffic density, in point of the investment already made by the local governments toward completing the route, and in the certainty that there will be no delay, once the appropriation is made, in putting men to work on the job.

Tens of thousands of downstate motorists who visited the Fair can measure the potential value of the outer bridge as well as any Chicagoan can. If there is any road project in Chicago which they will indorse it is that one. The council's suggestion is an excellent one and should be vigorously pressed.

Editorial of the Day

ITEM ON CHILD CARE.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The old fashioned parent who respected and heeded the ancient maxim, "Spare the rod and spoil the child," at last has found a modern psychologist who feels much the same way. She is Dr. Grace Adams, well known child psychologist and writer. Dr. Adams dismisses as so much flapdoodle the warnings of advanced preceptors about physical punishment setting up all sort of ruinous inhibitions, frustrations and repressions in the youthful psyche. For a child under 4, she says, one slap is worth an hour of reasoning. Many a parent has found it so, not because the youngster doesn't understand reasoning, but because sharp little Junior can rebut instantly daddy's best ordered arguments, or, just as effectively, can disregard them. This leaves daddy looking pretty silly, and the disciplinary problem remains unsolved. A well timed slap or a spanking judiciously administered often clears the atmosphere and has been found to have great educational value.

Are those who hold this philosophy unfeeling brutes? We don't think so. Anyway, it is an experiment well worth trying on that type of juvenile known to the doting mother as a "problem child" and to the suffering neighbors as a "spoiled brat."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"CANDIDATES TIED IN ELECTION Decide Who Gets the Office by a Flip of a Coin."—Headline. Now, why wouldn't it be a good plan for candidates to flip a coin to decide who gets the job in the beginning and avoid all the expense and bother of having an election? If "heads I win, tails you lose" is good in running off a tie vote, why shouldn't we let the candidates decide the thing in that way to begin with? Most of us sovereign voters say it's a toss-up, anyhow, on what men we get to rule over us. We don't know who to vote for when we go to the polls in most cases and as we look over the list of candidates we shrug our shoulders and say quaintly, "Oh, it's fifty-fifty!" Now, if we just let the candidates get together and flip coins how sweet and simple an election would be. The idea is really worth thinking about. Write to your congressman today.

PERSPECTIVE.

Cities rise, and crumbling, fall;
Strong men mix with dust,
While the waiting wilderness
Stirs with furtive lust.

Blades of grass are subtly edged,
Vines for columns yearn;
Ax and plowshare know with time
Jungles all return.

Ever man's white paving stones
Alternate with sod—
Still endures the day—the night.
Still, forever—God.

AFTER MANY YEARS wine is going to be served at the White House. But it's going to be light wine, very light wine, and only two kinds, so the boys who really want something with a kick in it to help pass a long evening will still have to carry a pint of straight stuff on the hip. Still, wine at the White House dinners again proves that the world do move. Slowly, of course, it always moves slowly. But surely. Two light wines do not sound very exciting, but is probably the red streak in the east that heralds the gladsome dawn.

It's dreadful dreffling when the line is muffed,

IT'S ALL OVER NOW! The honorable judges, Janet Fairbank, Fanny Butcher, and James O'Donnell Bennett, have decided on the contribution which is to grace the inner page of the cover of the Linebook of 1934. And we can't tell who won. No one except the judges, us, and Bob Stonesifer will know until the new Linebook is sped on its jovial way Friday, Dec. 7. Out of the truckloads received there were a lot of contributions that intrigued us mightily, and, if we'd been judging it, we'd have wanted to use them all. But not a word did we say to the honorable judges; no, sir; they rolled their own. Not but what we thought the contribution they chose was the most appropriate. But we said nothing. Anyhow, the great prize contest to end all prize contests is ended. Now there will be no more prize contests. Lykell, lykell, lykell!

SHINING ARMOR.

Each time she pauses by his bed and sees him sleeping there.
"Dear God," she prays, "oh, keep him safe from evil and from woe,
And guide his footsteps in the weary paths his feet must know!
Too soon, too soon, he's gone from out my sheltering love and care,
But Thou canst reach and guard him any time and anywhere!"

But out upon the weary paths his feet must tread tomorrow

MILK-BORNE DISEASE.

MILK is an exceedingly valuable and important food, particularly in childhood, and few adults should permit themselves to outgrow the milk habit. It is the best food from which the body can obtain calcium that is easily assimilated. Its phosphorus content and its easily digested fat make it well nigh indispensable as a part of the diet of growing children. Approximately one pint a day up to the age of ten should be a part of the diet of every child.

Valuable as it is, milk must be clean and uncontaminated in order to be safe. Dirt and disease organisms may gain entrance to milk through handling, through the use of unclean utensils, through exposure to dust and dirt of the stable and barnyard, and through the animal that produces it, as the cow may be suffering from a disease that can be communicated to man.

There is a type of tuberculosis that affects cattle and hence is called bovine. This form of tuberculosis affects the human family by finding lodgment and growth in the lymph glands, the skin, the bones and joints, the urinary tract, and the lungs.

Within recent years strenuous efforts have been made to reduce the number of tuberculous cattle in the United States. No small amount of success has attended the efforts of the department of agriculture, the United States public health service, and the activities of state authorities. In Great Britain it is estimated that approximately 2,000 deaths, mostly among children, occur annually from bovine tuberculosis.

With the persistent testing of milk-producing herds the incidence of milk contaminated with bovine tubercle bacilli will become less and less. Where there is any reason to believe that the milk from tuberculous cows is mixed with a general milk supply, pasteurization seems to be the only means of insuring safe milk. This method offers the additional advantage of eliminating other disease producing organisms.

Diseases that have been traced occasionally to a contaminated milk supply are undulant fever, septic sore throat, and intestinal infections. From time to time outbreaks of septic sore throat have created havoc in a community and scores of local epidemics have occurred in the United States in the last dozen years. The causative organism is a streptococcus and has been traced, in some instances, to milkers or milk handlers suffering from sore throat, or to cattle with inflammatory disease of the udders or teats.

Pasteurization changes milk but little and the method has served to prevent an untold amount of illness of milk origin. The process consists of holding the milk at a temperature of between 145 and 150 degrees F. for one-half hour. At this temperature disease producing organisms are destroyed and the general balance of composition of the milk is but slightly disturbed. Pasteurization of milk on a commercial scale is carried out by what is known as the "positive holder" method. The milk is allowed to flow through a heated apparatus that raises the temperature to bacteria killing level. It is then held in heated tanks for one-half hour. During this period the temperature of the milk should not fall more than one to two degrees. At the end of the period the milk is then allowed to flow into cooling tanks.

There is a difference between clean milk and safe milk. Clean milk may be entirely free from dust or dirt of any character. It may, however, contain disease producing organisms that cannot be filtered out, but that must be killed in order to render the milk safe. Milk should be both clean and safe.

EPILEPTIC.

S. G. writes: I developed epileptic attacks about five years ago. Since my first attack I have been on a saltless diet. I have been through all kinds of tests. Besides luminal what do you recommend?

REPLY.

Under the direction of your physician bromides may be used effectively. Some cases are helped on a ketogenic diet. We have a little booklet giving this diet and other information about the disease. To get a copy send 5 cents and a stamped addressed envelope.

PROPERTY DIVISION.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A and B own property jointly and decide to divide it equally [1] going through division proceedings. A paid all taxes due, to clear title, as B was not in a position to pay her half, expecting to do so to A whenever possible. A received deed for her half, but B has not received her deed. 2. Can A hold up B's deed until her share of taxes is paid?

H. E.

1. It is not clear whether you mean partition proceedings in court. We see no necessity for such proceedings if the parties can agree as to how the property is to be divided, and if the title is clear.

2. If A now holds the title to B's one-half, A can "hold up B's deed." It is not clear what question you intend to ask. If you have not already employed an attorney, we suggest that you do so now.

PROPERTY OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother deeded her home to my sister and I, mother to own the home until her death, when it is to be divided between the two children. 1. Does this deed have to be recorded before her death? I am heir to a farm. I am not the administrator. 2. Can I advertise this farm in local newspapers to try to sell same?

E. H. O.

1. We strongly recommend such recording since otherwise you might have difficulty in proving that the deed was validly delivered during her lifetime, and in absence of such delivery the deed would be void.

2. You can advertise your interest for sale. During the year for probate your title would be subject to this possibility of claims of creditors being filed.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—National elections on Sept. 15 gave the present reform federal government, under the banner of the three year old United Australian party, a lease of power for three more years before giving an account of its stewardship again to the people.

It was one of the tamest elections Australia has seen in more than a decade. Serious national issues such as threatened secession by several of the states as well as the problem of national defense were sidetracked while the several Labor factions and the more conservative United Australian and Country parties stumped about the country barking and bickering over socialization of credit and industries, nationalization of banking, inflation and lower tariffs.

The elections were held to give or not to give the present stable United Australian party government under the leadership of Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons a mandate to carry on with rehabilitation under the premiers' plan adopted by the federal and all state governments in 1931. The result was an emphatic confirmation of public confidence in the Lyons government, despite the fact that it lost a few seats to the two split factions of Labor, led respectively by former Labor Prime Minister James H. Scullin and John T. Lang, former premier of New South Wales and dynamic leader of the insurgent Labor faction.

Australia's new federal parliament will probably be lined up as follows:

United Australian party	36
Country party	13
Federal Labor party	17
State Labor	8
Total	74

The position in the former house of representatives was as follows:

United Australian party	38
Country party	16
Federal Labor party	14
State Labor	5
Independent	2
Total	75

The new parliament will give the United Australian party and its ally, the Country party, 49 seats against 25 for both Labor parties. The results of the election also indicate that the strong Country party under the leadership of Dr. Earle Page, former federal treasurer in the Bruce government, will hold the balance of power in order to obtain its demands for relief in taxation and lower tariffs for the agricultural interests. It is likely that there may also be a change in the federal cabinet in favor of one or two appointments on behalf of the agrarian interests.

Though Mr. Lang was not a candidate for representative in the federal parliament, in view of his present leadership of the insurgent State Labor party in the parliament of New South Wales, he took an important part in the election campaign. He appealed to the public to support the candidates of his party who would carry the Lang policies of "socialization of credit and industries" and "nationalization of banking" into federal politics. The federal and State Labor parties each won three more seats than held in the last parliament.

The victory of the present government over the Socialist forces means that Australia will continue to put her house in order by adhering to the premiers' plan to balance state and federal government budgets, effect taxation reductions, protect industries by high tariffs, develop foreign markets, relieve unemployment by public works, and assist private industries.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

The general idea that bones are more brittle in winter has probably arisen from the fact that more bones are broken in winter. This is, however, not because the bones are more easily broken but because there is greater liability of slipping and falling. There is no reason why there should be any difference whatever in the brittleness of bones at one season rather than another.

AMERICAN CREWS FOR AMERICAN SHIPS.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—After reading your recent editorial on the subject of American crews for American ships I wish to call your attention to the merchant marine act of 1928. Section 405 [C] stipulates that two-thirds of the crew of any American vessel operating under an ocean mail contract must be American citizens.

One naturally inclines to wonder why this act does not stipulate that all members of such crews must be American citizens. At the time this stipulation was drawn up a study was made of the race composition of various departments of these ships. This disclosed that the steward's department accounts for more than half of the crew.

In work of this character—stewards, waiters, etc.—the native born American does not measure up to the requirements. He is not temperamentally fitted to wait on the table, care for staterooms, or do the many jobs involving personal service which the steamship steward must perform courteously, efficiently, and unobtrusively. He may be a willing worker, may sincerely desire to earn his pay, and, perhaps, a few gratuities, but, justified or not, he is not likely to contemplate a life "in service" as did his forbears of one or more generations removed, no matter how honest or honorable that calling may be.

The above act was passed on by congressmen some of whom argued to exclude all noncitizens from these crews, yet who think nothing of being waited upon in a hotel dining room or restaurant by persons of foreign birth who are not American citizens, who have no intention of becoming citizens, and who are working to send their savings abroad and later to return to their native land and enjoy a life of ease on an income that would mean poverty in this country.

It is safe to say that the native born American is a rarity in this class of service, and in the final analysis the passenger steamship, so far as personal service is concerned, is no different from the hostelry ashore. K. M. WALKER.

FROM A BUS RIDER.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—The westbound Jackson boulevard bus I rode on this afternoon was crowded to suffocation, the window was jammed tighter than the proverbial Pullman car window, there were no vents to expel the choking exhaust fumes and stale human exhalations. A carbon monoxide headache feels the same as a hangover headache, but is not compensated by the feeling of elation which precedes the latter.

When the bus company officials learn that their own self-interest [aside from any sham profession of "public service"] demands further provisions for the comfort of the passengers, passenger trafic on their antiquated vehicles will increase. MARTIN KEARNS.

REPUBLICAN SUCCESS IN MICHIGAN.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 8.—I am wondering, as a newspaper man, why the Chicago papers and other big town papers over the nation ran the Michigan political news obscurely on the inside of the paper. The result of the election in Michigan, considering its contrastive value, was as striking news as anything that occurred Nov. 6.

What the Republican party did in Michigan can be done elsewhere so pervasively that the social-communistic government at Washington shall be thrown out in time. The Republican party must have a program and not use merely a vacuum to oppose the clever demagogs who are gluing themselves to the nation.

Michigan is the oasis in the Democrat desert. Two years ago there wasn't a green sign of hope anywhere. There are an encouraging number of these Republican oases now.

Your issue of Nov. 8 calls minor attention to the fact that the Republicans more than held their own downstate in Illinois. I think that should have been played up. Maybe it was the propinquity of the Chicago avalanche that overwhelmed. CHASE S. OSBORN,
Former Governor of Michigan.

THE BEST CRITICS!

Chicago, Nov. 8.—I read somewhere that the reason many motion picture plays are shown in small towns before they appear in the large cities is so the booking agencies can ascertain which pictures are the most popular with the small community movie-goers and consequently the most likely to please the city patrons. As these small town folk are in the main better educated and more puritanical minded than their city cousins, and are for the most part of the older American stock, they have, it would seem, most of the qualifications of the ideal movie critic, and due to their criticisms most of those belated pictures which the cityite sees are probably of the better type. R. W.

THE OLDEST VOTER IN ILLINOIS.

West Chicago, Ill., Nov. 7.—I noted in THE TRIBUNE today that a woman in Dixon, 100 years old, went to the polls and voted. She was thought to be the oldest voter in Illinois. I beg to correct this. An uncle, Henry S. Wood, living with me, passed his 101st birthday Oct. 4 last. He went to the polls yesterday and voted the Republican ticket. He also voted two weeks ago on a county project. I heard him say he would have to change his name before he could vote Democratic. L. HAWKS.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GET YOUNGSTERS READY FOR WINTER

First Nighters Provide a Setting of Grandeur for Opening of Opera Season

Enthusiastic Reception of Fine Raiment Spurs the Fashion World On to New Endeavors

WHAT greater tribute could be offered to the Grand Opera Season than the sumptuous apparel of its audience on Saturday evening? The blaze of color and brilliance of design are the marks of a wave of high feeling for a great occasion . . . for a desire to enhance the glory of an inspired evening.

REGAL COLORS dominated the smart audience, compelling in their rich tones of purples, reds, blues. Black used with metals or furs was the choice of many of Chicago's most distinguished women. And the flash of lame and white gleaming with metal under wraps of glowing mink or ermine added an exhilarating glitter to the scene.

SINCE the advent of the Opera the After Five Room has been the center of interest on Field's Sixth Floor. The constant arrivals in gowns and wraps have kept this bright spot in a high state of excitement . . . as each new group of costumes seems a bit more daring and picturesque than the last. Because off-the-shoulder gowns are the big demand of Chicago's debs, the corset section has rallied to the call with off-the-shoulder and entirely strapless brassieres and foundations.

ACCESSORIES SECTIONS are fairly bursting with the largest selections of evening things they have had in many seasons. The more expensive types of evening jewelry and bags are selling rapidly. Sheer hosiery and glittering evening slippers have acquired a new prominence as slit skirts continue to rage on the fashion front. The Matched Accessories Section, catching the contagious spirit, is showing ensemble groups of evening accessories to give you ideas of glorious new possibilities.

Max Reinhardt's Cast at Field's Tomorrow

Principals of the cast of Max Reinhardt's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be presented at a tea tomorrow at 3 o'clock in the Walnut Grill, Seventh Floor. Their appearance is arranged in co-operation with the Women's Aid Society of Passavant Hospital.

A delightful program will be presented by Miss Virginia Powell, lecturer for Dr. Reinhardt; Fred Niblo, former moving picture producer, who is casting director and assistant to Dr. Reinhardt. Mr. Niblo will present twenty important members of the cast, including Nini Theilade, premiere danseuse.

The opening performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," November 15, at the Auditorium Theater, is sponsored by the Women's Aid Society of Passavant. Tickets will be on sale at Field' after the program.

Tea may be ordered a la carte.

Don't Miss:

Home Modernizing Bureau and Exhibit of Better Homes and Gardens "Before and After" Photographs — Eighth Floor, South, State.

Jean Dunand's Exhibit of Lacquers and Fine European Bronzes — Second Floor, South, Wabash.

Completely Redecorated: The Modern Budget House. The Pilgrim Shop, The Tradition Apartment.— Eighth Floor.

The Rosenbach Collection of Antiques. Ninth Floor, South, State.

Max Reinhardt's cast in a special program and tea in the Walnut Grill at 3 tomorrow.

French "Originals" Are Starred in Continuous Showing

If you have a secret desire to attend a French Couturier Opening (and what clothes-conscious woman hasn't?), the daily afternoon showing in Field's Custom Apparel Salon will give you a genuine thrill. Lovely mannequins display "originals" from the great houses of Mainbocher, Lavin, Paquin, Jenny, Lucile Paray, Bruyere, Patou, Molyneux, Agnes-Drecoll, Vionnet, and Maison d'Certain. There's a difference in the atmosphere which pervades the showing . . . a subsequent excitement that always attends something importantly new . . . a quiet continental informality. Drop in at the Salon any afternoon from 2 to 4:30.

Gift Record Service Makes Shopping Easy for Children's Toys

How often have relatives and friends wondered what to give your youngsters for birthdays or Christmas? Perhaps you have made suggestions, only to find Johnnie and Susie showered with that very same toy or game. By taking only a little time, mothers may pick out, with the help of a specially trained staff in the Toy Section, on the Fourth Floor, a whole list of toys which are suitable as gifts for the children. These individual records are kept conveniently on file to help make shopping easy and to avoid annoying duplications.

Scandinavian Silversmith's Creations Becoming "Collector Items"

Field's, recently appointed agents for the famous Danish silversmith, Georg Jensen, has an inspiring collection of his handwrought silver in the Jewelry Room, first floor. Among the many pieces of both flatware and individual serving dishes now on display, is a duplicate of a bowl from the Metropolitan Museum's collection. The Luxembourg; the Musee d'Art and d'Histoire, Geneva; The Copenhagen Art Museum and the Art Museums of Detroit, Brooklyn, and Newark all exhibit his work.

Called Nature's Silversmith

Acknowledged as the moving force in the renaissance of the Silversmith's Art, and the return of the beautiful in utilitarian things, Jensen has been called "Nature's Silversmith," since he mos. often receives his inspiration from this source. Even when conventionalized, the patterns usually employ a flower or leaf motif. Dignity, simplicity, and great beauty characterize Jensen's artistic achievements, which have justly won the title, "Heirlooms of the Future."

Field's Maternity Shop Fashions Influenced by the New Elegance

Grand Opera fashions, dinner costumes and afternoon dresses are filling the Maternity Shop. Because these clothes, in a gay and deceiving manner, are carefully styled, amazingly comfortable and extremely flattering with their hidden adjustable features . . . they are arousing much enthusiasm from our customers.

A featured dress in the Shop this week makes adroit use of the tunic by giving it a slightly military shoulder line and glamorous gold trimming touches . . . all cleverly adjusted by pleats under the tunic. It is shown in four new colors at $42.75.

Antique lovers will appreciate the quaint 200-year-old cradle type bassinet now displayed in the Shop.

World's Checker 'Champ' Challenges All Comers Today on Fourth Floor

Blindfolded—Newell Banks, titleholder for matched play since 1910, will play 16 boards at a time in the Young People's Theater today from 2 to 4. Checker fans are invited to try their skill, sixteen at a time, while Mr. Banks remembers each move and calls out his plays. Last year at "A Century of Progress" Mr. Banks played 140 boards in 2 hours and 25 minutes, winning 133 games, losing none, and drawing 7. To perform this feat it was necessary for him to make about one move per second, watched by about 5,000 spectators.

See This Demonstration

Whether you are a "cracker-box" or a highly scientific player, you are invited to "take on" Mr. Banks—it's an experience! Instructive leisure-time games, like checkers and the new "400" question-and-answer game, are gaining every day in popularity. This is your chance to pick up some pointers.

"Better Mattress Fair" Starts Week's Run Today to Promote Better Sleep

Dr. Laird, Leading Sleep Psychologist, to Give Series of Movies and Talks

"YOU spend one-third of your life in bed—spend it in comfort!" This is the keynote of Field's first "Better Mattress Fair," which opens today in the Scientific Sleep Equipment Section, Eighth Floor. Eight leading manufacturers of fine mattresses have co-operated in this event: The Rome Company, the Simmons Company, Burton-Dixie, Inc., Sleeper Products, Karpen Brothers, Superior Felt and Bedding Company, Columbia Feather Company, and Marshall Field & Company.

FASCINATING booths and displays of the latest scientific achievements in sleep equipment and a general air of festivity make this an event you'll enjoy thoroughly.

"Finding Out About Sleep"—Title of Movie

DR. DONALD A. LAIRD, professor of psychology at Colgate University and a leading authority on sleep, will conduct a series of programs on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, including a 45-minute moving picture at 11 a. m. taken in his own sleep laboratories in Hamilton, New York, a talk at 2 p. m., and a consultation hour for sleep problems at 3 p. m. These programs will be held in a specially arranged movie theater on the Eighth Floor.

STATE SUPPLIES 31½ MILLION FOR 10 MONTH RELIEF

U. S. Contributes 59.6% of 80 Million Total.

Funds supplied by Illinois for relief purposes for the first ten months of this year have totaled $31,568,337, according to figures disclosed yesterday by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. This expenditure compares with $14,193,890 spent during the entire year of 1933.

"Most of the state funds used this year," Reynolds said, "have represented advances against the $30,000,000 relief bond issue which was given approval by voters at a referendum on Nov. 6."

State Contributes 39.3 Per Cent.

Illinois' contribution to relief of the state's distitute was 39.3 per cent of $80,000,000 thus expended during the past ten months. Of the balance of the fund for unemployed the federal government supplied 59.6 per cent and local governmental units, particularly townships, contributed 1.1 per cent. The FERA supplied all federal funds in the form of direct grants to the state.

"Federal funds, which amounted to $59,966,731, or 75.81 per cent of the total expenditures in 1933," Mr. Reynolds said, "dropped to $47,824,178, or 59.6 of the total, thus far this year. However, with state funds practically exhausted at the present time necessitating larger grants of federal funds to meet the needs during November and December, federal funds will no doubt account for a larger percentage of the total expenditures for the full year, although still below the 1933 figure."

Special Units Not Included.

Special activities, such as emergency education, CWA, employment or professional and technical workers and other special programs are not included in the tabulations. These are financed entirely by federal funds made available to the commission in the form of separate grants.

Mr. Reynolds also announced yesterday that the fruit and vegetable production from subsistence gardens in Cook county will exceed earlier estimates of 3,000,000 pounds, by more than 650,000 pounds. More than 12,000 families on public relief rolls have participated in the program.

Order Salary Standardization.

Standardization of salaries of practically all of the commission's 9,570 employés has been ordered by the commission, it was learned yesterday. On Oct. 1 the total number of job holders was 9,650. This total has been reduced by 80 persons. Decentralization of the Chicago accounting department was given as the reason. No indication has been given, however, as to how many workers will be added to county relief groups as a result.

Secretary Reynolds has characterized as untrue rumors that any wholesale post-election staf reductions are contemplated. The commission has been working on a readjustment and decentralization program for several months, he said.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: After the Storm

COMMUNITY FUND DRIVE GOES INTO ITS FINAL STAGE

Over 2 Millions of 3 Million Goal Pledged.

With $2,190,748.78 already pledged in the community fund campaign, campaign chiefs announced yesterday that they will start a final drive today in order to reach the $3,000,000 goal by Dec. 1.

The bulk of the amount pledged to date has been collected by the special gifts division, which has raised $1,738,316.95 of its quota of $2,005,000. The trades and industries division, which collects the pledges of workers through their employers, has raised $450,904.83, and the woman's division, organized primarily for conducting publicity rather than soliciting pledges, has raised $1,527.

Leaders in the campaign feel optimistic about the outcome of the $3,000,000 campaign from which 130 private welfare agencies of Chicago will benefit. As foundation for their optimism they cite the special gifts division, in which many team captains already have exceeded the quotas set for them, as indicated in the following tabulation:

Captains—	Quota.	Amount raised.
John J. Abbott	$148,000	$157,314
Max Adler	106,000	111,983
Lester Armour	91,000	84,720
W. O. Batchelder	100,000	74,545
Dudley Cates	74,000	50,005
Kent S. Clow	237,000	240,542
Dexter Cummings	65,000	59,935
Fred A. Cuscaden	87,000	82,813
Albert D. Farwell	80,000	60,095
Irving S. Florsheim	85,000	94,145
Stephen Y. Hord	98,000	89,829
Joseph E. Magnus	103,000	79,129
Frederick L. McNally	65,000	62,675
John C. Mechem	155,000	148,206
Holman D. Pettibone	89,000	66,537
P. S. Russell	113,000	106,120
Modie J. Spiegel Sr.	71,000	89,472
Lawrence Williams	72,000	52,221
Miscellaneous	166,000	58,731

The trades and industries division, headed by Clarence B. Randall, already has received pledges of cooperation from 2,394 employers, with a total of 410,519 employés. Although only $450,904.83 in pledges has been reported from this group to date, much has been pledged that has yet to be reported, Mr. Randall said, for pledges are not forwarded to headquarters until the solicitation in any firm or corporation is completed.

J. E. Liedberg, Newspaper Advertising Man, Is Dead

Jair E. Liedberg, 68 years old, who for the past two years has lived at the Wilson avenue Y. M. C. A., died of heart disease yesterday morning at the Rogers Park hospital. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today in the Hultin funeral home, 3176 North Clark street, with the Rev. William Tullberg officiating. Mr. Liedberg came to the United States as a child from Wexio, Sweden. For twenty-five years he was in newspaper advertising work.

Woman, 86, Struck Last Month by a Train, Dies

Mrs. Celia Kaplan, 86 years old, died yesterday in the home of a daughter, Mrs. Rose Schreiber, with whom she lived at 3836 Grenshaw street, of injuries incurred Oct. 28 when she was struck by a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad train on the elevated tracks at Kolin avenue and 24th street. Mrs. Kaplan apparently strayed away from the front porch of the Schreiber home and climbed the embankment of the railway right of way.

Cornetist in Armistice Parade Collapses and Dies

While playing his cornet in the Armistice day parade in Brookfield yesterday, John Miller, 75 years old, 8612 Ladd avenue, Lyons, an employé of the Western Electric company, fell dead, apparently of heart disease. Miller was a member of the community band. He collapsed while the parade was passing Grant street in Grand boulevard.

ECUADOR'S CHIEF FIGHTS OUSTER DEMAND OF FOES

Ibarra Issues Defy in Manifesto.

QUITO, Ecuador, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The long brewing controversy between President José M. Velasco Ibarra and a dissident congressional bloc struck with full force today.

The chief executive issued a manifesto saying he would not resign despite persistent reports that a group of congressmen was determined to force him out. Simultaneously it was disclosed a regiment of artillery had been transferred from Tarqui to Cuenca at the orders of the president.

"I will not resign," Velasco Ibarra said. "I will wait until they order me removed from office, and in such a case I shall go before congress and defend myself, and make certain declarations on matters which the public ought to know."

Senate Chief Resigns.

Late last night congress still was unable to gather a quorum. The senate, however, met independently and accepted the resignation of its president, José V. Trujillo. Trujillo resigned Friday after being injured by a rock thrown by an agitator in the street. Enrique Baquerizo Moreno was named to succeed him.

Velasco Ibarra said he had proposed the appointment of Pablo Mariano Borja, a Conservative, now counsellor of the legation at Lima, Peru, as Ecuadorian foreign minister.

He declared accusations that his government was planning to establish a dictatorship were "false and slanderous."

Crowd Invades Congress.

The conflict between the president and congress flared into open animosity last Saturday, when a pamphlet was circulated accusing congress of neglecting important national problems in order to hinder the administration of the president.

A crowd, incensed at congressional deputies, invaded the galleries at the opening of the session on that day, cheering President Velasco Ibarra and shouting insults at the legislators. The police appeared indifferent to the rumpus. After two hours the legislators left the palace. A few army officers, sabers in hand, accompanied leading senators to their hotels and homes for protection. Rocks hurled at them injured two or three.

EDWARD KEMEYS' WIDOW, ALSO A SCULPTOR, DIES

Word was received here yesterday of the death last week in Wilmington, Del., of Mrs. Edward Kemeys, widow of Capt. Edward Kemeys, noted sculptor of animals, who created the bronze lions which stand at the entrance to the Art institute of Chicago.

Mrs. Kemeys, who was 71 years old, also a sculptor, collaborated with her husband on many of his bronzes. She is survived by one son, William, of Garrett, Md. Burial was in Arlington National cemetery at Washington.

"Capt. Kemeys' lions at the Art institute have become accepted as a symbol of Chicago," said Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the institute. "They are internationally known and a picture of them is recognized almost anywhere."

Rear Admiral McCowan, 64, Navy War Paymaster, Dies

Laurens, S. C., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, 64, paymaster general and chief supply officer of the United States navy during the world war, died here today following upon a heart attack. McGowan, who came here Friday from New York, died in a hotel only a block from his birthplace. He was graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1889 and five years later was appointed an assistant paymaster in the navy. He was promoted to the rank of rear admiral in 1914.

Sir Donald Mann, Canada Railroad Builder, Dies at 81

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Sir Donald Mann, 81, Canadian railroad builder and financier, died here today. Sir Donald, born at Acton, Ont., established the contracting firm of Mackenzie & Mann in 1886. The firm built the Edmonton, Qu' Appelle, Long Lake, and Saskatchewan railways. Later Sir Donald purchased a charter for a system known as the Lake Manitoba railway, which subsequently became a part of the Canadian National railways. He was knighted in 1911.

Former Chief of Police Flanagan, St. Paul, Dies

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Martin J. Flanagan, 68, former chief of police here, died today after a month's illness.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The broadcast of a coon hunt is scheduled for next Thursday. The hunt, with the baying of hounds crashing through the underbrush, is to be aired at 10:30 p. m. over WTAM. 50,000 watt Cleveland station operating on the 1,070 kilocycle channel. A mobile transmitter is to follow the hunters and the coon dog pack into the woods 25 miles south of Cleveland. The highlights of the hunt will be shortwaved to Cleveland and then broadcast. An attempt will be made to tree a coon and then shake him out into a net. If he is captured alive he will be given an opportunity "to say a few words" into the microphone to his future master, the college man.

Geraldine Farrar, who left the Metropolitan Opera company in 1922, will return there at Christmas time—not to sing but to become the commentator of the Saturday afternoon broadcasts over NBC sponsored by the St. Louis gargle concern. This will be the first time a woman has been engaged as announcer or narrator on a major sponsored program. Deems Taylor had the assignment last year.

Best pun of the week: Tom, Dick and Harry's "They're calling Ed Wynn the perfect fuel now!" . . . Charlie Agnew and his orchestra will return to W-G-N Nov. 24 when they open at the Red Lion inn. . . . Allan Grant, accompanist for the Singing Lady, is laid up with an attack of appendicitis. . . . Attilo Baggiore, operatic tenor, is in the east giving concerts at Worcester, Newport, and New York City, but will return to W-G-N Friday.

Benny Davis, impresario of youthful talent, now appearing at the Oriental with his "Star Dust Review," will bring his troupe to Kay Kyser's Midnight Flyers broadcast tonight. Davis is credited with having introduced Nick Lucas, who claims to be the original crooner; Helen Kane, the original book-a-dooper, and Helen Morgan, the original piano top sitter. He has not disclosed what vogue he now has in the making.

George Olsen is holding the first of a weekly series of opera night parties at the College inn tonight. Stars of the opera are to be guests and will be introduced over the air on his late broadcasts. . . . Earl Wilkie is leaving W-G-N today to become staf baritone at WLW, Cincinnati. . . . Helen Jepson has been engaged to appear with the Metropolitan Opera quartet on tour now. Blonde Helen has been signed for the Paul Whiteman commercial show for all of 1935. . . . Joseph Bonime will be the musical director of that three hour commercial "Let's Dance." Xavier Cugat, Ke Murray, and Benny Goodman will direct the orchestras providing the dance rhythm.

AUGUST TIESSE, BREWMASTER, DIES; LONG ILL

August Tiesse, 63 years old, brewmaster and brewery builder, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John H. Topal, 1413 Jonquil terrace. He had been ill for several months.

In 1893 he was graduated with gold medal honors from the old Wahl-Henius academy of brewing. Nine years later he constructed the old Clinton Brewing company at Clinton, Ia., of which he was part owner. Mr. Tiesse rebuilt the structure this year when the company reorganized as the Pointer Brewing company and retained him as brewmaster.

Among the other breweries he erected, designing and installing his own machinery, were The Mitchell Brothers at Mokena, Ill., last year; Pfeiffer Brewing company, Detroit, in 1899, of which he had charge for a few years; the Roslyn company, British Columbia; Portsmouth company at Portsmouth, O., and several in Wisconsin.

He was a member of the Elks club and of the Turnverein in Clinton, Ia. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Graceland cemetery chapel.

HARRY MORTON, RAILWAY SUPPLY MAKER, IS DEAD

Harry Ulysses Morton, descendant of a colonial family, died at the age of 68 yesterday in the home of his son, Charles Delos Morton, 814 Ashland avenue, River Forest. Mr. Morton was president of the Morton Manufacturing company, 5105 Lake street, manufacturer of railway appliances and industrial steel products. He had been inactive for two years due to ill health. For eighteen years before the organization of his own company in 1913, he was associated in an official capacity with the Pullman company.

Morton's colonial ancestor was John Pascal Morton of Pennsylvania, who was an active proponent of the Declaration of Independence in the continental congress. Harry Morton's father, Aaron Delos Morton, was pastor of the Methodist church at Canton, O., attended by President Mckinley.

Mr. Morton was a member of the Chicago Athletic, Medinah Country, Medinah, Lake Shore Athletic, Midwest Athletic, Western Railway, and the Lauderdale Country clubs. His survivors are his son and a sister, Mrs. Adelaide Cox of San Mateo, Cal.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday in the son's residence, with burial at Mount Greenwood cemetery.

Guide Children with Reason— Mrs. Bevans Points the Way

MRS. JOHN B. DRAKE JR., the former Frances Lowden, is one of the younger women interested in the auction sale to be held this week at the old Potter Palmer mansion, 1350 Lake Shore drive, for the benefit of the Children's Memorial and St. Luke's hospitals. The collection, which includes furniture, objets d'art, jewelry, paintings, tapestries, everything from family portraits to necklaces, will be on view today from 10 to 6 o'clock and tomorrow at 2:30 the auctioneer will open the sale. There will be two sessions a day, one at 2:30 and the other at 8:30, until everything donated has been sold. Mrs. Frank Hibbard is chairman of the committee in charge.

Just added to the handsome array of 700 articles are some valuable Chinese pictures, the gift of the Frederic C. Bartletts, that were shipped all the way from Beverly, Mass. A piece of furniture from the same part of New England arrived the other day, an old veneered cabinet that Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge of Beverly Farms is giving for the sale. Still another donation is one that Mrs. Albert L. Smith of Brookville, N. Y., has made. Visiting here at the present time, she heard about the auction and wired back directing that some of the etchings of the East-West polo games last season, done by her son-in-law, Stephen Wright, be sent.

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

A GENTLEMAN left Capt. and Mrs. C. Ross Cuthbert's apartment yesterday afternoon to go to a silver wedding anniversary party to which he had to bring a poem. When he left he was muttering: "This for me was a red letter day; First, I met Edna St. Vincent Millay." . . .

That was as far as he got, but it summed up the feeling of the few friends the Cuthberts invited in to tea to meet the foremost American poetess and her husband, Eugen Jan Boissevain.

Poetess—
Non-Hoarder—
Satire—
Graybeard—
Resolve.

They found Miss Millay slim, charming, with a warm handshake and a quick smile. Her chestnut hair falls in a long bob, and she looks exactly as she looked when I heard her read her poems at the College club a great many years ago. Her husband, a genial, attractive man in gray tweeds has a charming way of finding one's comments amusing. From a five minute conversation it would seem he is more interested in pheasants than in poetry. Miss Millay is reading from her new book of verse, "Wine from These Grapes," at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago tonight.

A BELATED Century of Progress story concerns the girl ballyhoo in front of a nude girl show and the old man with a long gray beard who bought a ticket for the performance.

"Old man, tell me how you like the show when you come out," said the girl.

"I'm not coming out," retorted the old man. "I'm going to wait until you come in."

IT looks like a gay week, the opera, and Miss Kate Buckingham's champagne supper after the opera Tuesday evening in celebration of the debut of her protégé, Giuseppi Bentonelli, and Prince Matchabelli's party at the Ambassador East Wednesday evening [a whole gypsy orchestra coming out from New York for it], and the opening of Max Reinhardt's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Auditorium Thursday, with a gala audience such as a Passavant hospital benefit invariably draws, and Herr Reinhardt sitting in Mrs. Johnson's box. Then there's a luncheon and a dinner party and a cocktail party or two and a wedding. And we're going to each and every one in a last final fling of gayety, preparatory to going into a kind of retirement for the winter. We're going to read all the books we've been wanting to read, and study German, and take Sandy and Binge for long walks. And heaven—and the contributors—help the column!

Society Players Train Secretly for Melodrama

They'll Present Thriller at St. Chrysostom's Sale.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SCREAMS and curses emanating almost daily from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham at 1238 North State street need only one thing to complete their melodramatic quality and that's a gas lamp outside the front door. Last night, after weeks of carefully guarded secrecy, Mrs. Winterbotham explained that the shouts and screams are not family disagreement, but rehersal for the soul rending melodrama, "Under the Gas Light, or Virtue Has Its Own Reward," to be presented the evenings of Nov. 22 and 23 in the guild hall of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church.

Dark eyed, debonair Walter Frazier, disguised by a coal black mustache, is to be the villain, and Sarah Hinde and Peggy Hambleton are to have leading feminine rôles, but the rest of the cast will remain a secret until the aura of mystery and excitement surrounding the production has reached its proper height.

Mrs. Winterbotham Directs Rehersals.

Of course, no better director for the play could be found than Mrs. Winterbotham, for she has revealed her dramatic ability on numerous occasions and especially with the Junior league's children's theater. As further insurance of secrecy the rehersals are to continue at her home until just before the 22d. The scenery is now in the process of construction under the direction of Miss Eleanor Holden, who is making daily trips downtown to a well known studio, taking her lunch with her.

The fact that the melodrama is to be presented at St. Chrysostom's means that it is a feature of the annual holiday sale of the St. Chrysostom's Women's Guild and Auxiliary on the 22d and 23d. Contrary to former years when the sale has been a typical bazar, it is to be a smart, modern affair this time known as "Christmas Windows." Instead of booths there will be spaces allotted in the church foyer to several shops and in these spaces they will exhibit all sorts of lovely things appropriate for holiday merriment and giving. Against a pure white background the spaces are to be decorated in World's Fair blue, silver, and red.

Old Bazar to Survive in One Large Table.

No admission is to be charged either day, but orders will be taken for the articles on exhibit by representatives of the various shops. The only suggestion of the old fashioned church sale will be one large table on which everything from bed jackets to dishcloths will be displayed and offered for sale.

The first day of "Christmas Windows" is to wind up with a traditional turkey dinner and the first two performances of the melodrama. The third and final presentation of the play will be at 8:30 the evening of the 23d.

Mrs. William Edward Parsons is chairman of the turkey dinner and some of the vestrymen of the church will do the carving, while members of the guild will assist in the kitchen. The waitresses will be some of the prettiest young churchgoers, including Miss Anne Smith, Miss Dorothy Dewes, Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, Miss Barbara Eldridge, Mrs. William M. Collins Jr. ,Mrs. Sidney Waud, Miss Virginia Waller, Mrs. Wilbur C. Smith, Mrs. Roy L. Flannery, Miss Phyllis Walsh, Mrs. Eleanor Jerrems, and Miss Martha Borland and her sister Harriet.

The general chairman of the sale is Mrs. Harold Eldridge, assisted by Mrs. D. Mark Cummings. On the general committee are Mrs. Charles Y. Freeman, Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson, Miss Margaret Conover, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs.

Expert Finds Ability, Kindness in Handwriting of Mayor Kelly

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.
[Copyright: 1934: by Muriel Stafford.]

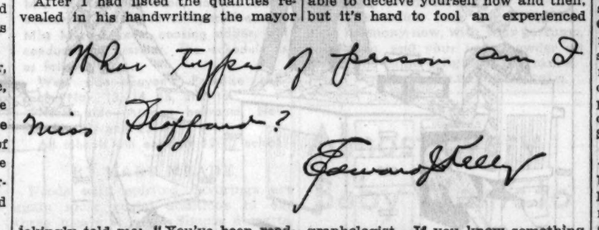
Here is a facsimile of the handwriting of Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago. Despite the fact that he occupies the office of mayor I would have known from his handwriting that Mayor Kelly is a professional man—a successful engineer, I learned later. His handwriting shows that he is most efficient, highly intelligent, sincere, and a hard worker.

Notice the forward slant of the letters and the "y" in Kelly that returns on the right hand side instead of the left. These things combined reveal a great love of humanity and a desire to help others that amounts to altruism.

The signature is written as one word without lifting the pen, as you can see. This is a definite sign of executive ability. Cultural interests are revealed in the way Mayor Kelly makes his small d and small e.

After I had listed the qualities revealed in his handwriting the mayor jokingly told me: "You've been reading my mail."



What type of person am I Miss Stafford?
Edward J. Kelly

There is much more to say about this interesting handwriting, but I haven't space to go on.

No matter how fine an actor or actress you may be on the stage of life, you'd better find out what your handwriting is telling about you! If you are playing an insincere part you may be able to act it beautifully, but as soon as your pen touches paper you'll give yourself away.

On the other hand, you may not be appreciated. Your associates may think you aggressive and arrogant when you are inwardly shy and scared to death of people. You may appear cold natured and selfish, when you are really so tender hearted that you'd give your last dime to a beggar.

You can fool your friends, you can puzzle your family, you may even be able to deceive yourself now and then, but it's hard to fool an experienced graphologist. If you know something about the science you may be able to mask your writing as you do your facial expressions, but it isn't as easy and the mask is bound to slip and betray you before you write many lines.

Let me warn you of one thing before I reveal the secrets of handwriting. It isn't safe to make snap judgments. You must study the handwriting carefully and take everything into consideration.

Your Handwriting Analyzed

Any Tribune reader can obtain a personal graphology chart showing his or her assets, handicaps, talents, and emotions by following these rules:
1. Send a sample of handwriting to Muriel Stafford, box 1539, Chicago Tribune.
2. Enclose 10 cents (carefully wrapped) for each sample of handwriting you wish analyzed.
3. Enclose a self-addressed STAMPED envelope, folded once.

Good Morning!

This is one of those pictures that just goes on and on . . .

It isn't, strictly speaking, a crook drama, nor a mother love one. It's not a tragedy—and it certainly isn't funny. . . .

The principal characters, supposed to be Jewish, are all Gentiles. And, just when you think something's going to happen—why it DOESN'T. At least, not till the end it doesn't. By that time you're too all tired out "expecting," to enjoy the dastard's death, or the dear old mother's victory, or the prospective marital bliss of the noble young ex-convict, Mr. Franchot Tone, and the limp and, up to that time, perpetually agonized young school mistress, Miss Karen Morley.

Mr. Tone, for the most part, goes around with a dare-devil grin on his face, mouthing his words and dauntless in the face of perils that fail to materialize. May Robson does her best with her sorrowing Jewish mother rôle. She gets away with the sorrow, but not the Hebrew. Miss Morley is intense in her underfed fashion. Gladys George plays a rather sweet little hussy just like that.

Nat Pendleton as a jovial gangster and Raymond Hatton as a fainting tenement papa bring to the picture all it has in the way of entertainment.

Just a mongrel movie, "Straight Is the Way," with a cast of competent players who are stupidly miscast.

Week-End Lifts Music to Its Old Place in City

Hear Rachmaninoff, Chorus, Woman's Symphony.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

This week-end was more like the old days of music in Chicago than any similar period has been for a long time. What was begun at the opera Saturday night was continued in the concerts of yesterday afternoon, large atttendance, cheery atmosphere, liberal applause; in fact, a pervading feeling that music was put upon the earth for the purpose of being enjoyed. A few more manifestations such as these and it will be safe to admit that music is once again on the upgrade.

Not that yesterday's offerings did not deserve all they got. There were some headliners in the list. The Don Cossack Russian Male chorus was making its first appearance of the season at the Auditorium. Sergei Rachmaninoff gave a piano recital at Orchestra hall. And the Woman's Symphony orchestra played the first concert of its ninth season at the Studebaker theater.

Male chorus singing has reached its top point so far by the Don Cossacks. Under the direction of their fiery little leader, Serge Jaroff, they accomplish marvels. They boom away tempestuously, their lowest basso digs down under the staf to tones that sound like the pedal notes of an organ. And then suddenly they turn to some quiet effects that are simply enrapturing, while the tenors perform some sort of vocal device that approximates the sound of a women's choir heard in the distance.

Mr. Rachmaninoff is a distinguished veteran of the piano keyboard, but years have not begun to touch his playing even lightly. They have only given him a background of thought and experience and made him absolutely certain of what he is doing. His Bach, the Tausig transcription of the Toccata and Fugue in D minor, was the performance of a master; his Beethoven, the early sonata, opus 10, No. 3, was a revelation of how delightful some of the less frequently played sonatas can be. Later he played a group of his own works, and he ended with some fireworks by Liszt.

Conductor Ebba Sundstrom opened the season of her orchestra by presenting four of her violinists in a quadruple concerto by Vivaldi. They were Evelyn Levin Davis, Evelyn Freedman, Sara Shatz, and Gladys Welge, accompanied by the rest of the string section. They dealt melodiously and brilliantly with the old work, whereupon the Woman's Symphony orchestra proceeded to Franck's great symphony. The orchestra is better this year than ever before. Its tone has become more mellow and refined, the various sections are in excellent trim.

Meanwhile Georgia Kober and Edwin Stanley Seder were playing two-piano music and Else Harthan Arendt was singing in Curtiss hall, the combination making another concert of high order. Miss Kober and Mr. Seder played works by Bach-Phillip, Debussy, and Moussorgsky-Pattison, and Mme. Arendt won equal applause with a group of songs and Brunhilde's war cry from "Die Walküre."

Cornell and Graff, the dancers, did not appear in the Congress hotel as announced. The management regretted the fact and promised to present them later.

National Fur Week Invites Wise Buying

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some people may be wondering about cruise clothes and even palm beach creations, but the clothes collectors who really know their shopping tips are buying furs this week as well as the remainder of the month. National fur week features the highest fashion in furs, the widest assortments, and in these collections exciting new details, such as sleeves, silhouettes and new collar lines and, of course, all the popular fur pelts.

Swagger coats and street capes, so far, steal the spotlight. These capes are knockouts. They can be lined with wool in high colors and worn with wool dresses and make the outstanding costume of the year. Swagger coats of every conceivable fur are made with and without raglan sleeves. However, all of them have flaring silhouettes, simple collars that can be turned up smartly for cold weather and plenty of pockets.

The practical and moderately priced fur swagger coats are lined with wool, while the all purpose swagger is lined with satin or dull crêpe.

Evening capes have come back; luxurious models of ermine cut with a dashing flare at the back and a high face framing collar—shorter models of silver fox, with the pelts in vertical formation and short capes of fabulously lovely chinchilla. There are smart short jackets and capes of creamy white caracul that are as lovely and as supple as white satin moire.

Persian lamb in black fashions the Russian fitted coat in the fashion photograph. The sleeves are most unusual and the coat fits snugly over the ribs, causing the skirtline to flare. A dull kidskin belt keeps it smoothly at the waistline and the collar turns sharply up around the ears. From a Chicago collection especially featured and priced during national fur week.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Dr. and Mrs. Victor Nef gave a dinner tonight at the Westbury for Louis Micheli, counselor to the Swiss legation.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Winthrop will arrive next week on the Washington and will be at the Pierre.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Norton Lippincott sailed on the Aquitania for a trip around the world. They will spend Christmas in India with friends.

Miss Evelyn Cole, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wesley H. Cole, gave a reception this afternoon at the home of her parents for Miss Alice Schumacher and John M. Sturgis, whose marriage will take place on Nov. 21.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Major Ralph Stornack, of apparent position and wealth, is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is in jail for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Colin was alone at the table with the Canadian when the lights went out and he was struck in the throat by a table knife. Chief witness against Colin was Major Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. He plots Colin's escape by taking Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Nobody looks closely at prisoners, he explains, and warders are frequently changed. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon in Wales. Then Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited a fortune of a Canadian relative. The Canadian solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting to become a mother, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen's in London. Her mother follows with a court order placing Rhoda under her charge. She intends to take Rhoda to France.

INSTALMENT XIX.

HER JAILER.

Rhoda managed a very creditable laugh.

"I'm afraid my mother is confusing you with some one else, Capt. Caermaen," she said lightly, and to her mother: "I have never mentioned Capt. Caermaen's name to you. Mrs. Rawlings' husband used to be his servant and—— "

"Indeed!" said Mrs. Cornboise indifferently.

"And I met him for the first time yesterday," floundered Rhoda.

"How do you know? You've had a lapse of memory."

That silenced Rhoda. But by now Jack Caermaen was able to make a pretty shrewd guess as to how things stood.

"I'm afraid I did not have the pleasure of seeing Miss Cornboise during her lapse of memory," he said easily. "But if I can be of any help, Mrs. Cornboise, I shall be delighted."

"Thank you!" said Mrs. Cornboise and unwisely plunged. "You would help me a great deal if you would tell me where you were between the second and the ninth of last month."

In her own drawing room Mrs. Cornboise would not have been so incautious. But she was harassed, worried, and very much out of her element in that little room.

Caermaen could be a very dignified and frigid young man when he chose.

"I could, of course, give an exact account of my movements during that time." His smile was polite but extremely cold. "But I feel that that is the kind of question which is best asked and answered through one's solicitors. Mine are Jarroman & Kyle of Lincoln's Inn Fields. May I help you with that bag, Miss Cornboise?"

"Thank you so much!" As he picked up the dressing case Rhoda managed to squeeze his hand. Then, under her mother's sternly disapproving eyes, she kissed Mrs. Rawlings and a minute later she was driving away with her mother in the taxi.

The taxi took them to a large but quiet hotel in Kensington. Here Rhoda learned with dismay that she was not to have a room to herself, but was to share a big two bedded sitting room with her mother.

"Your baby will be born in France."

As soon as their luggage had been brought in Mrs. Cornboise returned to the subject.

"I admit you were right, Rhoda. Even with the lapse of memory I think you would have known if Capt. Caermaen had really been your lover."

Rhoda was vastly relieved, for she had not yet learned that when her mother was placatory she was most dangerous.

"I'm sure I should know!" she said with all the indifference she could muster.

"It's so difficult to know what to do for the best," continued Mrs. Cornboise. "The future is very black, Rhoda. And I don't think either of us will be very happy while this order is in force and I am—as you said yourself—your jailer."

"It's a little late to think of that now," said the girl bitterly.

"But not too late to find a remedy," said Mrs. Cornboise quickly. "If I were to wire to Ralph Stornack—— "

"Mother! Are you mad? You know that is impossible now. But I must have misunderstood you. You don't really suggest that I should cheat Maj. Stornack into marrying me now?"

"It isn't a matter of cheating. When he said he did not mind where you had been during your—lapse of memory—he knew the risk he was taking. Rhoda, why don't you be sensible and let him take his risk? Once you're married—— "

"No."

"I was going to say that once you're married it doesn't matter whether you care for him an awful lot—— "

"No."

At the flat defiance Mrs. Cornboise laughed mirthlessly.

"You wouldn't be so firm about it if you didn't know the name of your lover."

Rhoda made no answer but her lips were tight set.

"For the last time, tell me who he is?"

As Rhoda still said nothing she went on:

"Very well! You're ashamed of him. So now I know exactly what to do. I shall do my utmost to find out who he is—in order to keep him out of your way. As a possible husband for you I shall put him right out of my thoughts."

This was the stiffest test of all—to remain silent while the man she loved and honored was dismissed as a nameless rapscallion.

"It doesn't matter to me what you think, mother." She spoke boldly, though she was very near tears. "But I would like to know what you intend to do with me now that you've got that order?"

"My first care will be to avoid scandal as far as I possibly can!" said Mrs. Cornboise, almost as if she were speaking to herself. "And I've given your name here as my married daughter, Mrs. Smith. I've never been to this hotel before and no one knows me But there's always the chance of an accidental meeting. We shall never be safe in this country."

Even before Mrs. Cornboise had spoken the words Rhoda had guessed what was coming next.

"Your baby will be born in France."

"No, no!" cried Rhoda.

"Your baby will be born," repeated her mother, "in reasonably pleasant conditions in France—or in a lunatic asylum. Which is it going to be?" Mrs. Cornboise tapped the bag that contained the magistrate's order.

"France," said Rhoda.

As it was a Saturday, Jack Caermaen had arrived in London after all business offices were closed. On the telephone he had learned that he could see his solicitor at his private address but not before 5 o'clock. He had hoped to fill in the time in Rhoda's company.

Mrs. Rawlings told him, as far as she understood it, exactly what had happened.

"She's a clever girl to think of that invisible writing idea," said Caermaen. "Of course, it would not go far with the police but the police won't be in it. And it would be good enough to deceive her mother."

Before he left Mrs. Rawlings he cautioned her to give no information to any one about himself. At 5 o'clock he was at his solicitor's private house in the suburbs.

Frederick Jarroman was a personal friend both of Caermaen and of Colin Briarley and had prepared the latter's defense.

"Trouble?" asked Jarroman. He led the other into the dining room and poured out a drink.

"I've come about Colin. Think back to the trial. You remember that bit the treasury man worked up. 'If any other man struck the blow that killed Simpson—that man must have jumped right over the table at which they were sitting—and then must have jumped back again. Which, members of the jury, I think you will agree is absurd.'"

"I think it was that point that convicted him."

"Listen. A few weeks ago a man came into my sitting room at Mardlehurst. He annoyed me—never mind how—and I took a slosh at him. He dodged the blow like a trained boxer. When I had another shot—he jumped clean over my table and landed the other side."

Garbo Retakes Put Director to Severe Test

Van Dyke's "Hi-ya, Kid," Is Jolt to Great One.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—"Woody" [Director W. S.] Van Dyke, who has braved the walrus in arctic waters while filming "Eskimo," who has taken pot shots at the infuriated lion in continental Africa while there with the "Trader Horn" cast and dared the sawtooth fangs of Tahitian sharks in order to take a swim while directing "White Shadows in the South Seas," put his daring and hardihood to its severest test when called on to film four days of retakes on Greta Garbo's "The Painted Veil" at Metro studio last week.

Van Dyke, who is an honorary officer in the United States marine reserves and whose favorite ditty, sung to himself in moments of stress, is the marine marching song "From the Halls of Montezuma to the Shores of Tripoli," didn't court the assignment, but he didn't duck it, either. Lots of directors, it might be remarked, don't care particularly about directing Garbo even under the most favorable possible arrangements [for them].

But "Van" was right on the job the morning the retakes were supposed to start. The big moment came for the queen of the lot to appear, which she did, striding across the set without a look right or left, toward her green portable dressing room. That's where the old marine spirit came in.

"Hi-ya, kid?" queried Van Dyke in that penetrating, throaty voice of his that has carried straight to the cameraman past so many yelling hundreds of extras in past mob scenes.

"Nobody had ever addressed Greta in those words or that tone on the M. G. M. lot before. It made even the Swedish stalagmite take notice. She eyed the lethery faced director with a chilly stare, then resumed her march into the dressing room.

The ensuing three days of reshooting were rendered exciting by byplay which those who were there to watch chose to interpret as a clash of wills and temperaments. Van was determined Greta should get interested. Greta, as usual, was determined, too, but as usual nobody was able to tell about what.

Those who have read a lot about Greta Garbo and little about Col. Van Dyke might foresee a one sided contest, but those in Hollywood fortunate enough to have watched Van Dyke in some former situations could foresee the yielding of Queen Christina.

The austere star began to melt into a semblance of interest the next morning when the director, with a Ned Sparks face, but a smile in his voice, greeted Greta with: "How-ya, sweetheart, this morning? Did you bring your roller skates along?"

The interest couldn't stay out of her eyes when Van Dyke, designedly by mistake, called her "Miss Crawford" a couple of times while giving directions for a scene.

Even Greta's famous nonspeaking maid Alma was bending an ear around the door of the green dressing room to tune in on some of the remarks on the set. The three days of retakes finished up yesterday afternoon. They finished with Greta talking small talk to Van and the latter remembering to call her by her right name and adding her to the list of Hollywood people who shall this year be honored with one of Van Dyke's famous gag Christmas remembrances.

It is now said on the M. G. M. lot that Garbo, whose word is very weighty in the front offices of the studio, has let it be known she would like to have Van Dyke direct her in her next picture.

Jean Hersholt, Herbert Marshall, and Cecilia Parker, who plays Greta's sister in the story, were the members of the cast who also were in on the retakes and privileged to gulp off stage snickers over the byplay. The retakes were offered so as to change some of the scenes to a new version. Richard Boleslavsky, who directed all of the story as regularly shot, could not be obtained for the added scenes because he is now working at United Artists studio on the Ronald Colman "Clive of India" picture.

Society Players Train Secretly for Melodrama

With the plans for the St. Chrysostom's sale, Mrs. Parsons is juggling dates and plans for the holiday festivities that await the return of her debutante daughter, Miss Louise Parsons, on Dec. 11 from New Haven, where she is attending the Yale school of fine arts.

Mr. and Mrs. Parsons are presenting their daughter at a reception the afternoon of Dec. 14 at the Fortnightly club. Two days before this Miss Parsons is to be entertained at a debutante luncheon given for her by Miss Cornelia Conger at the Casino. Still another party that will have a place on her holiday calendar will be the buffet supper and hocky party Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield are giving for her, Miss Frances Jeffery and Miss Nancy Doering, two more of the season's debutantes, the evening of Dec. 30. The supper will be at the Offield home and then all of the party will move on to the Chicago Stadium for the hocky game.

Another church affair of social interest is the plantation party and petite bazar the Woman's guild of St. Luke's pro-cathedral, Evanston, is to have Wednesday in coöperation with the other parish organizations. Mrs. Thomas Fitzsimmons and Mrs. R. F. Klike Jr., the co-chairmen, explain that the parish house will be transformed into an old fashioned southern plantation.

The day will start with a buffet luncheon at noon, followed by the sale. In the evening there will be a plantation dinner and then a sale of books and calendars by the evening guild. Mrs. Frederick C. Seymour is president of the Women's guild and auxiliary.

Nancy Traylor Advances Wedding to Thanksgiving.

Miss Nancy Traylor and Nathan B. Swift have advanced the date of their wedding from December to Nov. 29. The wedding will take place on Thanksgiving day at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, on Barry avenue, at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The ceremony will be a very quiet one, with just the immediate families and a few intimate friends present. Other close friends of Miss Traylor and Mr. Swift, who is the son of the Alden B. Swifts, are invited to come in after the service to wish the bride and bridegroom happiness.

Miss Traylor will be unattended. Bruce Baker of Lake Forest will serve Mr. Swift as best man. Upon their return from a wedding trip Mr. Swift and his bride will be at home in the Traylor house. Mrs. Traylor is going to South America after Christmas.

Graf-Connell Prenuptial Parties Start Wednesday.

With their wedding scheduled for Dec. 1 at 8 p. m. at the Fortnightly, Miss Barbara Graf, daughter of the Robert J. Grafs, and Charles S. Connell, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. Gregory Connell of Oshkosh, Wis., are about to be plunged into a round of prenuptial festivities. Miss Graf is having many luncheons, teas and showers, for she is a popular young woman and all of her friends are anxious to entertain for her.

Miss Barbara Eldridge is having a tea and kitchen shower Wednesday afternoon and Miss Grace Fitzmorris is having a luncheon and bridge the next afternoon in her parents' Lake Shore drive apartment. Watson Newhall, who is to be one of Mr. Connell's groomsmen, is having a cocktail party for Miss Graf and Mr. Connell in his new apartment at 190 East Delaware place late this week.

Mrs. Eugene Cary Jr. will have a tea and stocking shower for Miss Graf next Monday in the Carys' apartment in the Marshall Field Garden apartments, and Miss Caryl Bloomingston will have a luncheon and miscellaneous shower the following Wednesday afternoon at her home. Thursday evening, Nov. 22, Edmund Sullivan, the best man, will give a dinner at the Palmer house. Miss Jane McMurray will give a dinner the following night in her mother's apartment on the south side.

The week-end of the 24th will be a busy one, for two of the bridesmaids, Miss Isabel Gordon and Miss Eleanor McNally, are planning a party for the Saturday night. John E. Baker Jr., one of the ushers, will have a luncheon at his family's home in Lake Forest Sunday, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Nolan will have a buffet supper in their apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue Sunday evening. The former Jane Fortune will be a bridesmaid. Miss Janet Ayer, the fourth bridesmaid, will give the spinster dinner during the week before the wedding, and Mr. Connell will have his bachelor dinner the same evening. Mr. and Mrs. Graf are giving the bridal dinner the night before the wedding at the Tavern club.

First of Sims-Evans Prenuptial Parties Today.

Miss Anne Gruner has arrived from St. Louis to attend some of the prenuptial parties that are being given for Miss Priscilla Sims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims, and John Ford Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Wallace Evans, who are being married next Saturday night at the Sims home on Bellevue place, with a reception afterward at the Fortnightly.

Today all of the bridesmaids will lunch with Miss Marion Hedly in Barrington. Tomorrow Miss Helen Harrison is giving a luncheon for the bride-to-be at the Skokie Country club, and Mrs. Orrin H. Baker will be a luncheon hostess the following day in her Lake Shore drive home. Miss Sims has planned a trousseau tea for Thursday afternoon, followed by the spinster dinner. Mr. Evans, of course, will have his bachelor dinner the same night. Mrs. Thomas Donovan, who will be a bridesmaid, and her husband are planning a dinner some time before the wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. Sims will give the bridal dinner at home the night before the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Townsend Jr. of Wilmette are announcing this morning the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to William Thomas Reed, son of Mrs. William P. Reed of Winnetka. Miss Townsend was graduated last June from Northwestern university. Mr. Reed is a graduate of Purdue university.

Next Opera Morning Program Thursday.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham is one of those most interested in the intimate opera mornings that are being presented by Anna Fitzu and Edna Kellogg with Frederic Persson at the piano on Thursdays at 11:30 o'clock, for she is Miss Fitzu's sister and Miss Kellogg's aunt. The first one with "Turandot" as the subject was given last week in the ballroom of the Blackstone and the next one will be given this coming Thursday in the Drake ballroom with "Salome" as the subject. Mrs. Graham received at the reception that followed the opera première last Saturday night on the stage of the Civic Opera house, and tomorrow night, as a regular Tuesday boxholder, she will entertain a party at "Tosca," which will be another gala performance. Every one this week will be gala, in fact, and tonight's audience at "Andrea Chenier" is certain to rival Saturday night's in brilliancy.

Now that the opera season is under way the box committee with Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne as the chairman is giving up its Thursday luncheons in favor of two teas during the next fortnight. At the tea hour Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jacob Baur sales and figures will be discussed and then Mrs. Osborne will award a prize to the committee member with the best record. The kind of prize has not been revealed, although it is known that it has something to do with opera. The second tea, also for the purpose of reports, will be the following Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Osborne.

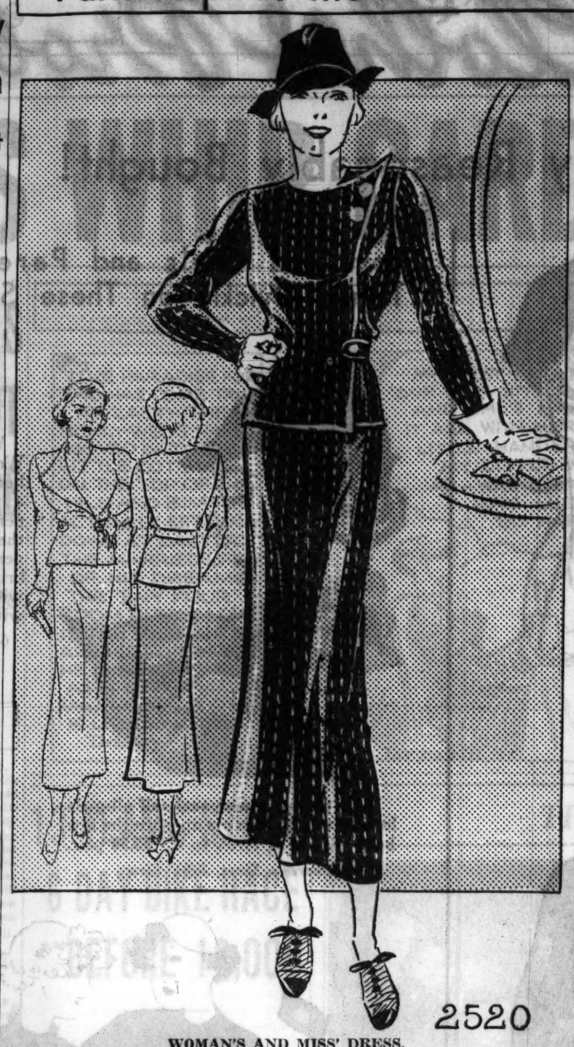
Musical Society Opens Season Today.

The Lake View Musical society is opening its 39th season today with a reception for its new president. Mrs. Cora Willis Ware, at 2:30 o'clock in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone. Contributing to the program will be Estrid Buck, soprano; Florence Galajikian, composer-pianist; Caroline Solfrouk, flutist, and Elizabeth Harting Percy, violinist. Hostesses for the party will be Mrs. Wallace F. Grosvenor, Mrs. J. T. Pickerill, and Mrs. Olive D. Ahara.

There is interest also today in the reception the board of trustees of the Hoosier Salon Patrons' association is having from 3 to 6 o'clock in the Lord Nelson room of the Drake hotel for Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Adams of New York City and Elizabethtown, N. Y. The same guests who have been invited to the party today will watch Mr. Adams, for many years head of the Grand Central School of Portraiture in New York, paint a portrait at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Tower room of the Drake.

While in Chicago the Adamses are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Warner Williams. John C. Shaffer of Evanston is giving a dinner for them tomorrow night and Wednesday Mr. Adams will be the guest of John T. McCutcheon at a luncheon at the Chicago club.

Paris Inspires the Neckline



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This good looking two piece dress has the Vionnet closing, the partial belt that buttons at either side of the front, and a new high neckline that may be worn open, in rever styling, or closed, as the large sketch shows. A soft Angora woolen in amethyst coloring, with red buttons, made the original dress. A separate blouse of jersey and a separate plaided woolen skirt are suggestions.

The pattern, No. 2520, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Wonder of the World,

BY NANCY CABOT.

Which of the seven wonders of the ancient world this pattern is supposed to represent is unknown. One can but conjecture, since the history of the block has been lost. The original quilt, however, has passed a hundred birthdays and is still as beautiful as it was when first made, so I'm told. It was done in a combination of figured and plain materials.

The Fourth Chicago Tribune School of Cookery goes to Guyon's Paradise ballroom tomorrow for the second week. Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, famous home economics expert, in co-operation with Miss Mary Meade, cooking editor, will conduct the sessions. The schedule is as follows:

West side—Guyon's Paradise ballroom, Nov. 13, 14, 15, and 16.

All schools will open at 12:30 oclock.

BY MARY MEADE.

Foods with spirited flavorings are again most genial additions to our three meals a day. Simple desserts, especially, become something glamorous and "quite other" when flattered with wine sauce or a subtle flavoring of spirits. From Miss K. C., in Milwaukee, arrives a request for

Baked Rum Custard

4 eggs
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup rum
4 cups milk.

Whip the eggs with a fork until foamy. Add the sugar and salt, beating until light and well blended. Add the rum and milk. Turn the custard into buttered custard cups and place these in a shallow pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] until firm in the center. When pierced with a knife, the blade should come out clean. Chill, or serve hot. Add a topping of wine-flavored whipped cream if you wish. This may be made by beating chilled, heavy cream until it begins to thicken, then adding powdered sugar to sweeten and wine or cordial to flavor—beating steadily during the additions.

And still they come, this one from Mrs. F. F., requesting the recipe for that delectable French flourish—the Crepe Suzette. Especially does Mrs. F. want one which is rum flavored and which one lights and serves blazing. So here we are—a hot dish to tempt the most choosey epicure.

Crepe Suzette

[Which Lights Its Own Way.]
1 cup flour
1 tablespoon confectioner's sugar
1½ cups milk
2 eggs, well beaten
1 tablespoon rum
¼ teaspoon salt
Few drops each of vanilla and orange extract.

Sift together the flour and sugar. Combine the milk, well beaten eggs, rum, and flavorings. With a rotary egg beater, whip into this the dry mixture. Have ready a hot, heavy frying pan, lightly greased. Drop the thin batter into the pan by tablespoons, allowing considerable room for spreading. Turn down the heat and fry slowly first on one side, then the other. When golden brown, fold the slim little pancakes in quarters or halves. Place them on a plate, pour over them a little Curacao, light it quickly with a match, and serve the Crepe Suzette aflame. This is used as a dessert, with two small or one large Crepe Suzette offered to each diner.

Laundering of dishes and clothes is hardly a jolly job no matter how you look at it. The most intriguing product we've seen lately for lightening the labor is a modern sudsless cleaner which comes in powder form in a cardboard container. Its action is to emulsify or break down the grease which holds the dirt to the surface of the dress or dish.

And if you have silver wailing for a cleaning, here's a stunt for you to try. The same company which produces the sudsless cleaner offers a new gadget for silver cleaning. It's a metal plate which, when placed with stained silverware in a solution of hot water and a little of the cleaning powder, steals the stains from off the knives and forks, transferring the discoloration to its own metal sides. If you remember your chemistry, you'll recognize this process as "electrolysis."

Steaming troubles are worrying Mrs. C. M. Every time she cans or when any boiling is done, up comes the steam and covers all the windows. What to do? My suggestion is this. On the market, in stores and often at filling stations, are compounds which may be rubbed over windshields to prevent steaming in cold weather. These same products will assist in preventing steaming inside the house. One new combination of which I heard recently has a cellulose base and will prevent steaming on windshields, car and home windows, bathroom mirrors, and even eye glasses. Only a few automobile service stations so far in Chicago are carrying this product.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There hasn't been much noise about it, but carnation is sweeping into women's favor. They tell us in the shops that that scent is giving gardenia a good run for its money—and that's saying a lot.

This being the case, one wide awake store here hopped right to it and brought out a trio of bath trimmings all in carnation motif. They're there waiting for you—pretty as pictures, moderately priced and an excellent quality of merchandise—soap, dusting powder, and talc. If the scent of carnation is your pet, you'll be mad about them.

The soap is the bland sort, guaranteed to be kind to tender, dry skin. It lathers well and the fragrance is beautifully true. You'll like the box—pink and white and blue, very well styled, the sort of bathroom accessory you'll like to have on display.

The same design is used on the tins for the body powder and the talc. Both of these are of excellent texture and here again the carnation scent is true.

And almost everywhere in town you can find a carnation perfume that is a knockout. It's most inexpensive, but the quality leaves nothing to be desired. It's called "crushed carnation" and the fragrance is charming.

This is a scent almost all women can wear. It's not naïve, but neither is it dripping with sophistication; it's a lovely perfume for daytime use because it's so thoroughly pleasant without being overpowering.

You carnation fans can have complete harmony now, with your perfume, your soap, and your body powder all giving the same delightful fragrance.

Almost Every Baby Wants to "Tag" Mother

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

How about the young toddler who dogs his mother's footsteps?

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I have a 15 month old baby whom I find hard to manage. He insists on following me around the house all day long. He refuses to play with his own toys and sleeps little. Whatever I do fails to amuse him. What shall I do?"

To the baby of this age home is the whole world and great adventure, and his mother the center of the universe. She is the cause of all his physical needs being satisfied—the one who heals and comforts him in pain. It is from her that he learns to play and smile and talk. She is the sun in his sky—and must shine upon him if he is to thrive and be happy.

If that last statement sounds extreme or full of sentiment let me assure you that is a statement of actual fact. Young human things have sickened and even died for lack of love and play and interest.

To be sure it is hard to surmise what such difficulties are at long distance. I wrote to this mother: "I think it is possible that some of the following things may be the cause of your baby acting as he does:

"You may not be companionable enough with him and talk to him and show interest in him, so that he feels lonely. It is quite natural for a baby at that age to follow his mother around the house. He doesn't want to play way off by himself. Be willing to stop your housework and sit down and play with your baby. Let him trot around with you and talk to him. Show him pictures and treat him as a regular person who understands. Enjoy him and discover how interesting he is.

"Do you take him out to the nearby parks where he can play outdoors? Lots of fresh air would help him with his sleeping. When you put him to bed at night do it affectionately and with leisure. I think he will be more apt to sleep with this atmosphere around him.

"I think a good doctor should examine him periodically to see if he is in good health.

"We can give you practical suggestions as to play materials if you wish to write. If you do so please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope."

Ethel Merman's Beauty Care Is Unsensational

Singer Adheres to Simple Aids to Loveliness.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Beauty secrets? You flatter me," twinkled the famous blues singer, Ethel Merman. "My laurels to fame, if I have any, don't rest on beauty." But I wondered. Even as she spoke her smile revealed an aliveness and a charm that would have distinguished the homeliest of women.

But no woman can jump from a secretarial job to Broadway and the movies with only a smile and a voice to her credit. I gave her a closer scrutiny. Long lashes curled back from dark eyes. Beautifully shaped lips parted to display gleaming white teeth. Loosely waved black hair fell into a mass of curls low on her neck.

"I really haven't much time to spend making myself beautiful," she said. "Soap and water are about all my face gets, with an application of cleansing cream following the scrubbing. My daytime mascara and powder are the same brands as those I use for stage makeup."

"Many women," vouchsafed Miss Merman, "apply makeup too liberally, giving themselves an artificial look. Or they make the mistake of selecting the wrong shades for themselves."

Her own lips had plenty of color, and her lashes had been darkened, but nothing about her suggested artificiality. Even the permanent for the ends of her hair had been loosened to carelessly natural curls. Her cheeks held only the slightest suggestion of rouge.

We talked about her voice, which is pitched low, with unusual resonance. "I don't know what it's supposed to be—soprano, contralto, or alto, or just a combination." Incidentally, Miss Merman has never had any music lessons. She's afraid to take them now, having been warned that they may spoil her voice.

I asked her how she stayed tiny enough to fit into a size twelve. "Work might have something to do with it," she admitted. "It's when I loaf between engagements that I begin to take on weight." But I doubted if she'd have to worry about diets for many years to come.

Lighter Side of Living Is Worth While Discovering

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Instead of going to dance in a hot, stuffy room, I prefer to sit out and talk." Peggy speaking. It gives a picture of a young lady who isn't going to go far with the opposite sex. When a young woman expresses her preference for talk over a tango or waltz you just know she's in luck to have this date, but there "ain't goin' to be many more."

Sure, it's nice to sit out between dances, just to learn something about this boy that's been cutting in on you or thought enough of you to invite you out. But foregoing the dance floor scene entirely for a sitting out evening session—well, we think there's something wrong with the girl. Peggy confides that she's been looking long for a man who is willing to sit out and talk about the affairs of the world, etc. But the young men all seem too light and heedless.

Better try and catch a little of their infection for the lighter side of living, too, Peg. You can talk over the world troubles when you have him on your hands at home for a Sunday evening. Even then we wouldn't advise you to become too serious about it. And if the world problems are to be settled, let the young man settle them for you. Let him expand on Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, and the rest of them. You inject an "Is that so? '

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

DECIDING BETWEEN A RAISE AND A TAKEOUT.

When you have four trumps for your partner and also a biddable suit, you must sometimes make a delicate decision whether to bid your suit or raise. This problem does not occur when your suit is of higher rank than your partner's, because you can then intrust your worries to the

which is especially effective with weak responding hands, as it makes it easy for you to do your own signing off. For instance, if your partner bids a heart and you hold

Sp.—Q 10 x x x	Di.—x x
Ht.—Q x x x	Cl.—x x

you must obviously keep the bidding open. Game is unlikely unless your partner can fit your spades with high card support. Respond with a spade, and you will not lose control of the situation.

1. If your partner rebids with two spades, bid three hearts, and you will not get to your game. Try to play the hand in four hearts, not four spades, as it is now likely that hearts are 4-4 in your two hands, so it is better for hearts to be trump and spades to be the off suit, in order that your long spades may enable your partner to discard some losers.

2. If he bids two hearts, pass. The signoff is mutual.

3. If he bids a no trump, bid two hearts. Again the signoff is mutual, and your partner will pass unless he has a freak hand requiring only heart support to yield a play for game.

4. If he bids a minor suit secondarily, revert to two hearts; a preference showing signoff which partner should pass unless he has some freakish distribution requiring only heart support for game probability.

5. If he bids two no trumps or three in a minor suit, show your heart support, and this should result in the right game contract.

I have only gone over this familiar ground in order to illustrate how the one-over-one provides a full range of signoffs though it showed a second biddable suit as one of the partnership's assets. It should never get you beyond a contract for one no trump or two in a suit when the responder's intention is merely to give a chance with a very weak hand, and the opener cannot make any other than minimum rebid.

When Responder's Suit Is of Lower Rank.

It is when the one-over-one cannot be employed that thought is sometimes required to decide in what manner to give the chance—whether to take out or raise. If you take out on the first round and then, on the next round, show support for your partner's suit, you may be doing so only to get out of a bad declaration, and with the idea of signing off. Your partner, however, will necessary derive great encouragement from your bidding, and rightly so. It will be almost impossible to keep out of a game contract.

How Not to Bid This Hand.

If your partner bids a spade and you hold

Sp.—Q x x x	Di.—x x
Ht.—Q 10 x x x	Cl—x x

let us see what will happen if you bid two hearts.

1. If your partner bids two spades, signing off, you will be in a quandary. Possibly the bid is high enough, but it may well be that he needs only to know that you have trump support in order to bid for game; had you bid two spades, he might have been able to bid four spades in reply. You have put yourself to a needless guess, and whichever course you take is likely to be wrong. Certainly if you now bid three spades and this contract is set, your partner will justly complain that you have needlessly put him on the spot.

2. If he bids two no trumps, you cannot pass that least desirable of all declarations with this weak hand; you must, for safety, bid three spades. On this apparently invitational bidding your partner is virtually forbidden to stop, and so you will inevitably get to four spades, probably doubled.

3. If he bids three in a minor suit, you must bid three spades. Again you will surely end up in four spades, as partner can hardly read this as a mere signoff showing preference. Only if he has a singleton heart is game likely, as your holding does not eliminate any heart losers from his hand unless he actually has a secondary heart bid himself.

4. Only if your partner raises your heart takeout—a long shot indeed—will no harm have been done. Now, a spade game is a good chance and should be reached; but it would also have been reached in the following manner: One spade, two spades, two no trumps, three hearts, four hearts, four spades; or, one spade, two spades, three hearts [by opener on A J x x], four spades [no slam try after the first minimum raise]; or, one spade, two spades, three diamonds or clubs, three hearts, four hearts, four spades; or, one spade, two spades, three diamonds or clubs, three hearts, three no trumps, four spades.

Thin Rundown Nervous Folks

"NATURAL IODINE"

Ask Druggist for Kelp-A-Malt—Richest Source of Vitally Essential Minerals Often Lacking in Daily Diet!

Don't be discouraged if your appetite isn't good or you seem to be naturally skinny and just can't gain an ounce.

Kelp-A-Malt, the new mineral concentrate from the sea, now gets right down and corrects the cause of this condition—enables you to put on those extra lbs. of good solid flesh that make you look and feel so well—and does it so fast it will amaze you. Gains of 10 to 20 lbs. in a few weeks not uncommon.

Kelp-A-Malt works two ways. First it supplies the system with NATURAL IODINE. Without it your internal glands which actually control body weight, become overactive, irregular and cause the destruction of new tissue almost as quickly as it is formed. The result is you stay skinny.

Then Kelp-A-Malt natural minerals nourish the digestive glands so that your system can digest fats and starches... the main weight building materials in food—which you have probably been wasting. Try Kelp-A-Malt for a single week and notice the difference—how much better you feel. You will be delighted with the pounds of good solid flesh you put on even the first week. Kelp-A-Malt costs but little and can be had at

TAKE MY TIP, GIRLS—
IF YOU WANT SPARKLING
WHITE TEETH IN A HURRY.

Use special toothpaste that restores natural whiteness to dingy teeth

Now clear, white teeth and a dazzling smile aren't hopeless ambitions, no matter how dull, dingy and unsightly your teeth may be. For modern science has developed a quick-cleansing way to give your teeth a sparkle and whiteness they've probably never had before.

All you do is start using Kolynos. Just as you would any ordinary toothpaste with this one exception: Use it on a dry brush—without water—to obtain the best results. Results that will astonish and delight you.

No Ordinary Toothpaste Can Do This

Kolynos cleans and brightens teeth so effectively because it contains certain properties not found in ordinary toothpaste. These properties kill millions of germs that cover the teeth with a dingy, discolored yellow mask. This extra cleansing quickly gives teeth the attractive gleam of polished jewels—a whiteness you didn't believe possible.

Discover for yourself what hundreds of people already know—how much quicker and better antiseptic Kolynos cleans and whitens teeth. When you see the results we promise you'll never go back to unscientific methods of brushing. Get a tube of Kolynos from your druggist, today.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Detroit's mighty Lions achieved their ninth consecutive victory of the National Professional Football league season yesterday, but en route to the triumph which kept them in a tie for the league lead they met an inspired band of Chicago Cardinals who piled up two touchdowns in five minutes of the fourth quarter and were dropped into defeat, 17 to 13, only by the fickleness of fortune. The crowd numbered 7,500.

Detroit's total included Dutch Clark's touchdown on a seven yard sprint off right tackle and his extra point in the first quarter; Glen Presnell's field goal by placement from the 24 yard line in the second period; and a seven yard run off tackle on a reverse by Presnell, after which he also kicked the extra point, in the third period.

Doug Russell, fleet half back from Kansas State, gave the Cardinals their first touchdown on a 77 yard run off tackle in the fourth quarter. Nine plays later a pass, Phil Sarboe to Bill Smith for 21 yards, climaxed a 62 yard drive through the Lion's celebrated defense without interruption after the ensuing kickoff.

Second Stringers Star.

Warning of what might be expected if the Cardinals elected to give a second string back field combination of Russell and Hinchman, half backs, and Sarboe, quarter back, teamed with first string full back, Mike Mikulak, a chance came in the waning minutes of the second quarter when Russell and Mikulak piled up 16 yards in four plays as the half ended. The regular back field of Greene, Griffith, Cook and Mikulak had enjoyed little success against the Detroit defense, which up until yesterday had allowed only seven points in eight games and had been pushed back to its 20 yard line only three times all season.

With a trifle better luck the Cardinals might have won. Fate first frowned on the Chicagoans early in the third period when they were keeping Detroit backed down in its own territory. A bad punt gave the Cardinals the ball on Detroit's 15 yard line. On fourth down Griffith needed two yards for the first down, but when he came to rest after being tackled, he held the ball closely hugged to his stomach and there it was, just one inch short of the required distance. Had he lugged it one inch higher or set it down even with his shoulders, as backs generally do, the Cardinals would have had a first down on the five yard line. This was the only real threat the first string ball carriers made.

Tough Break on Penalty.

The second untimely break came later in the same period when a hair-line decision on holding in the line gave Detroit a first down after an incomplete fourth down pass. The Cardinals protested on the grounds that they had not violated the code as it is interpreted in the pro league, where linemen, they contended, are allowed to keep offensive forwards on the line of scrimmage without being guilty of interference. The decision, however, stood and the Lions were given the ball on the Cardinals' 10 yard line, from where they forged ahead to their last touchdown, Presnell going over on second down.

The first string Cardinal backs left the ball on their own 19 yard line for the substitutes at the start of the fourth period. Presnell intercepted Sarboe's first down pass on the Cardinals' 44 yard line and Hinchman then intercepted Presnell's pass on the next play, the Cardinals gaining four yards on the exchange. Sarboe then began mixing the Cardinals' plays with such skill that Detroit appeared completely baffled.

Right off Tackle!

On the first down Russell took the ball, cut off right tackle, veered out two steps, then reversed his field and raced 77 yards to a touchdown. Father Lumpkin, Detroit's great blocking back and highly regarded defender, gave chase, but his lunge in midfield missed the flying Kansan by yards.

Detroit's first team, excepting Clark

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Sixteen thousand folk, most of them bike fans of an alarming advanced stage, judging from the way they hollered throughout the evening, were on hand last night as Chicago's 32d international six day race got under way. It was the second largest crowd that ever saw a night of cycling in Chicago.

The bike riders, responsive to big crowds just as are other high strung and temperamental artists, lost little time in getting the race rolling. Ten minutes after the starting gun had been fired by Jackie Cooper of the movies, the Wissel-Grimm team stepped out for the first lap of the race. From then on there was continuous jamming until Tony Schaller of Chicago and Bobby Thomas of Kenosha, partners, tangled in a pickup for the first spill of the race.

Racing Is Spirited.

After Schaller and Thomas had been patched up they engaged in a series of jousts with the colorful and popular team composed of Al Letourner and Gerard Debaets, which precipitated a lot of fine riding. The tilts between the two teams was of the neck and neck variety which was recognized as hot racing even by those uninitiated who look upon the field as more or less of a confused melée.

After the first series of sprints and the accompanying jamming, Schaller and Thomas found themselves in possession of the lead in the race, though they did not outpoint Letourner and Debaets in the aforesaid personal clashes — the advantage coming in later bursts of speed in which Al and Gerard were content to pedal along with the field. They over did this late comfort riding to the extent they were fined $10 each for not chasing in one jam at 11:30 o'clock.

They're Just Fooling.

Shortly after the fines had been slapped on, Letourner and Debaets turned on the speed just to show their constituency they'd only been fooling. They continued to be favorites to win the race.

The first announcement of standings showed Garrison-Deulberg and Spencer-Walthour one lap behind Schaller-Thomas, but at 11:50 Spencer-Walthour rode into a mileage tie with Tony and Bobby.

Results of 1 a. m. sprints:
1—Spencer, Cohen, Lands, Garrison.
2—Martinetti, Thomas, McNamara, Walthour
3—Spencer, Rodak, Wagner, Cohen.
4—Martinetti, Rodman, Thomas Trieste.
5—De Baets, Lands, Walthour, Trieste.
6—Letourner, Wissel, Cohen, Rys.
7—Lands, De Baets, Rodak, Deulberg.
8—Rodak, Dempsey, Rys, Yates.

10—Martinetti, Thomas, Lipsett, Rodak.

U. S. RIDER WINS $1,000 MILITARY SWEEPSTAKES

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The United States army team tonight continued its sweep through the international events at the national horse show in Madison Square Garden, when Lieut. Carl W. Raguse rode his great jumper, Dakota, to victory in the $1,000 military sweepstakes.

Winner of the Bowman challenge cup last night, Lieut. Raguse and Dakota turned back the bid of 36 other combinations from five nations, taking the event after a jump off by completing the difficult course in the sensational time of 23 seconds. As in last night's competition, Capt. Frederick Ahern of the Irish Free State and his mount, Gallowglass, placed second, being clocked in 23.7 seconds.

THERE THEY GO—SIX DAYS FROM FINISH

Minnesota, Illinois, Purdue Rush On Toward 3-Way Tie

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While Minnesota, Illinois, and Purdue are marching shoulder to shoulder with the Big Ten football title as common destination, and offering ultimate dispute as to the merits of each victor [provided, of course, the tie is maintained], this may be the proper time to get the jump on alumni groups.

At the same time a brief survey of sectional leaders, several of whom hope the Rose bowl committee will beam kindly in their direction, is not out of order. Minnesota and Purdue undoubtedly will finish their conference schedules undefeated. It is unanimous opinion that neither Chicago nor Wisconsin is capable of defeating the Gophers.

Minnesota Rolls On.

The rising tide of Minnesota power shows no signs of abatement [Minnesota, 30; Indiana, 0] and if the north men do slow up a bit, they will still have enough to whip Chicago and then Wisconsin. The Maroons have passed their peak of effectiveness, which was in the Purdue game a week ago, and must cope with increasing injuries to a small squad of effective players. If Chicago should beat Minnesota, it would be the upsettingest upset of the season.

Wisconsin, mighty glad to add another thorn to Coach Harry Kipke's crown Saturday by whipping Michigan, 10 to 0, didn't score from scrimmage. A 99 yard run with the opening kickoff and subsequent field goal provided the points. Minnesota scored five touchdowns against Michigan, so the obvious answer is a Minnesota victory at Madison, Nov. 24, and an eight game undefeated record for Coach Bernie Bierman and his squad.

Purdue takes time out this week to play Fordham in New York, a second presentation of the Notre Dame teammate coaching rivalry—this between Jimmy Crowley and Noble Kizer. In the first act Elmer Layden defeated Kizer, which licking was the second the Boilermakers have taken this fall. After Fordham comes Purdue's windup with Indiana at Lafayette and unless the Hoosiers find an offense to keep pace with the prancing of Duane Purvis and Jim Carter which defeated Iowa Saturday, the Boilermakers have won their share of the title.

Illinois Has Most Trouble.

Now for Illinois, which has been hardest pressed in its championship aspirations by the opposition. Illinois' big moment was the 14 to 13 defeat of Ohio State. The Illini were better than a 7 to 6 victory over Michigan indicated, but, with the Army game coming up, Coach Zuppke did not wish to press.

Illinois' 14 to 3 victory over Northwestern Saturday was No. 3 in the conference for the Illini. Wisconsin is expected to be the fourth victim this week, but the weather may affect Illinois' weapons. Even a scoreless tie would be disastrous to Illinois' hope. The Illini conclude with Chicago, possibly their strongest Big Ten opponent since the Ohio State opener, and here condition of Chicago players following their battle at Minnesota—in particular, the condition of Jay Berwanger—will largely determine the result.

Big Ten Standing

Minnesota	3	0	0	112	12
Purdue	3	0	0	53	26
Illinois	3	0	0	35	22
Ohio State	3	1	0	107	20
Chicago	2	2	0	68	59
Iowa	1	2	1	38	68
Wisconsin	1	2	0	10	21
Northwestern	1	3	0	23	62
Indiana	0	3	1	0	84
Michigan	0	4	0	6	78

Ohio Second Strongest?

Ohio State, which gave Chicago a crushing 33 to 0 defeat Saturday, has Michigan and Iowa as remaining opponents. Although the Buckeyes are eliminated by one point in championship conversation, many will tell you they are the second strongest eleven in the Big Ten, if, indeed, they are not fit opponents for Minnesota. Since the Gophers defeated Michigan, 34 to 0, and Iowa, 48 to 12, Ohio State may shoot at comparative scores in the final games. Ohio's greatest claim to national fame, however, rests on defeat of Colgate, otherwise undefeated, just as Minnesota is most proud of its 13 to 7 victory of Pittsburgh, and Illinois boasts of its 7 to 0 victory over Army. These three non-conference teams met their only reversals in intersectional Big Ten games.

Indiana university has contributed to the conference record with a 6 to 6 tie against Temple, the only mark on Pop Warner's coaching record this fall.

Big Ten Out of Bowl.

No Big Ten team will be considered for eastern representative in the Rose bowl game. The conference rules forbid post-season games, and the bowl committee remembers that its campaign to get Michigan was unavailing. Minnesota, logical choice, already has taken the position that it cannot, and since it cannot does not care to play.

Syracuse, possibly willing, must take care of Colgate this week and Columbia one week later. Undefeated Navy probably will pass out of the picture [granted the academy would accept a Rose bowl invitation] this week when it plays Pittsburgh. And if the Panthers win, they may be the most logical choice in the east since victories over Notre Dame and Nebraska, combined with an earlier triumph over Southern California, have served to balance off the defeat by Minnesota.

Stanford Leads on Coast.

Alabama, undefeated, or Louisiana State, might get the invitation in the south except that their schedules have been sectional in the main.

Stanford, by its 24 to 0 victory over Washington Saturday, just about won the choice as western representative in the Rose bowl game, although it must dispose of California on Nov. 24. Despite an early season tie by Santa Clara, Stanford offers as first choice, although votes might be cast for St. Mary's.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

PROFESSIONAL football is having financial difficulties in California and probably will not be continued. . . . At the start of the season the players signed contracts whereby the winning contestants would receive $75 and the losers $25 each. . . . Now the promoters say they can't pay it and are giving the players a percentage of the receipts. . . . The average compensation is about $21 and the athletes are rebelling. . . . Bob Zuppke says the best break Notre Dame football ever received was when the Western conference turned down the school's application for admission in 1913. . . . Ky Laffoon has received a caddy bag full of fan mail from young women in the galleries following him this season, but he is too bashful to answer any of them. . . . Gertrude Stein, the literary lady, looks a lot like A. A. Stagg. . . . Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, and the club's business manager, Ed Barrow, have been vacationing at French Lick, Ind.

A fund is being raised in Baltimore to erect a bust of Babe Ruth, who made his start there. . . . Three members of the Denver university eleven are married. . . . John Heydler regards his arrangement of the major-minor league agreement in 1921 as the outstanding strategy he engineered as president of the National league. . . . Cornell's football players of 1890 were the original iron men. . . . They played Union on Monday, Williams on Tuesday, Harvard on Wednesday, Amherst on Thursday, Trinity on Friday, and Wesleyan on Saturday. . . . All the games were on the road, and were played on one trip to save traveling expenses. . . . Coach Charley Hoyt of the Michigan track team has high hopes for a conference title this spring. . . . Aside from Willis Ward, whom he regards as the greatest natural athlete he has seen, he has a fine array of sophomores. . . . He needs only a shot putter to round out the team.

Bob Tenner and Frank Larson, prize pupils of Bert Baston, Minnesota end coach, like to go duck hunting. . . . In 1933 before the Pittsburgh game Larson and Tenner came to the football field in their duck hunting clothes, kept their guns in their lockers, and after beating Pitt, 7 to 3, left with Coach Baston to kill a few ducks. . . . Freddy Frink, end on last year's Illinois eleven, and A. J. [Butch] Nowack, 1928 captain, are taking graduate work at their alma mater. . . . Frink is assisting in coaching the ends while Nowack is an assistant freshman coach. . . . Because they felt Butch was an inelegant name for a candidate for a master's degree the other coaches decided to call him by his right name, but they discovered none of them knew it, so they compromised by calling him "A. J." . . . Barney Kleinschmidt, who does the fancy baton twirling for the University of Chicago band, has been training hard all summer, but he is afraid the Illinois man will have an edge on him. . . . Stanley Hack Jr., 5½ pounds, was born yesterday at the Evangelical Deaconess hospital. . . . His father is the Cubs' third baseman and his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Hack, a former western tennis champion.

Joe Farrell, the voice of the Blackhawks, has a perfect record as a baseball manager. . . . In 1918 when he was publicizing the White Sox he served as manager in an exhibition game at Medford, Ore., against the Giants. . . . The Sox won, 2 to 1. . . . The New York Rangers hocky team has been in every National league playoff since entering the league in 1926. . . . They won the Stanley cup twice. . . . Texas Tech uses a huddle on offense and defense. . . . It is not Purdue's fault that Minnesota is not on its football schedule this season. . . . The Boilermakers wanted a game, but Fritz Crisler, who was athletic director when this year's Gopher schedule was arranged, signed with Chicago, where his former teacher, A. A. Stagg, was coach and director.

Ten Years Ago Today—Secretary of War Weeks was opposed to the Army-Navy game being played in Chicago. . . . Charley Weinert pounded out a twelve round decision over Luis Firpo. . . . Charley Robertson and Ted Lyons pitched the White Sox to an 8 to 7 victory over the Giants in Paris. . . . The Maroons were depending on their line to stop Northwestern's charges. . . . Chicago and Illinois scheduled Pennsylvania on a home and home game agreement.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—An Armistice day celebration turned into a field day for Harry Newman today as the former Michigan star romped to two touchdowns and led the New York Giants to a 17 to 3 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

Newman's first touchdown in the third period ended a 3 to 3 deadlock created early in the first period when Clark Hinkle placekicked a 17 yard field goal for Green Bay and Ken Strong kicked one from the ten yard line for the Giants.

After a scoreless second period Newman started out from his own 45 yard line and kept going until he was downed on the Packers' 30.

He and Strong advanced the ball to the visitors' eight yard line from where Newman ploughed through center to cross the goal line. Strong place kicked for the extra point.

A few minutes later, still in the third quarter, Red Badgro, Giant end, recovered a Packer fumble on the enemy's 14 yard line and again Newman ripped through the Packers' line for a touchdown in six tries. Newman again made the kick from placement.

GUNNERS, 6; PIRATES, 0

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The St. Louis Gunners made their début in the National Professional Football league auspiciously today by whipping the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 0, before a crowd of 13,678 fans.

Bill Senn, former Chicago Bears back, and Gene Alford each kicked a field goal in the second period to account for the scoring.

Early in the period, Senn, who played football at Knox college before the Galesburg, Ill., eleven started its record breaking string of defeats, drop kicked from the 35 yard line. Alford tried a place kick a few minutes later and missed, but his second attempt, from the 12 yard line, sailed between the uprights.

The Gunners, who came into the league through acquisition of the Cincinnati Reds' franchise, outplayed the Pirates most of the way, but lacked the necessary punch to put over a touchdown against the heavy Pittsburgh line.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Scoring in the first, second, and fourth periods and taking matters rather easily throughout the full 60 minutes of play, the Chicago Bears rang up their ninth victory of the season as they defeated the Boston Redskins, 21 to 0, before 27,000 National Professional Football league spectators at Fenway park this afternoon.

A 15 yard forward pass from Gene Ronzani to Bill Hewitt in the first period brought the opening score, while Hewitt took a 20 yard aerial from Rabbit Molesworth in the second period. The other touchdown, in the fourth period, was scored by Bronko Nagurski on a plunge from the one foot line after Ronzani had charged to that spot in three rushes from the 35 yard line. Jack Manders place kicked the first two points after touchdown, and Carl Brumbaugh the third.

Bears Take It Easy.

As a contest, the game did nothing much except show the marked superiority of the defending league champions. Cliff Battles was the only Bostonian who could do much and he did it through his own individual ability. The Bears did not really open up, first because they had no occasion to do so and second because the field was somewhat muddy and slippery as the result of the overnight rains. But the Bears were able to make their attack go when necessary. On defense they gave the customers a surprise as they watched the Redskins come out of the huddle and then called the Boston plays.

The tipoff on how the game would go came within the first two minutes, after the Redskins, who had received the kickoff, punted. The first Chicago play was a forward pass from Brumbaugh to Beattie Feathers, which gained 42 yards and put the ball on the Boston 29 yard line. Subsequent passes failed by finger tips and the Redskins took the ball. They eventually kicked out.

Feathers Makes Long Gains.

Then Feathers went on a rampage. Starting from the Boston 49 yard line, he galloped to the 25 yard line. He went through for another drive just short of the 15 yard line and left the Bears with third down, three inches to go. Brumbaugh switched tactics and, instead of bucking for the first down, Ronzani tossed the ball in to the end zone to Hewitt. Manders took Ronzani's place and kicked the seventh point. The Bears had another opportunity, but a 15 yard holding penalty set them back and a pass was intercepted by Ernie Pinckert.

In the second period Ronzani came back and ran 37 yards to the Boston 23 yard line. Manders made three yards on the next play and a pass, Molesworth to Brumbaugh, was knocked down by Pinckert. On the next play Brumbaugh tossed laterally to Molesworth, who moved back about 10 yards and then threw a long pass into the end zone where Hewitt, virtually alone, made the catch. Manders' kick made the score 14 to 0.

Bears Make Substitutions.

The third period found the Bears, with nine second stringers in the line-up, somewhat on the defensive as the Redskins put on a forward passing attack in which Malone and Hokuff each made great catches. The Redskins reached the 17 yard line and then Masterson intercepted a pass in the end zone for a touchback.

At the start of the fourth period Feathers ran 30 yards for a touchdown, but the play was nullified because of two men in motion. Eventually the Redskins took the ball on their nine yard line and Battles kicked out to Feathers, who ran from midfield to about the 35 yard line, where he was tackled by Battles. In three shots at the tackles Ronzani made as many first downs, just missing a touchdown by inches. On the next play Nagurski made the score.

Late in the game Pinckert intercepted a Chicago pass and the Redskins started a drive. A pass, Hokuf to Malone, advanced the ball to the 23 yard line and another, working the same way, went to the Chicago nine yard line. At this point the game ended.

DE GRASSE FACES RODAK TONIGHT IN WHITE CITY RING

Rightmire Meets Barry in Semi-Final.

Leo Rodak will make his 21st professional fight tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, against Pete De Grasse, New York. The South Chicago featherweight hopes to be able to chalk up his 21st victory after the match, which is scheduled for 10 rounds.

Although Rodak followers expect him to win, De Grasse has surprised with unexpected triumphs in previous encounters during a four year pro career. The 23 year old eastern fighter, who was born on the Mohawk reservation at St. Regis, Quebec, beat Frank Covelli at Washington, D. C., two weeks ago.

Managed by Sister.

The Indian battler, who is managed by his sister, Vera De Grasse, is confident of winning from Rodak. He points to triumphs over Covelli, Petey Hayes, Varias Milling, and Al Roth as a basis for this belief.

Everett [Young] Rightmire, who comes from Sioux City, Ia., but was born in Yakima, Wash., will clash with Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., in the eight round semi-final. Rightmire was given an eight round verdict over Dave at White City June 25. Since the defeat, Barry has met Young Geno, Joey Bozak, Jimmy Lambertson, Franklin Cheek, Mickey Barron, Roger Bernard, Eddie Anderson, Jimmy Christy, and Mickey Beal. All but Geno, Bernard, and Christy were beaten by Barry. Preliminary matches:

Joey Kleko vs. Le Roy [Sailor] Born [5], 139; Johnny Fitzpatrick vs. George Van der Hayden [5], 131, and Paul Martin vs. Jimmy Richards [4], 129.

Bob La Monte, former Catholic Youth organization welterweight champion, and Patrick Henry have been paired for the eight round feature bout at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight. La Monte, who will be seconded by Earl Mastro, has engaged in eleven pro contests. He lost one, to Billy Celebron, in eight rounds at Western stadium Sept. 11. In his latest he held Sherald Kennard to a draw at Marigold Oct. 29. La Monte is one of previous Chicago opponents Henry was unable to beat. They have battled twice, each bout ending in a draw.

Cheynoweth Faces Lazar.

Fred Cheynoweth, Manitowoc, Wis., 140 pounder, hooks up with Jack Lazar for six rounds in the semi-final A five round bout matches Sammy Guidara with Willie Dudlak at 126 pounds. Four round encounters will bring together Bill Treest and Matt Dour, and Harry Booker and Sammy Chivas. George Jonasen and Phil Grueber will meet in a wrestling bout.

Jack Kranz, Gary, Ind., heavyweight, and Eddie Anderson, Detroit, have been signed to clash for six rounds in a contest which will precede the 10 round windup between Joe Louis and Stanley Poreda at Arcadia Gardens Wednesday. Merril [Red] Tonn and Chet Rayner will meet in a four round preliminary.

Richard [Toots] Bernstein, Milwaukee, Wis., 147 pound fighter, has agreed to face Laddie Toncelli, Marseilles, Ill., in a 10 round bout at Cicero stadium Friday. Promoter Billy Cepak announced yesterday. Supporting matches will involve Paul Dazzo and Mike [Little Pal] Primich, Sammy Chivas and George Haberski, and John Pacek and Marvin Stanley.

Charley Massera, Pittsburgh, Pa., heavyweight, must whip Edward [Unknown] Winston at Pittsburgh tonight if he expects to appear in the 10 round semi-final with Al Ettore, Philadelphia, on the King Levinsky-Art Lasky card at Chicago Stadium Nov. 23. Nate Lewis, co-promoter with James C. Mullen declared the other day. If Manager Ancil Hoffman shares half the $700 train fare from California, Buddy Baer, young brother of Champion Max Baer, will fight in a preliminary. Tony Cancela, who is serving as a sparmate for the first time in order to aid his stablemate Levinsky reach physical condition, will appear in a supporting match.

Promoter Maurice Rivkin has sent offers to Patsy Perroni, Cleveland, O., and Lee Ramage, San Francisco, Cal., for a 10 round engagement against Joe Louis at Broadway armory Dec. 12. . . . Karl Ogren, north side middleweight, is training at Northwest gymnasium for his first appearance since April. . . . Gus Rock has taken over the management of Lou Vine, south side lightweight. . . . Earl Mastro intends to go back to Los Angeles, Cal., tomorrow to return to work at a Hollywood movie studio.

A 10 round encounter between Jimmy Christy and Sammy Musco, featherweights, is set for Friday at Merry Gardens. . . . Hayden [Young] Stuhley has been forced to cancel his 10 round meeting with Al Diamond at Pittsburgh Friday because of an attack of boils. . . . Johnny Phagan may substitute for Stuhley. . . . Fort Dearborn boosters will present six boxing matches and one wrestling bout tonight at Social Turner hall, Belmont and Damen avenues.

POLICE CALLED TO HALT RIOT AT PRAIRIE GAME

Instead of the report of the referee's pistol, a shot from a policeman's revolver at Logan Square last night ended a football game involving two teams, and later on about 400 rioting spectators.

The trouble began in the closing minues of a game beween the Joseph Malones and the Saokes-Avalons. Two linemen on the opposing teams suddenly exchanged blows. In a minute both elevens were involved in the fight.

From stands on both sides of the field poured the spectators in flying wedges, which met with a thud in the center of the field. Three squads of police from the bureau were hurriedly summoned to put a stop to the proceedings.

MOUNT CARMEL'S VICTORY STRING BROKEN BY LEO

Long Run, Safety Bring 9 to 0 Victory.

Mount Carmel yesterday lost its first Catholic High School league game in three years when Leo scored a touchdown in the first period and a safety in the fourth quarter to win, 9 to 0, at Shewbridge field. Leo's triumph put it in a tie for first place with St. Rita in the east section.

After Pietraszewski had punted out to his own 48 yard line in the first period Hal Bowen, Leo half back, took the ball on the first play and dashed through the entire Mount Carmel team for a touchdown. Bill Hinckley made good on the extra point.

Mount Carmel and Leo battled along on even terms during the second and third quarters and most of the final period. With less than two minutes of play remaining, Murphy tackled Middleton of Mount Carmel behind the latter's goal line for a safety.

Leo pounded down the field for ten first downs, meanwhile holding Mount Carmel to two, both of which resulted from forward passes. The lineups:

Brennan	L.E.	Ziemba
Gallagher	L.T.	P. Kennedy
Casey	L.G.	Smith
Hoy	C.	Freedman

Touchdown—Bowen.
Point after touchdown—Hinckley.
Safety—Middleton [Mount Carmel].

ST. IGNATIUS WINS, 21-7.

St. Ignatius scored touchdowns in the first, second, and fourth periods and a field goal in the third quarter to defeat St. Philip, 21 to 7, yesterday at Sh. Philip field. Keane of St. Philip opened the scoring with a 35 yard run, but Ippolito and Sullivan cunted in the first and second periods to offset the St. Philip advantage.

Hughes, left tackle, kicked a field goal to further increase the lead, and late in the fourth quarter Sacco intercepted a lateral pass and raced 89 yards for the final touchdown. The lineup:

ST. IGNATIUS [21].		ST. PHILIP [7].
Kennelly	L.E.	Klocker

Touchdowns—Sullivan, Sacco [for Conley], Keane.
Point after touchdown—O'Brien.
Field goal—Hughes.

DE LA SALLE, 7; LOYOLA, 0.

Earl Smith caught a pass and run forty yards for a touchdown to enable De La Salle to defeat Loyola, 7 to 0, for its first league victory yesterday at Normal park. Clarr threw the ten yard pass to Smith which led to the score.

Loyola, handicapped by the absence of Quarter Back Warner, reached the De La Salle 3 yard line in the first quarter. Four plays were unavailing, however, and the ball went over to De La Salle on downs. The lineup:

Elward	L.E.	Einsweiler
MacDonough	L.T.	Hyland
Zisnoeil	L.G.	Slobera

E. Smith	F.B.	Malloy

Touchdown—Smith.
Point after touchdown—Smith.

ST. RITA, 27; DE PAUL, 20.

St. Rita's passing combination of Pyrz to D'Keefe yesterday accounted for a thrilling 27 to 20 victory over De Paul. Trailing, 20 to 7, as the fourth quarter opened, Pyrz tossed a five yard pass to Badcke in the end zone for a touchdown.

Later in the period Pyrz fired a perfect 20 yard shot to O'Keefe for another touchdown. The same pair again collaborated on a 20 yard touchdown pass to account for the deciding points. In the third quarter Pyrz and O'Keefe connected for St. Rita's first score.

De Paul built up a 14 to 0 advantage in the first half on passes from Brennan to Evans and Brennan to Tonelli. Juswick scored De Paul's other touchdown.

Touchdowns—O'Keefe [3], Badcke, Evans, Tonelli, Juswick.
Points after touchdown—Mackey [3], Tonelli [2].

Fenwick routed St. Michael, 38 to 0, yesterday at Mills stadium. Led by Norris and Marquardt, each of whom scored twice, the winners counted in every quarter. The victory enabled Fenwick to retain second place in the west section.

O'Brien and McCabe, the latter in for the former, accounted for the other Fenwick touchdowns. Norris also added two points after touchdowns. The lineup:

FENWICK [38].		ST. MICHAEL [0].
Conley	L.E.	Hippchen
Kramer	L.T.	Klinger
Maloney	L.G.	MacDonald

PLAN CHANGE IN LITTLE SERIES AT BASEBALL MEET

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A meeting free of controversy is expected by Capt. William Neal, vice president and general manager of the Louisville Baseball company, when the convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues opens here Nov. 21.

Practically all celebrities of baseball, with the exception of those touring Japan, will be here, at which time the playoff system in the American association, All-Star game between National and American league teams, the Little World series, and other important questions will be discussed.

The fate of the playoff system, in operation for the last two seasons, will be decided at a meeting of American association club owners here Nov. 19, two days before the first session of the National assembly.

Capt. Neal said the association is expected to make a new arrangement with the International league for holding the Little World series. One of the conditions of the new pact, he said, probably would be the reduction of the limit of series games from nine to seven.

4 Champions to Box in C.Y.O. Semi-Finals

Some of the best amateur boxers in Chicago will compete in the semi-final round of the fourth annual Catholic Youth organization's boxing tournament at C. Y. O. center Wednesday and Thursday. Included among them are three 1933 and one 1932 C. Y. O. champions.

The champions are Ray Wozniak, light heavyweight; Charles Wozniak, middleweight; Andy Scrivani, bantamweight, and William Nurcyzk, middleweight. The latter is the 1932 champion. All four boys will vie for new honors at the same poundage with the exception of Scrivani, who will compete as a featherweight.

Other favorites who have reached the quarter-final bouts include Johnny Brown, bantamweight; Tony Carlucci, featherweight; George Sluka, middleweight; Lorenzo Lovings, lightweight, and Tom Kennealy, heavyweight. Since the winners this week will qualify for the sixteen title contests—eight in the championship division and as many in class A—at the Stadium Dec. 5 the hardest competition in the tourney thus far is expected.

Walker and Pirrone Meet at Ten Rounds

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Starting with tomorrow night, when Mickey Walker and Paul Pirrone meet at Philadelphia, an interesting boxing program has been arranged for the coming week. The climax will be Maxie Rosenbloom's defense of his light heavyweight crown in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Rosenbloom, making one of his infrequent championship appearances, will meet Bob Olin, New York, for 15 rounds or less. On the same card are two Pacific coast fighters, John Henry Lewis, who will box James J. Braddock, Jersey City, and Young Peter Jackson, a lightweight, who will meet Sammy Fuller, Boston. Both preliminaries are at 10 rounds.

Buddy Baer, younger brother of the heavyweight champion, will face Gene Garner, San Pedro, Cal., in a six round bout at Los Angeles Tuesday night. Brother Max probably will be in Buddy's corner.

The full program:

MONDAY: At Newark—Al Rossi vs. Mickey Bottome and Bucky Jones vs. Danny Devlin, middleweights [each 10]. At North Bergen, N. J.—Sindollo Diaz vs. Buckey Keyes, welterweights [8]. At Chicago [White City]—Leo Rodak vs. Pete de Grasse, featherweights [10]. At Philadelphia—Mickey Walker vs. Paul Pirrone, middleweights [10]. At Holyoke, Mass.—Vernon Cormier vs. Joe Doherty, featherweights; Midget St. Hilaire vs. Johnny Alba, lightweights, and Joe Vignalli vs. Carmen Nacchio, lightweights, all 8 rounds.

TUESDAY: At Los Angeles—Hank Hankinson vs. Chester Matan, heavyweights [10], and Buddy Baer vs. Gene Garner, heavyweights [6]. At Syracuse—Steve Halaiko vs. Eddie Dempsey, welterweights [10]; Mickey Devine vs. Tommy Howells, featherweights [6], and Connie Morris vs. Joe Nealon, welterweights [6].

WEDNESDAY: At Oakland, Cal.—Donald [Red] Barry vs. Tiger Jack Fox, light heavyweights [10], and Earl Wise vs. Nash Garrison, light heavyweights [10]. At Chicago [Arcadia Gardens]—Joe Louis vs. Stanley Poreda, heavyweights [10].

THURSDAY: At Tacoma, Wash.—Carl Linn vs. Les Bain, lightweights [6].

FRIDAY: At New York—Maxie Rosenbloom vs. Bob Olin, light heavyweights [15, title]; John Henry Lewis vs. James J. Braddock, light heavyweights [10], and Young Peter Jackson vs. Sammy Fuller, lightweights [10]. At Philadelphia—Bucky Jones vs. Young Joe Firpo, lightweights [10]. At Hollywood, Cal.—Tony Morango vs. Georgia Hansford, featherweights [10].

MONARCHS LOSE TWICE, BUT LEAD CLASSIC LEAGUE

The Monarch Beers kept their lead in the Classic league last night, but lost two games to the Pabst Blue Ribbons. The last place Cardinals defeated the Budweisers twice, and the Baby Ruth team took two games from the La Salle-Windsors.

High team series and game went to the Vrba Motors, who shot 3,050 and 1,077 respectively. George Theel had games of 218, 244, and 248 for 710.

WILDCATS EARN PRAISE OF COACH IN ILLINI GAME

Blocking and Tackling Shows Improvement.

Coach Dick Hanley yesterday had only praise for the performance of Northwestern's football team in its losing battle against Illinois Saturday. In a short squad session he told players he was proud of their courageous stand, stating for the first time this year they lived up to their true possibilities as a team.

Hanley was particularly pleased with the definite improvement in tackling and blocking shown by the Wildcats. The play of Henderson, end; Riley, guard, and Wray, Gibson, Chambers, and Papich, tackles, was largely responsible for the improved line play, he said.

Coach Hanley stressed the fine job of line plunging turned in by Full Back Hugh Duvall who averaged four yards per try. The chunky full back is now the Wildcats' foremost offensive threat.

Loss of Lind Dims Hopes.

Whatever hopes Northwestern entertained for stopping Notre Dame Saturday were dealt a severe blow by the loss of Freddy Lind, left half, who sustained a broken ankle in the second quarter of the Illinois game. Lind, who called signals from the half back position, was the last experienced quarter back on the squad since Potter was lost for the season with a knee injury in the Ohio State game. Lind, a senior, engineered the march that resulted in Northwestern's field goal in the first quarter of the Illinois game.

The Wildcats probably will rely on Bob Swisher, a sophomore, for the field general job. Although Swisher had never had experience in calling signals previous to the Illinois game, it is probable that Coach Hanley will use the speedy youngster in the remaining games.

The entire squad including the B team will be excused from practice today.

LAYDEN PROUD OF IRISH.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—While his Notre Dame football team enjoyed its Armistice after yesterday's 10 to 6 defeat by the Navy, Coach Elmer Layden and his staf began preparation for this week's game at Evanston with Northwestern.

Yesterday's game with Navy was largely a repetition of the 1933 contest, which Navy won on one thrust, 7 to 0, while the Irish wore themselves out the rest of the afternoon pushing the Middies around. Layden expressed his approval of the team's comeback after the previous week's 19 to 0 beating by Pitt.

"We are proud of the comeback the team made to score in the last minute of play after Navy had made the score 10 to 0 against us. I don't care whether we win or lose as long as the boys are in there fighting all the time and playing heads-up football," Layden said today.

MAROON HOPES BROKEN.

Their hopes of the early season now broken by two consecutive defeats, the University of Chicago's Maroons must begin preparations today for the game with the Gophers of the University of Minnesota Saturday at Minneapolis. Indications are that their physical condition may be worse than it was in the game against Ohio State.

Jay Berwanger, whose absence from the Maroon lineup against the Buckeyes explains at least part of the great superiority shown by the Ohioans, may not be ready to face Minnesota. Jay is the nucleus of the Chicago team on both offense and defense.

The Maroons, with Berwanger playing, had scored three or more touchdowns per game in six consecutive games. Ned Bartlett's brief appearances against Ohio did his injured leg no good, and Johnny Baker, best end the Maroons have, came out of the game with a broken nose. Bill Runyan, reserve quarter back, emerged with a wrenched leg.

Members of the Chicago team were disconsolate yesterday, and many believe Purdue to be a better team than Ohio State. The players are full of self-reproach about being taken in by Ohio's laterals.

STRUTT LEADS IN EASTERN SCORING BY TWO POINTS

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The east's pair of apparently unstoppable scoring stars, Art Strutt of Duquesne and Bill Shepherd of Western Maryland, were waging a duel for the lead again today with Strutt in front by two points.

Strutt, who made four touchdowns against Oklahoma Aggies Saturday, brought his total up to 102 points, while Shepherd made it an even 100 with four touchdowns and five extra points against West Chester Teachers. Mickey Kobrosky of Trinity held third place with 72 points.

No Mercy, Is Slogan of Ohio Football Coach

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 11.—"Shut the gates of Mercy" Schmidt is the 'handle" the girls and boys in the Big Ten conference will be hanging on Ohio State's new football coach, Francis A. Schmidt from Nebraska, before another championship season comes to an end.

The scene is the Ohio State football team's dressing room in the Ohio State stadium.

The Buckeyes have rolled up a 20 to 0 score on Chicago's crippled and hapless Maroons and it is half time. The players and the coach are hidden away for a breathing spell.

Shall We Go Easy?

Regis Monahan, captain of the Buckeyes, takes a long drag at a water bottle—it's mineral water he's drinking and it comes from somewhere in Wisconsin. Finally Monahan puts the jug down.

"Say, coach, some of the Maroons don't seem to know which way they are going. Shall we keep bearing down on them?" he asks.

"Show 'em no mercy!" is Schmidt's reply.

Capt. Monahan and the other Buckeyes followed orders. Schmidt had his way. The Buckeyes kept hammering at the Maroons and finally won, 33 to 0.

Keep Smashing Through.

A week earlier they had shut the gates of mercy and had beaten Western Reserve, directed by Ohio State's old coach, Sam Willaman, 76 to 0. A week before they battered Dick Hanley's Northwestern Wildcats into a 28 to 6 defeat.

On next Saturday afternoon Michigan's Wolverines, beaten every time this year when they encountered a Western conference team, will invade Ohio State stadium to help entertain a capacity crowd.

In late years Michigan—proud champions of the west then—has pushed Ohio State teams all around the town and the campus. The day of revenge is drawing near.

It'll Be Same Way.

Still Reggie Monahan from Lorain, O., the good natured captain of the Buckeyes, will go sauntering into Coach Schmidt's office early this week.

"Say, coach, shall we go a little easy with 'em?" he will ask.

The reply will be, "Maul 'em around as much as you can."

Schmidt dropped into the Ohio State coaching post at a time when the Buckeyes appeared to be shot to pieces. Ohio State, as far as football was concerned, was a house divided against itself. Every fellow in town could second guess and be wiser than the coach. Coaches were fired.

Along came Schmidt to fix all this up within a few short weeks.

He's a Genial Fellow.

Schmidt is a tall, genial fellow with a big smile when you meet him away from the football field. When he smiles the smile spreads all over his face. The smile at its peak displays teeth that remind you of a toothpaste—or is it toothpowder?—advertisment. He doesn't appear to be a ruthless sort of fellow.

Hanging on the walls of his home in Columbus in the center of an interesting collection of pictures, including many football notables, is a photograph of a company of American doughboys. The picture was snapped somewhere in France when the world war was on in all its fury. The Yankee doughboys were lined up on a bleak tract of French territory. In command was Capt. Francis A. Schmidt.

A look at this picture and you can hear him barking a command. No doubt like commands that have driven the Ohio State football team on to the numerous one-sided victories.

Get Those Points!

Schmidt's theory of battle is that offense is the greatest weapon. His theory has shocked and humbled some of the old time Big Ten coaches who prefer to play a "safe" game.

"The only safe way to win," says Schmidt, "is to roll up all the points you can."

MICHIGAN LOOKS TO 1935.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Since Michigan apparently has lost its last chance to salvage something from the 1934 football season, Coach Harry Kipke and his staf may start building for next year. An indication of such a program would be the benching of John Regeczi, senior half back who for two seasons was rated as the Big Ten's best kicker.

Kipke was disappointed today following the unexpected defeat of his team at the hands of Wisconsin yesterday, and said he had not yet decided what would be done in tomorrow's practice. He would not admit that Regeczi's poor performance yesterday, coming after several weeks of work noticeably below his standard of 1932 and 1933, would result in his being put on the bench. Neither would he deny it.

He did say that if Regeczi were benched, Chris Everhardus, sophomore brother of Herman, probably would be in the back field to give Michigan a quartet of sophomores. The three others are Jennings, Aug, and Sweet.

Chester Beard, guard, is expected back in uniform tomorrow, but Bud Hanshue, sophomore guard and tackle, who suffered recurrence of an old hurt yesterday, will be missing. Hanshue may not play again this year.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL CHATTER.

NORTHWESTERN football followers yesterday were engaged in the mournful occupation of "ifing." These "ifs" centered on the offside called against Northwestern which nullified Cruice's 44 yard run to the Illinois 2 yard line about the middle of the fourth period. From there on a first down, the Purple surely would have scored, aver the mournful ones. Illinois adherents were almost equally unanimous that the offside was called correctly.

When the play started, before Cruice broke through the line of scrimmage for his saunter, three observers in the press box near The Wake exclaimed at once "Illinois offside." They were a student reporter for a Champaign newspaper, a Chicago sports editor, and another football reporter. They did not profess to see whether Northwestern also was offside. Both teams offside would have had the same effect of calling back the ball except there would have been no 5 yard penalty against Northwestern, which was relatively unimportant anyway.

Coach Hanley, once a bristling critic of officials, was philosophic. He said: "From the bench we cannot be positive about offsides. We thought it was Illinois offside. Harry Leeper, against whom the offside finally was called, told me he was pushed back as the play started by the opposing tackle so that he did not reach the line of scrimmage. Motion pictures when developed will prove who is right. Then it's too late if officials erred. The decision, whether right or wrong, unquestionably cost us the ball game. I'm sorry, especially for the boys who put up such a game fight under handicaps against an effective and smart Illinois team."

Again Hanley was a different Hanley when The Wake asked what happened that Waller was not covered in the end zone on the pass from Beynon which yielded Illinois' first and really winning touchdown.

"Steve Toth, defending in that zone," replied Hanley, "was on Waller, then let him get away because they both were so far into the end zone Toth thought the pass would be out of bounds. When he took up the chase again he was too far away. Toth played only one year of high school football, was in his second college game. It was simply inexperience. You can't blame a boy for that. He more than atoned by his fine kicking which kept us in the ball game."

Northwestern's 5-3-2-1 defense, fashioned for the occasion, was given credit for holding Illini to a score less than anticipated. With 5 men on the line, three were delegated to charge through to hurry, if possible, Illinois' ball passing. Three other defenders were in the second line. Leeper was pulled back from end and took a position wide outside his tackle. Duvall backed the line at the center from a position deep enough to look for passes. Al Lind, center, was on the right wing floating outside his end. About ten yards back, playing still wider against forward passes on the end of flying trapeze plays were the defending backs with Fred Lind as safety man until injured, then Swisher. Mobility of this defense was, in part, its strength.

Resident Illinois alumni who had not seen the Ohio State or Army games at Champaign were greatly impressed by resourcefulness of the Illini, who looked as if they might score any minute, and did when necessary as in previous close games this season. Several times long passes, once the flying trapeze, missed only by fingertips. Even allowing for Northwestern's conceded improvement and revived spirit, they pointed to the score first and to statistics second to offset the Northwestern "ifs," which in reality were regrets rather than questioning of Illinois' right to victory.

Cards Scare Detroit, but Lose, 17-13

who suffered a twisted knee in the second quarter, and one line replacement, were in the game at the time, but they were powerless before the fury with which the Cardinals unleashed the next assault.

Score Again on Pass.

Sarboe returned the kickoff 35 yards to the 38 yard line. An eight yard pass to Creighton and two plunges by Mikulak brought the ball to Detroit's 48 yard line. Lumpkin was decoyed out of his position at right half back and Creighton sprinted down through the unprotected sector to take a 22 yard pass from Sarboe. Russell made seven yards in two cracks at tackle, but a play went wrong in the backfield and he lost two. Then on fourth down, the Cardinals again jockied the over anxious Lumpkin out of position and Bill Smith took a flat pass for six yards and ran the remaining 15 for the touchdown. He also kicked the extra point.

Detroit was stopped after the kickoff and in five plays the Cardinals were back on its 40 yard line. A pass failed, however, and Sarboe punted over the goal line. Again Detroit was stopped and Caddell had to punt from the 23 yard line. Another Cardinal drive got under way and carried to the Detroit's 33 yard line, before Rowe intercepted Sarboe's low pass, which Smith had over run. Three plays later the game ended.

The Cardinals outgained the Lions, 235 yards to 156. They made 128 yards by running plays against 102 for Detroit, and added 87 yards on six completed passes, while Detroit gained 54 yards with four completions. Each team had one pass completed by interference. The Cardinals attempted 17 and Detroit eight aerials. The Cardinals however could get only six first downs, while Detroit piled up 12, three of which came on penalties.

BROOKLYN WINS, 10-7

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Ralph Kercheval was a little too much for the Philadelphia Eagles today and the Brooklyn Dodgers scored a 10 to 7 triumph in a National Pro league football battle.

The big right half back of the Dodgers in the first period dropped back along the side line and in the face of a strong wind kicked a field goal from the 30 yard line. In the second period Kercheval grabbed a pass and raced 43 yards for the only Brooklyn touchdown. He added the extra point and thus scored all the markers for his team.

Swede Hanson, full back of the Eagles, gave the home fans their thrill of the day when he got off to a 60 yard run in the closing minutes of the third period. He was caught from behind by Paul Riblett on the four yard line. Kirkman then tossed a pass to Carter, who took the ball over the goal line for the Eagles' touchdown. Kirkman added the extra point.

The lineup:

BROOKLYN [10].		PHILADELPHIA [7].

Portsmouth Gets Place in Mid-Atlantic League

Zanesville, O., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Portsmouth was voted into the Mid-Atlantic league here today to replace Springfield, O., as league representatives met to plan next year's season. The Pittsburgh Pirates would transfer their interest to the Portsmouth team, Alex Pisula, former general manager of the Springfield Pirates announced. Withdrawal of the support of the Cincinnati Reds for the Beckley, W. Va., team also was announced, but Beckley hopes to remain in the league.

High School Athlete Dies After Football Accident

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 11.—Victim of an accident in football practice last Monday, Albert Sachy, 20, Eau Claire High school student and athlete, died here at Mercy hospital today. Sachy was injured internally. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sachy, farmers, near here.

Doctor Watches 22 of His "Babies" Play Football

Twelve Eastern College Teams Remain Unbeaten

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Twelve college football teams still boasted undefeated records in the east today, but half of them had been tied at least once.

Navy, Princeton, and Syracuse, among major schools, and Trinity, Tufts, and St. Vincent, among the smaller, alone had perfect records unmarred by defeat or tie.

The scoring leadership, however, belongs to a team beaten once in eight games—Duquesne—with 308 points. Princeton was second with 242 in six games, and Franklin and Marshall third with 190 in seven. Then followed Trinity with 187 and Temple with 184. Both Western Maryland and Tufts were scored on yesterday, leaving Penn Military college standing alone with a perfect defensive record.

Badgers See Even Chance to Beat Illinois

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's wandering Badgers, home today after playing on foreign fields for four consecutive weeks, saw an even chance to defeat the unbeaten Illini in the homecoming game at Camp Randall Saturday.

Considerable encouragement came from the 10 to 0 victory over Michigan, the team Illinois was able to defeat by only a single point. On the other hand, the wary pointed to the fact that Illinois defeated Northwestern by a margin of 11 points, and that the Badgers lost to the Wildcats.

Regardless of the hopes for victory, one of the largest homecoming crowds in years will see the game, due in part to the fact that Pat O'Dea, Wisconsin's gridiron immortal, who revealed his identity this fall after it was believed for 16 years that he had been killed in service during the world war, will be present for homecoming. O'Dea will arrive in Madison from the west coast Friday, and will be the central figure in a round of special events planned in his honor.

ILLINI FEAR BADGERS.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Illinois football players will have no more breathing space than is absolutely necessary in which to recover from yesterday's hard game against Northwestern.

"It's just one inspired team after another that we have to meet," Coach Bob Zuppke said, as he heard the report of his scout, Weenie Wilson, that Wisconsin, as the Badgers beat Michigan, showed greatly improved form.

Illinois must be braced to meet a revived Badger team that will be playing its first Big Ten game at home. While regulars will do little work tomorrow, on Tuesday they will be put through some hard drills.

It is expected Jack Beynon will be fully recovered from the effects of the ante-tetanus shot which, combined with a bad cut, kept him out of practice most of last week.

SAN FRANCISCO WINS, 6-0, FROM OLYMPIC CLUB

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The University of San Francisco football team punched over a touchdown near the end of the third period to beat the Olympic club, 6 to 0, in fog shrouded Kezar stadium today.

Full Back Ray Peterson romped thirty-one yards to score the lone touchdown, although the Dons were in scoring position several times. Henry Blewett's place kick was wide.

The club eleven held the Dons on the one yard line in the first period after the winners had gone from their own 35 yard line. Driving to the 16 yard line in the third period, the Dons were penalized fifteen yards for holding and the Olympic club then took the ball.

RUTH HITS TWO HOMERS BEFORE 65,000 IN JAPAN

TOKIO, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Babe Ruth poled out two more home runs to delight another 65,000 throng of excited Japanese in Meiji stadium today as mixed teams clashed in a baseball game. The Babe also doubled, singled, and popped and grounded out, the team which he captained defeating a team led by Bing Miller, 13 to 2. Jimmy Foxx and Earl Averill also hit homers for the victors.

COLDS
Go Thru 3 Stages
—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal, which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

Maccabees Beat Spartas; Lead Soccer League

The Maccabee soccer team yesterday defeated the Sparta Leaders, 3 to 2, in a Professional league game at Kuppenheimer stadium. The largest crowd of the season witnessed the contest, the result of which enabled the Maccabees to take first place in the league. The game also marked Sparta's first loss in the pro division.

Vidano of Sparta opened the scoring with a hard drive past Fisher from a close in shot. Wolf increased the lead in the second period, but Pearlman countered with a goal for the winners. Shortly thereafter E. Waldron tied the score with a penalty kick. E. Waldron then kicked home the deciding goal within the next few minutes.

ENTIRE REGIMENT WELCOMES NAVY ON RETURN HOME

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Shouting, singing, cheering midshipmen greeted the Navy football team as it returned from Cleveland today after its 10 to 6 victory over Notre Dame.

The entire regiment was on hand as the team and coaches entered the naval academy grounds. The bell at the main gate clanged and some one held down the whistle on the power house.

BRUINS' SPEED TRIUMPHS OVER RED WINGS, 4-2

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Boston's Bruins outskated and outplayed Detroit here tonight to hand the Red Wings a 4 to 2 defeat in a game enlivened by a first period skirmish which saw two misconduct penalties handed out.

Barry and Clapper drew 10 minutes each in the box for protesting too vigorously against Barry being ordered off by Official Charley Dinsmore for interference.

Charley Sands was the scoring leader with two goals. Stewart and Shore scored the other Boston goals, and Wiseman and Goodfellow counted for the Wings.

SILVER POLICY OF U. S. JUDGED WORST FALLACY

Revives Old Subsidy to Mine Interests.

BY REUBEN D. CAHN.

On no question has the policy of the present national administration been less defensible than on silver. Once a genuinely precious metal, redundant supplies have long since made it cheap. It has become so inexpensive that even now after a 100 per cent increase in price, due to government rigging, the price of the metal is so low that a small Chicago firm has ten tons of the metal en route from Shanghai to be used in manufacturing operations.

But the fact that silver as money has long since gone the way of cowry shells, wampum and salt cubes, has not restrained the silver mining interests from attempting to get Washington to make it again a precious metal. Politics is the big end of the silver business. And that was never truer than at present. For if the silver interests can persuade the government to continue on the present silver buying program they will extract much more value from the United States treasury than they could out of the ground.

No other producers of a commodity abandoned as standard money have the crust of the silver magnates. A salt packer is happy to sell the government as many barrels as is actually needed at the going price. And he makes no claims of being patriotic in that.

Demand All Silver Be Bought.

The silver man insists that the government buy not what silver is needed but all that he and all the other producers can deliver. He demands, moreover, that it be purchased from him not at the going market quotation but at a much higher price. And to make the business even more ridiculous he insists that he wants this done to promote the common weal.

No gag works so well as the old ones. The silver boys, who understand this well, have been using one that is indeed a hardy perennial. For, those who have been attempting to unload on the government during this depression large quantities of their metal at excessive prices, have merely been following the racketeering methods pursued with great success by their fathers forty years ago and their grandfathers twenty years before that. And as many people still fall for the gag as when it was young and green. They don't even vary it. When the people have suffered from several years of one of the periodic depressions, a gentleman with a broad brimmed hat or an alpaca coat announces that he knows what's ailing the country and how to cure the ailment. "Folks," says he, "my remedy won't fail you. Just put up the price of silver, coin it into money and you won't know you had a depression." It's almost as simple as that.

Take Advantage of Depressions.

Seizing upon the opportunity, which was presented by the depression which followed the civil war—there's been a depression after every war we've had—the silver interests put on their medicine show. Widespread unemployment, bank failures and the drop in commodities were all due to the fall of the price of silver. Just put up silver, said the show man, and prosperity will be back in a jiffy. The medicine sold well—who didn't want to be happy and wealthy?

A demand that the government buy at $1.29 an ounce all the silver that could be produced in this country swept down upon congress. Overriding the veto of President Rutherford B. Hayes, congress in 1878 passed a compromise silver purchase law. By its terms the treasury was required to buy monthly at least 2 million ounces of silver at the prevailing market price. The government had no use for the silver and the treasury had no money to spend for useless purposes, but the silver people had metal to sell. And by indicating a noble purpose they had the law passed.

Silver Interests Demand More.

It was an accomplishment but it did not satisfy them. They wanted more, and to see that they got it they had valuable votes in the senate, thanks to the admission to the Union of a number of states in the western wilderness. Using the voting strength of their senators to roll logs the silver interests in 1890 had a second bill passed, doubling the compulsory purchases by the treasury. The two laws enabled American silver mining companies to sell a half billion dollars' worth of silver to a poor government which had very little use for the metal.

The emission of paper money which was used to pay for the silver brought about a speculative boom. But it also led to the draining of the country of practically all of its gold.

And after speculative booms come headaches and depressions. It is the reasoned judgment of authorities that the two silver bills were principally responsible for the panic of 1893 and the succeeding depression. The legislation was repealed at a special session of congress called by President Cleveland. But the after-effects of the panic were a long time passing.

Bryan Becomes Silver Spokesman.

Though repulsed the silver interests were still undaunted. The profits on a half billion dollars' worth of silver could tide them over quite a few lean years. In 1896 they had a salesman who had an alluring sales solicitation. The salesman was William Jennings Bryan. The service he was to render the silver interests was to get the government to buy at $1.29 an ounce all the silver that could be produced in this country. The market price at the time was only 70 cents an ounce. At the rate at which silver was being produced in this country at that time if Bryan were successful this meant an excess profit of about 35 million dollars a year for the interests which had adopted Bryan as a champion.

Bryan's sales argument was the same as that of the '70s: "The poor man is poor because he doesn't have

Europe Fears New Deal Now, Says Dr. Palyi

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

"Europeans of all classes are frankly critical of the New Deal in this country. Many business men among them, thankful that bolshevik propaganda from Russia had let up, now are half fearful that New Deal propaganda from Washington may help upset their apple cart. Only among the Socialists does one find any commendation of the Washington experiments."

News of this attitude on the part of Europeans toward the Roosevelt experiments was brought to Chicago by Dr. Melchior Palyi, authority on German economics and now a guest professor of economics at the University of Chicago. He has just returned from a three months visit abroad. He discussed yesterday the opinions of Europeans as he found them—opinions that are not necessarily his own. He will discuss in detail his own views and impressions in a talk before the Council on Foreign Relations in Chicago on Nov. 21.

Finds Widespread Criticism.

"I found a surprising unanimity of criticism of the American New Deal," Dr. Palyi said. "Europeans who disagree with each other about practically everything else agree in criticism on this point. Only the Socialists in each country are exceptions. The general feeling expressed in Europe, on the continent perhaps more than in England, is that America is either going inflationist or it is going communistic, with the possibility that there may be a curious mixture of both.

"It was amusing to find that countries in the most serious economic distress and facing the most critical political dangers—both external and internal—feel that their economic and social structures are much superior to the American."

Dr. Palyi said that one rather humorous aspect of the criticism he heard was the expressed fear of something upsetting coming from America, such as the propaganda which formerly came from soviet Russia.

British Deride New Deal.

"With the British," he continued, "there is less a feeling of fear and more one of contempt so far as the New Deal is concerned. Even the British Labor party is officially more conservative now than the New Deal.

"There are many reasons for the attitude of the Europeans, but the explanations the Europeans themselves give are unsatisfactory. The sensational use which European newspapers make of news from America, emphasizing the wildest rumors, is one minor reason for the attitude of the public.

"Another reason, especially in the business world, is that after the post-war experiments, most European countries turned extremely anti-Socialistic. Consequently, business men look with apprehension at the revival of quasi-Socialistic ideas in America — ideas which they thought were dead.

Fear American Propaganda.

"Business men all over Europe had hardly quieted down after the stoppage of bolshevik propaganda until they were forced to look upon America as a source of somewhat similar propaganda. Of course these are all more or less surface factors rather than fundamental reasons for their criticism.

"Another thing in the American situation that gives Europeans some amusement is the way in which the United States is trying to solve its economic crisis by reducing stocks and production as if it was the only producer in the world. Europeans feel that this procedure means the diminishing of American wealth without any improvement in the situation being made. In the meantime, other nations are producing more than enough of everything to offset the possible restrictions in this country."

WINNIPEG ACTS TO CONTROL FLAX PRICE ACTIONS

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Violent fluctuations in flax futures, which on several occasions in the past have dropped as much as 20 cents in one day's trading, have been outlawed on the Winnipeg Grain exchange. The exchange's council yesterday decreed flax prices would not be permitted to fluctuate more than 5 cents a day.

The decision is the latest in a recent trend toward restricting trading on the Winnipeg exchange, but is the first aimed directly at flax dealings. Nov. 1 saw wheat futures pegged at 75 cents for December, 80 cents for May, and yesterday the council announced pegging of the new July future at 81¼ cents.

While trading restrictions placed on the wheat futures market were direct results of pressure applied on the exchange by the dominion government following suggestions of John I. McFarland, general manager of the Canadian wheat pools, it was pointed out the action taken against flax fluctuations was of the exchange's own volition.

Title and Trust Officer to Address Rent Managers

Glenn C. McBride, manager of the property management division of the Chicago Title and Trust company, will speak at the regular monthly meeting of the North Side Renting Managers' association, on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at the New Lawrence hotel. Meetings formerly have been held on Wednesday, according to President Burt Kiely. Mr. McBride will talk on the advantages of staggered leases.

BANKS, EXCHANGES CLOSED TODAY

Security, commodity markets, and banks will remain closed today here and in New York in observance of Armistice day. Leading markets in other financial centers throughout the country will also be closed. Among the exceptions, live stock markets in the principal centers will carry on their business as usual. Most markets in Europe will be open.

GRAINS CLIMB; TRADERS VIEW INFLATION NEAR

Elections Heighten Prospects.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Out of the continual shift in emphasis on the factors governing grain prices a sharper focus was thrown last week on certain aspects of the situation and a moderate advance in prices ensued.

Inflation once more assumed a formidable position as a market influence. The inflation psychology was tempered by memories of the spectacular "inflation boom" of the summer of 1933 which ended in a grand debacle of prices. The election results, however, appeared unmistakable in their potential bearing on the trend of commodity prices. Where crop disaster and scarcity failed to make the public commodity minded, inflation prospects may produce greater results.

Other factors likewise entered into the market picture last week. Lack of adequate moisture in sections of the winter wheat area of the southwestern states dovetailed with news of damage to the wheat crops in Argentina and Australia to bring out a change in sentiment.

Argentine Market Buoyant.

The Buenos Aires market showed more buoyancy than previously, although the close of the week found little change in prices there.

Estimates on the probable production of wheat in Argentina are being revised downward as a result of the continued reports of spreading rust damage. The calculations vary from a crop of 200 to 250 million with expectations that the yield will fall about midway between those figures.

At the close of the week it was reported that a cargo of Canadian wheat had been purchased for shipment to France. That country for several months has been busily engaged in peddling her own wheat at cut prices in the world market with consequent demoralization. Normally an importing country, France this year has bolstered her exports by means of subsidies without buying the usual amount of higher grade foreign wheat to mix with the domestic product.

May Stop French Dumping.

Dumping of French wheat will probably be halted when the international wheat conference convenes shortly in Budapest, but the damage already done at the expense of the usual exporting nations cannot be repaired. The French purchase of Canadian wheat, the first in a long time, now revives hope that France is coming back into the market as a buyer. It remains to be seen how extensive her purchases will be.

The advances in wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade last week ranged from 1⅜ to 3½ cents a bushel. The May and July deliveries gained on the December contract. The early future, however, retained its premium over the May contract.

The growing scarcity of cash corn and the small receipts coming into the terminal markets was reflected in the sharp advances in corn futures, which climbed 3 to 4⅝ cents a bushel.

U. S. Faces Corn Shortage.

The government report forecasting a total crop of 1,372,000,000 bushels confirmed the earlier private reports and the country now faces the winter with the shortest crop in 53 years.

The following table shows last week's range of prices and the higher and low quotations for the season:

BANKERS ANNOUNCE COMMITTEE TO AID FOREIGN TRADE PLAN

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The appointment of an advisory committee of bankers, representative of all sections of the country, to coöperate with the export-import banks, Washington, D. C., was announced today by R. S. Hecht, president of the American Bankers' association.

Mr. Hecht, who is chairman of the Hibernia National bank of New Orleans, La., and who was elected president of the A. B. A. at its convention in Washington last month, said the committee comprised the leading experts in foreign exchange and other international trade activities and that it would serve a constructive purpose "in working along with the officials of the export-import banks, whose plans are to coöperate with and supplement the business of the commercial banks and financial institutions of the nation."

Robert F. Maddox, director of the First National bank, Atlanta, Ga., is chairman of the committee; Joseph C. Rovensky, vice president of the Chase National bank, New York, is vice chairman, and Fred I. Kent, director of the Bankers' Trust company, New York, is chief consultant. The only Chicagoan on the committee is Harry Salinger, vice president of First National Bank of Chicago.

ACREAGE RESTRICTION ON COTTON AND WHEAT CROPS MAY BE EASED

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The new farm program to be presented to the next congress by an AAA spokesman will turn sharply away from acreage restriction on the country's two great money crops—cotton and wheat.

Instead, Chairman Jones [Dem., Tex.] of the house agriculture committee will recommend a domestic allotment plan by which the grower would be paid benefits only on that part of his production destined for consumption in this country, being left free to produce as much as he desires for the world market. The Texan today flatly recognized as valid some of the criticism against the adjustment program as it now is operated and served notice the act "can and should be simplified."

He said he believed his plan, which would become effective upon expiration of present cotton and wheat production contracts, could be placed into effect without "material modification" of the act, but made it clear he was going to demand that modification.

"A production basis should be established by local committees for each farm," Jones said. "Each farmer should be paid premiums on this production basis—in other words, on his portion of the domestic market. Then each farmer should be permitted to produce what he wishes to be sold in the markets of the world, but be paid premiums only on the part which he produces for the domestic market.

"In this way the American farmer could continue to sell his products in the world markets. In no sense can he afford to surrender these foreign markets."

ICKES TO VISIT EAST TEXAS OIL FIELD THIS WEEK

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A personal visit by Oil Administrator Ickes to the American Petroleum institute and his prospective inspection tour of the troublesome east Texas oil field whetted the curiosity and enthusiasm of an anxious oil industry today. The secretary of the interior will address the A. P. I. here Wednesday afternoon and then he will go Thursday to the field, 120 miles east of Dallas, to study conditions his aides have investigated before.

Ickes will represent the administration in Texas at a time the industry believes it is emerging from a period dangerous to the general oil price structure caused by excessive production from this great oil-producing area.

The organization Ickes will address is composed of hundreds of oil company executives whose business has come under provisions of the petroleum code; the men he will see in the field are those who have been associated with the rise of the world's greatest pool in the comparatively short period of less than five years.

NAME BUSINESS MEN TO PREVENT FRAUD IN TRADE

Appointment of six Chicago business men to act as an anti-fraud prevention supervising committee in the middle west for the fraud prevention department of the National Association of Credit Men has been announced by J. F. O'Keefe, secretary of the Chicago Association of Credit Men.

The committee members are G. W. Christopher of the Victor Chemical Works, chairman; R. L. Bressman of the Elgin National Watch company; Arthur Dole Sr. of the Hooker Paint and Glass Manufacturing company; C. S. Hogarth of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; W. F. Sherrill of the Nutrine Candy company, and Edward M. Tourtelot of the First National bank and president of the Chicago Association of Credit Men.

Santa Fe Air Conditioning Program to Cost $1,800,000

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad announced yesterday that it will spend $1,800,000 to air condition all its principal trains by the time the 1935 tourist season opens. In doing so, the road stated, it will triple the 89 air conditioned units already in operation, and will add substantially to the $800,000 already spent in this work.

General Motors Business Overseas Shows Advance

Sales of General Motors corporation in the overseas markets of the world in the first 10 months of the year numbered 187,827 units, compared with 102,273 in the same period last year.

LICENSING PLAN FOR BUSINESS IS STUDIED BY U. S.

Trade Commission Report Ready.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Information to help congress decide whether American business should be licensed or incorporated by the government was forwarded to the national legislature today by the federal trade commission.

As a fruit of its more than six year investigation of public utilities, the commission filed a voluminous report containing both the favorable and unfavorable views of important men and experts on the question.

While the commission did not state its own views, it was said authoritatively that serious consideration was being given to the possibility of recommending such licensing or incorporation of public utility holding companies, with which the commission is especially concerned.

Most corporations now receive their charters from various states. These charters range from the most stringent requirements to virtual blanket permissions for any sort of endeavor.

See Uniformity an Advantage.

Advocates of federal incorporation believe federal charters not only would bring uniformity but would eliminate extreme grants now given to some large corporations doing a national business. The commission's report noted that prior to the war both leading men of industry and scholars urged federal incorporation.

Col. W. T. Chantland, commission counsel, stated:

"Industry, led by Judge Gary [once all powerful head of United States Steel corporation], advocated federal incorporation chiefly to avoid the annoyance of conflicting legislation and jurisdiction. The scholars advocated federal incorporation chiefly as the best method in the public interest."

An alternative to federal incorporation is federal licensing. This would still permit state chartering, while limiting the grants of powers given by the states.

Notes Roosevelt Speech.

The commission's report took particular note of a speech by President Roosevelt, made in September, 1932, in which he advocated federal regulation of public utility holding companies by the federal power commission.

The report made an exhaustive study of the efforts of states to control holding companies. It found that in twenty-five states no control whatsoever is provided for holding companies, and that a few states have enacted legislation designed to reach the holding companies, "but some still rely for any possible control upon regulation of the operating company."

As to the power of directors:

"It was found that directors generally enjoy broad powers divorced from any necessary financial interest in the corporation with which they are concerned and coupled in many instances with elaborate safeguards against liability for their acts."

ELECTRIC POWER REVENUES RISE IN SEPTEMBER

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The Edison Electric Institute made public its monthly statistics covering 100 per cent of the electric light and power industry, showing that total revenue in September from ultimate consumers amounted to $150,196,400, against $146,688,200 in September, 1933. Total sales of kilowatt hours in September, however, were less than in the same month last year, a total of 5,774,163,000, against 5,830,508,000.

CHICAGO BUSINESS GENERALLY STEADY; RETAIL UP A LITTLE

Business in Chicago last week was generally unchanged from a year ago, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Retailers reported a slight improvement in business. The wholesale dealers said business was well up to that of a year ago, but turnover was slightly under recent weeks.

The lull will be of short duration with Christmas buying and seasonal purchases bound to show a pickup before Thanksgiving day, according to executives of many Chicago distributing houses.

Factory employment and production during the week was spotty, with a slight majority of companies reporting moderate increases. Collections were reported as continuing good. There was a slight increase in the number of telephone subscribers.

Glenn Frank to Address Purchasing Agents Here

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will address members of the Chicago Purchasing Agents' association on "The Left or Right; an Appraisal" at a dinner meeting in the Stevens hotel Thursday evening. Don Clark, president of the national association, also will speak. The Chicago Purchasor, association publication, will have on display in the hotel during the day and evening an exhibit of new products, packages, and designs of its advertisers.

Steel Makers Cheerful as Demand Rises

Confidence in the iron and steel trade is being sustained by stronger demand for foundry coke and pig iron, increasing firmness in scrap, mounting steel commitments from automobile manufacturers and a spread in miscellaneous orders, says the magazine Steel. Operations last week are placed at 27½ per cent of production capacity, up half a point from the preceding week.

The review continues that producers anticipate November will net the heaviest tonnage since the first quarter.

"So far as current demand is concerned, the election results, which were generally anticipated, have had no effect," the journal says. "Steelmakers, however, believe there may be some hesitancy in industrial expansion projects and equipment buying until after congress convenes. Much uncertainty has been dispelled by the more favorable attitude toward business adopted by the national administration."

Report Shipments Increasing.

It is stated that shipments are on the upgrade and material is going directly into consumption. A decided impetus in new commitments is expected by the time for opening order books on Nov. 20 for the first quarter delivery. Until then all orders received must be shipped before the end of this year. It is stated, based on general opinion in the industry, that base prices on the majority of finished steel products will be reaffirmed.

"Leading automobile companies are taking more pig iron for castings for new models, and have placed contracts for a substantial portion of their first half requirements with partsmakers. Production last week tapered to 16,000 cars from 17,000 tons in the preceding week," the magazine says.

More Freight Cars Ordered.

Freight car awards in October at 75 brought the total for ten months to 23,465, against 1,611 in the first ten months of last year. Structural awards last week rose to 12,868 tons from the 7,250 tons of the preceding week. The review states that steel ingot production in October averaged 54,146 gross tons daily, up to 8 per cent, while the total for the month at 1,461,392 tons was 16.8 per cent higher than in September. For the ten months' output is 12.7 per cent above a year ago at 21,730,394 tons.

Operations last week were up 5 points to 43 per cent at Cleveland, 8 points to 39 per cent at Wheeling, 10 points to 40 per cent in New England, one point to 20 per cent in Pittsburgh, half a point to 30½ per cent at Chicago, and a point to 31 per cent at Youngstown. Detroit operations were 11 points lower at 48 per cent. Buffalo was unchanged at 26 per cent, Birmingham steady to 25 per cent, and eastern Pennsylvania unchanged at 20½ per cent.

The magazine's price composites remain at $32.13 a ton for iron and steel, $54 for finished steel, and $9.66 for scrap.

WITH ELECTION OVER, MARKETS PICK UP SPEED

Share Prices Rise Nearly 3 Points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 11.—True to the popular hope, if not the expectations of Wall street, the election has been followed by a better stock market. Prices are up nearly three points on the week and the list is back within a jump or two of its so-called resistance level established last June when the combined averages on the 18th of that month went to 88.38. Above that is the resistance line of around 98, fixed when the New Deal bull market, launched with the ending of the bank holiday following President Roosevelt's inauguration, reached its peak in July, 1933, and duplicated in the midwinter swing last February. The "averages" closed last night at 84.24.

The chief concern of traders who set great store by the chart is the market's chances of puncturing its next level and thus establishing the advance, now four days old, as a major move to the fore.

Opinion Is Divided.

Opinion on the possibility is sharply divided. Many believe that the slowing up of the business recovery, the continued headlong expenditures of the administration which will have to be made up in taxes and the uncertainties always attendant upon a session of congress preclude any justifiable speculation to such an end.

Another element, on the other hand, is convinced that a fresh orgy of inflation is on the cards and that the monetary expansion, whatever form it may take and however it may be camouflaged, will be amply sufficient to warant a further upturn in stock prices. The market's course over the next few days, therefore, will be watched with no little anxiety.

Action Is Surprise.

Last week's performance, following a prolonged period of pre-election dullness, was an all round surprise. The market's motionless attitude of the preceding week or two had been ascribed to uncertainty over election results—not over the triumph or defeat of the New Deal, for a triumph for the party in power had been generally conceded, but over the size of the majorities, or, in other words, whether the outcome could be construed as a sweeping vote of approval of the administration's policies so far or as a conservative warning against further experimentation along radical lines.

Gentlemen:

We wish to express our appreciation of the prompt, efficient and courteous manner in which all of our claims have been settled in connection with the recent fire at the Union Stock Yards.

We are pleased at this time to offer you our sincere congratulations on attaining your Seventy-Fifth Birthday; and to say that the handling of this account adds a pleasant chapter to our Sixty Years of delightful business relations.

Wishing you a continuation of long life and success, I am,

Sincerely yours,

A. G. Leonard
President.

LITTLE did Publius Syrus in 42 B. C. realize how his words of wisdom would live through the ages and later become the basis for a tremendous service to mankind in the form of a modern necessity—insurance.

• Farsighted men established Moore, Case, Lyman & Hubbard 75 years ago to enable wise men to take advantage of the experience of others and insure themselves and their businesses against calamity and disaster.

• This letter from one of our oldest customers and friends gives silent testimony to the quality, efficiency, and promptness of the service that we take pride in rendering our customers. That which is everybodies' business is ours to serve and insure. So let 75 years of experience in the consideration and protection of others serve you now.

Revives Old Subsidy to Mining Interests.

enough money. If the government will raise the price of silver, buy all of it that is offered at the high price, and coin all the purchased silver into dollars, every one will have more dollars. I am for that. The Republicans are against it."

Or as Willie Howard puts it in the Follies, comes the revolution and everybody will have strawberries and cream.

That time the silver people lost. Bryan was a good salesman as he later demonstrated so successfully in selling vacant lots in Florida, but he failed to sell silver to this country in 1896. The silver interests bided their time. Bryan retired as a silver salesman, but the silver interests had a man who knew much better than Bryan how to get things done. All Bryan got for the silver people was expenses and a licking. His successor, Senator Pittman, delivered the goods.

Pittman Keeps Up Campaign.

Pittman's first success as a silver salesman was in 1918. That year found all the silver we had purchased foolishly in the '70s, '80s, and '90s gathering dust and sterile in Washington vaults. An opportunity developed to get rid of some of the useless metal. The English offered to buy a considerable quantity at the highest price known in years. England needed silver with which to pay off large balances she owed in the orient, the backward section of the world where silver was still used as money.

We made the deal and would have been rid of a lot of metal for which we had no use but for Pittman, who represents in the senate Nevada, a state with a population equal to that of a single one of Chicago's fifty wards. Upon his insistence, backed by the western silver bloc, an amendment was added to the bill requiring the government to purchase from domestic mines as much silver at a dollar an ounce as was sold to England.

To comply with this law it has been estimated that 1,400 million ounces of silver would have to be purchased. As the output of the mines of this country in 1932 was just under 25 million ounces, the silver people would appear to have prosperous times ahead of them for years to come. Taking over of the domestic stocks of the metal in accordance with the proclamation of the President nationalizing silver probably added 200 million ounces to the treasury's hoard.

U. S. Buying Silver Abroad.

In addition, the secretary of the treasury has been reported to have been buying silver abroad. This, in anticipation of future buying by the U. S. treasury, has advanced the world price, but there is still plenty of silver awaiting buyers for 10 cents less than the government is paying the western silver interests.

And the silver people are not yet satisfied. They have declared it to be their purpose to have the government's artificial price raised from 64½ cents to $1.29 an ounce. This is their next objective. If successful and the annual output is increased to the 1929 level of 60 million ounces a year under the stimulus of the higher price, it will mean an outright gift to the mining magnates of between 40 and 50 million dollars a year.

There is ground for suspecting that even this lavish gift to them would leave them discontented. Their ancient objective was a ratio of 16 to 1 with gold and with the higher gold price silver would have to be raised to $2.18 an ounce to give them that ratio. And with 14 votes in the senate and control under the Democratic organization of a number of leading senatorial committees, there is no basis for forecasting what they could secure if persistent.

No Democratic ticket since Bryan's second campaign has gone to the people with a platform endorsing the silver racket which the present Democratic administration has pampered. In the last campaign, in fact, there was a clear cut statement in the party platform for sound money.

PRICES OF BONDS FOLLOW GAINS IN STOCK MARKET

Government Securities Hold Steady.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The bond market took time out for the elections during the last week and resumed business on Wednesday without displaying an undue apprehension over the results of the voting.

While in some quarters it was thought the sweeping Democratic victory might have inflationary implications, all financial authorities were not in agreement on this theory. Secondary loans moved up substantially with stocks, following publication of the returns, but, at the same time, prime investment issues which might suffer the most from any drastic currency expansion program did not exhibit exceptional weakeness.

U. S. government securities, usually reflecting the financial district's hopes and fears of inflation, did little or nothing. They showed a moderately loer drift at times, but on the whole this group generally held to a relatively narrow range.

Expect Continued Spending.

Administrative estimates that the forthcoming national budget will total some 7 billion 500 million dollars offered no surprise to Wall street economists who have felt that a tapering off of governmental spending for emergency relief and recovery measures was highly improbable.

Of especial interest to bond market followers, however, were advices from Washington indicating that the President was preparing to complete his New Deal program, while revising some features of it along more conservative lines.

Market analysts gave serious consideration to the official statement that the gross public debt, less the net balance in the treasury, had reached a high of $25,495,702,294. This was $17,110,181 in excess of the previous record peak, reached on Aug. 31, 1919, when the war debt was the largest.

Short Term Issues in Demand.

The demand for short term investments, even at exceptionally low rates, was exemplified by the offering of approximately $10,000,000 of federal intermediate credit banks' 1½ per cent debentures dated Nov. 15 and due in nine months. The books for this issue were closed 45 minutes from the time they opened and the loan was heavily oversubscribed.

German obligations dipped following the action of the reich in suspending all cash payments on external debts between July 1, last, and June 30, next year. French bonds were not disturbed to any marked degree by the fall of the Doumergue cabinet, but Polish loans exhibited temporary heaveiness. Most of the South American list displayed a strong undertone.

CANDY MAKERS MOVE TO FIGHT RULING ON PRIZES

Organized opposition to certain rulings of the federal trade commission and the NRA pertaining to distribution of candy was started yesterday by the recently formed Prize Confectioners' association. Manufacturers, retailers and wholesalers of confections throughout the United States were circularized to present a unified front in a demand for the revoking of clauses prohibiting the distribution of prize confections.

The association said in part that "where there has been a long continued and firmly rooted demand for an article by a substantial portion of normally law abiding citizens, a prohibition against the supply of that demand cannot be effective, but merely produces an unwholesome civic condition, resulting in ultimate abandonment or repeal of that unsound prohibition." The eighteenth amendment was cited as a case in point.

Canadian Rail Workers' Pay to Be Raised Jan. 1

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 11.—Approximately 100,000 railway workers in Canada will receive a pay increase of 3 per cent Jan. 1, and a further 2 per cent on May 1. Cuts amounting to 15 per cent were made in the last few years.

LETTERS

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 6.—Howard Wood's article this morning reminds me of a conversation that I had a year ago last August with a professor of economics at Penn State. While home on vacation when I asked him if he realized that the federal reserve banks could become water logged with government bonds just as the commercial banks had been with real estate and industrials? His reply was, "certainly." It strikes me that the way things are going the best savings bank is a well stocked larder.

AAA SEPTEMBER FARM BENEFITS SET NEW PEAK

Expenditures of Month Total 83 Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—The Agricultural Adjustment administration today made public a report showing that rental and benefit payments and surplus removal disbursements to farmers totaled more than 83 million dollars from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1. This monthly expenditure brings the total of farm aid cost up to 478 million dollars since the formation of the AAA.

The payments during the month were the highest on record. Although rental and benefit payments dropped from 53 million in August to 51 million in September, those for surplus removal reached almost to 32 million dollars, or about one-third of the 101 million dollars paid out up to Oct. 1.

Rentals 345 Millions.

Rental and benefit payments totaled $345,593,486 on Oct. 1. These are divided among commodities as follows: Cotton, $154,674,759; corn-hog, $101,945,334; wheat, $72,631,099, and tobacco, $16,342,293.

These payments approximate only one-half of the estimated total of 799 million dollars to be paid to farmers agreeing to reduce their production of corn and hogs, wheat, cotton, and tobacco. The AAA estimated that payments to the end of the calendar year will exceed 250 million dollars.

Of the disbursements for the removal of surplus agricultural commodities, the AAA reported about 108 million of the $133,301,378 spent to Oct. 1 represents direct payment to farmers for purchase of surplus hogs, cattle, and sheep. The balance was paid for surplus butter and cheese, export wheat operations, and conservation of seed.

Own Expense $25,819,621.

In the payment of 478 million dollars to farmers to Oct. 1 the AAA has paid out $25,819,621 for administrative expenses. This brings the total cost of the AAA to Oct. 1 to $503,714,486.

The rental and benefit payments come out of the pockets of consumers in the form of processing taxes. Such taxes levied to Oct. 1 totaled about 495 millions. The levies follow: Wheat, $146,639,610; cotton, $170,764,114; tobacco, $25,285,531; field corn, $6,439,640; hogs, $128,163,505; paper and jute, $10,732,816; tobacco sales tax, $114,654, and cotton ginning tax, $1,595.

The 133 millions spent on live stock purchases and surplus removal operations also will come out of the pockets of the consumers in the form of regular taxes.

PITTSBURGH RAIL RECEIVES BRADY SAFETY MEDAL

New York, Nov. 11.—The Pittsburgh Railways company has been awarded the Anthony N. Brady safety medal for the best accident prevention record of the year in cities of more than 300,000 population. The Pittsburgh railway reported only one passenger killed.

The Calgary Municipal railway of Calgary, Alberta, for the third time received the award for cities of smaller population with a record of no fatalities.

The record of the 31 traction companies competing from this country and Canada showed 269,000,000 passengers carried for each passenger fatality and 206,000 carried for each injury, a record that betters the general record for the industry, it was reported.

Certificates of honorable mention went to the Montreal Tramways company of Montreal, for cities of the larger class, and to the Utah Light and Traction company of Salt Lake City, for the smaller group.

MIDLAND RAIL ASKS PREFERRED STOCK DELISTING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—A hearing on an application by the Midland Railroad company for the withdrawal from listing and temporary registration on the Philadelphia Stock exchange of 80,130 shares of its $50 par value cumulative preferred stock will be held on Nov. 20 by the securities and exchange commission.

This is the first proceeding of the kind by the commission. In granting the hearing, the commission notified the company that by Nov. 15 it must inform all stockholders about the proceedings, and this procedure will be followed in all other similar cases which may arise.

The application states that the floating supply of stock amounts to 7,321 shares, that the remainder is held by a single corporation, and that the last sales transfer on the company's books was in May, 1931.

CANADIAN TAX YIELD REFLECTS BUSINESS GAIN

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 11.—Recovery of business was reflected in the dominion revenue statement for the first seven months of the fiscal year. Total ordinary revenue showed an increase of $26,000,000.

The big producer was the sales tax, which, with excise taxes, yielded $63,863,000 since April 1, or $8,000,000 more than the corresponding period last year.

Customs revenue, totaling $345,000,000, was $9,000,000 ahead of last year; excise duties totaling $26,000,000 were up $5,000,000; income taxation yielded $49,444,000, up $1,000,000, and the gold tax thus far has brought in $3,873,145.

GASOLINE QUOTA FOR DECEMBER 32,960,000 BBLS.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—The national gasoline production quota for December has been fixed by Secretary Ickes at 32,960,000 barrels. The estimated demand is 30,760,000 barrels for the month and the difference between the demand and permitted production was authorized to maintain desirable economic levels of gasoline inventories.

An abrupt drop in rail tank car shipments was cited to the oil administration today as convincing evidence that the government's campaign to check the stream of hot oil from east Texas was meeting with success.

Norman L. Meyers, chairman of the federal tender board, reported to Ickes that in the two weeks the board has been operating tank car shipments declined nearly 75 per cent as compared with the two preceding weeks.

The oil administration said producers and refiners of illegal oil had been relying chiefly upon railroads to move their products into interstate commerce "where they can cut prices and disrupt the normal stability of industry."

GLASS DEMAND IMPROVES.

A slight improvement in demand for window and safety glass has been reported, but manufacturers say that output as a whole continues approximately at the same level as for the last several weeks.
